'NOT HOSTILE'

U.S. Seeks To Calm Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state department sought today to quiet the fears of Cambodia that U.S. military forces might move into that neutral country to root out Communist Vietnamese military elements which take refuge there.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he wanted to reaffirm that the United States has "no hostile intention toward Cambodia" and will continue to seek a peaceful settlement of the problem posed by "the use of Cambodian territory by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army units."

The state department addressed itself to the issue shortly after Cambodia broadcast a communique saying that it would "offer desperate resistance" to any U.S. forces entering Cambodia "allegedly pursuing Communist Vietnamese forces."

The communique said it would call for help from military forces of other countries.

NOTE TO PRINCE

McCloskey said the United States, in a Dec. 4 note to Prince Norodom Sihanouk's government, tried to give him information which would help him deal with the problem of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces seeking sanctuary in Cambodia after battles with allied forces in the south.

The note, according to McCloskey, pointed out that the United States "has made or supported a number of proposals" to try to deal with the problem.

McCloskey also acknowledged the United States received late last week a reply from Cambodia which again rejected the idea that Communist Vietnamese forces in any number are on Cambodian territory and charged the United States was trying to impose its military will over the whole area.

'We'll Ask For Help'

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The Cambodian government warned today that it would appeal for help from friendly countries if American troops crossed into its territory.

It also said the Americans would meet stubborn armed resistance from the Cambodian people.

The government statement followed reports from Washington that the U.S. is considering plans to pursue Viet Cong guerrillas who allegedly use Cambodia as a sanctuary before and after action in South Vietnam.

The Cambodian government has denied charges that the guerrillas launch attacks from inside Cambodia and use that country as a refuge.

U.S. Bombs Convoys As Short Truce Ends

IN PARIS today en route to Africa for diplomatic meetings, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do of South Vietnam denied he planned any talks with North Vietnamese representatives.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers swept over North Vietnam immediately after the southern allied Christmas truce ended and tore up Communist convoys trying to complete a massive movement of supplies started under the umbrella of the ceasefire.

U.S. headquarters reported about 100 trucks destroyed or damaged in the heavy strikes which began Christmas night and continued today. A ferry carrying eight trucks was blown up and sunk.

Headquarters reported that U.S. jets spotted more than 300 trucks, one of the biggest transpor targets of the war.

The ground war also resumed after the truce ended at 6 p.m. Christmas night (5 a.m. EST Monday) but only scattered actions were reported. The Viet Cong had announced that it would observe a 72-hour Christmas truce, until 1 a.m. Wednesday (noon EST today).

Acting on intelligence from reconnaissance planes which maintained the vigil over the North during the truce, first planes reached the target area with only a few minutes of light remaining. Long strings of flares were dropped, and the bombing continued throughout Christmas night.

RAINS BOMBS ON CONVOY

A 150-truck convoy was scattered along seven miles of highway below Thanh Hoa. Navy Skyhawk jets rained 500-pound bombs along the route, dotting it with billowing fires that lighted the night sky.

Farther south, near Vinh, a 100-truck convoy was blasted.

The ferry south of Vinh was hit just before sundown.

Communiques made no mention of any planes lost on the raids over the North, but a marine observation plane was shot down in South Vietnam.

Vital Military Posts in Laos 'Attacked by N. Viet Troops'

SAIGON (AP)—Laotian military sources said today North Vietnamese regulars had attacked two strategic military posts inside Laos and probably had overrun one of them.

The two posts were identified as Lam Bak, north of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, and Phalane, in southern Laos, close to the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Communications from the Laotian capital of Vietiane said both posts had been attacked by strong forces of North Vietnamese regulars.

Presumably the attacks took place within the last 24 hours, but the messages from Vientiane did not say precisely.

Lam Bak was believed to have fallen to the North Vietnamese. Military sources said the post was lightly defended and that all communications from it had ceased.

Phalane was better defended and was thought to have repulsed the attacks.

Earlier, the government radio of Laos broadcast a defence ministry statement saying "the military situation is very critical and tense" following a series of attacks on government positions by North Vietnamese regular troops.

It was the second time in two weeks that the Laotian government had reported attacks against its troops by North Vietnamese forces.

Blast Shatters Moscow Block

MOSCOW (AP)—An explosion shattered a six-storey apartment building Monday night.

Tass news agency said today nine persons were killed and several injured, but a witness at the scene said a policeman told him more than 20 persons were killed.

Another bystander said 10 or 12 bodies were removed from the wreckage.

The blast was believed caused by a burst gas main, the result of a rare winter thaw in Moscow. Temperatures soared 40 degrees, from below zero to above freezing in the last two days, expanding and flexing buried gas mains.

In an unrelated incident, 10 minutes earlier on the opposite side of the Moscow River, a powerful bomb wrecked the auto of Henry S. Bradsher, Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow. No one was injured.

The apartment house blew up about 9:30 p.m., bystanders said. About 100 persons were believed living in the building's 24 apartments two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Rescue workers with searchlights hunted in a heavy snowfall for victims while dozens of ambulances, fire engines and police cars gathered at the wreckage.

Most of the residents were believed at home because it was an ordinary weekday night. Russians celebrate Christmas Jan. 7, according to the Julian calendar.

Gas explosions are not rare in the Soviet capital, although they are not publicly reported and officials refuse to disclose information on their frequency. The same area was hit by a tremendous gas explosion last January that knocked out telephone communications for days. This never was publicly reported.

The Soviet press and radio maintained a blackout on the disaster Monday night also, and police, troops and barriers blocked off the mass of rubble and torn walls.

Hundreds of Russians gathered this morning as a huge crane worked behind a board fence thrown up overnight. Police and soldiers would not allow Western newspaper men to enter.

"I saw them get a woman and a little girl out alive, but not many could come through that blast," a man said.

SHATTERS WINDOWS

Concrete lamp posts were flattened for 100 yards. Windows in surrounding buildings were blown out. Their electricity and water were cut off.

The destroyed building was part of a block of apartments facing Karsnokhlmsky Street, a main traffic artery that circles downtown Moscow. It stood at the end of the Karsnokhlmsky bridge over the Moscow River about two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

Police investigating the bombing of Bradsher's automobile seemed perplexed, and veteran foreign correspondents could not recall an attack similar to it in Moscow.

Bradsher said he did not believe the bombing was directed against him or his family. He

MOTHER, 5 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

ST. EDOUARD, Alta. (CP) — A mother and her five children died in their blazing farm home early today as she vainly sought to bring them to safety.

RCMP identified the victims as Mrs. Ronald Nielsen, 30, and her children, Arthur, Ronnie, Brenda, Beverley and Barbara, aged 18 months to 10 years.

Mr. Nielsen was taken to hospital in nearby St. Paul, 130 miles northeast of Edmonton, with severe shock and burns, suffered when he tried to climb through a bedroom window to save his trapped family.

A neighbor said Mrs. Nielsen had been ironing on Christmas Day and it was suggested that the iron may have been left on.

The family had lived in the two-storey, 45-year-old house for about a year.

Neighbors said the father told them when he woke at 2:30 a.m. he noticed a small fire near the stove. He ran to the front door, intending to start his car and carry the children to it.

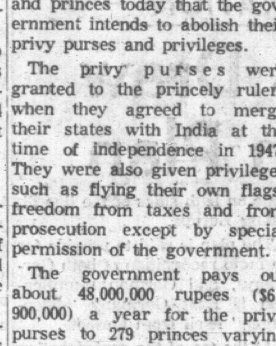

When he opened the door, there was a blast and the fire roared up the walls of the building, defeating his efforts to get back inside. He summoned neighbors but they were unable to help.

A neighbor described the house as a "wooden fire trap."

LEWISTON, N.Y. (AP) — A New York state trooper searching for a young girl believed drowned in a creek was swept through a big drain pipe today and then tumbled about 200 feet into the Niagara gorge.

Trooper Kenneth J. Troidl, 27, suffered only bruises.

Princes' Purses Picked

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Home Minister Yashwantrao Chavan told Indian maharajahs and princes today that the government intends to abolish their privy purses and privileges.

The privy purses were granted to the princely rulers when they agreed to merge their states with India at the time of independence in 1947. They were also given privileges such as flying their own flags, freedom from taxes and from prosecution except by special permission of the government.

The government pays out about 48,000,000 rupees ($6,900,000) a year for the privy purses to 279 princes varying from 2,600,000 rupees to the maharajah of Mysore down to 2,400 rupees to former rulers of minor states.

WILSON VISIT TO KOSYGIN?

LONDON (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson may visit Moscow early next year for talks with Soviet Premier Kosygin, informed sources here said today. Wilson is to visit Washington in February for talks with U.S. President Johnson.

Peking Silent On Report

TOKYO (CP) — Peking kept silent again today about a report from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission that the Chinese had set off their seventh nuclear test explosion Sunday.

The silence heightened speculation that something went wrong.

Official boasting and reports of celebrations in the streets followed each of China's six previous blasts. But a Radio Peking broadcast Monday made no mention of the reported Christmas Eve explosion in the Lop Nor testing area of central Asia. Instead it reviewed the first six blasts and touted the thought of Mao Tse-tung.

The AEC estimated the explosion equalled 20,000 tons of TNT. That would be similar to the first atomic bomb, dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

Japanese Air Force planes detected unusual radioactive fallout over Japan today, but the government said it was not great enough to endanger humans.

However, the government said the radioactivity was the second strongest ever detected coming from China, exceeded only by that of China's third nuclear blast, an A-bomb equal to more than 200,000 tons of TNT, set off May 9, 1966.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that there was no official word there Monday of the test.

Scientists at Niigata, northern Japan, today detected seven giant radioactive particles which they believed were caused by the Chinese blast.

Scientists said the latest test was believed to have taken place in the atmosphere about noon Sunday.

A Japanese military writer, Tadao Tusumi, said the latest Chinese test was believed connected with experiments with low-yield nuclear weapons. The low yield of the explosion could indicate the bomb was carried by a medium-range missile, experts in Washington said.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Indian Boy Can Stand Up to Say Thanks

By KATHRINE THOMAS

The Unitarian Service Committee is dedicated to helping the desperately needy on a person-to-person basis.

It is often difficult to imagine how our small contribution can help the thousands suffering in Asia.

But when we hear of individual cases, we begin to understand how far a little money can go to alleviate pain.

Take little Kuperndra, a six-year-old Indian boy who was born a cripple.

His parents were too busy struggling to earn enough rupees for food for their large family to have time to worry about Kuperndra.

For all his short life, he had been unable to walk. He used to crawl pitifully around their dark, tiny hut.

One day, a USC worker visited the home and discovered the little boy.

The worker took him to see an orthopedic surgeon and because of the generosity of Canadians, the little boy was able to have the operation he needed.

His legs are still a little deformed because he had been neglected for so long.

But he can walk, run and play with his little brothers and sisters for the first time in his life.

His mother cried with happiness to see that her child was cured.

She thanked the USC worker profusely and aksed that her deepest gratitude be conveyed to the Canadian angels of mercy who had made the operation possible.

No longer would she have to live with the terrible fear that her son must spend his days as a crippled beggar in the market place begging for his every meal.

Her child would now be able to make his way as a man in the world.

Donations to the Children of Asia Fund may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates and Douglas, the Times Business office, or mailed in care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Perhaps it was the very money contributed by Victorians which made such a miracle possible.

Official receipts will be sent out from the USC in January.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova serves Canada's wonder drink to the children of India.

Liberal Rivals Split On Medicare Issue

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Medicare could become a key issue in the campaigning of cabinet ministers seeking the leadership of the Liberal party, sources close to the government said here today.

Members of the cabinet who enter the race to succeed Prime Minister Pearson will have to declare where they stand on the medicare issue and whether they favor it being launched in 1968.

The cabinet is divided over the issue. Some members favor it starting as planned, on July 1.

Others in view of inflationary pressures and the need to cut back government expenditures because of the current financial difficulties confronting the administration, would like to see it postponed another year. It has been postponed one year already. It was supposed to start in 1967 but was delayed because of the high costs involved.

Medicare could build up into a divisive factor within the party ahead of the leadership convention. There are those who advocate caution and careful spending in this period of severe inflation. There are others in the party who insist that medicare must be implemented as a progressive Liberal party plank.

They react strongly against any more delays.

Those favoring that it be started July 1 include External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Health Minister Allan MacEachen, Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh and Privy Council President Walter Gordon.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp led the move a year ago to postpone the medicare plan by one year.

But this year he has said it is up to the prime minister to take the initiative and decide if it should be again postponed a year.

TOOK THE RAP

He took the rap last year from those within the party who are staunch medicare advocates. This year he is in effect suggesting that it is up to the prime minister to make the decision and carry the responsibility for postponing the plan another year.

Mr. Pearson so far has contented himself with simply saying the law is on the statute books. Under that law medicare becomes operative July 1.

Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, at one time a strong advocate of medicare, now has some reservations because of the federal-provincial complications.

He still is a medicare man but has become cautious because Quebec has said it will not be participating.

TAXING QUEBEC

This would mean that the federal government would be taxing people in Quebec to help pay medicare costs in other provinces across the country while Quebec itself did not have medicare, as proposed by Ottawa, in operation.

This situation would be ready-made for protests from Premier Daniel Johnson's government. It is worrying the federal representatives from Quebec, including Mr. Marchand, the leader of the Quebec caucus in Ottawa.

Finance Minister Sharp has pointed out that to implement medicare across Canada in all provinces would cost $1 billion.

Ottawa would pay one-half, or $500,000,000.

Mr. Sharp has not said it but he has clearly implied that such an outlay is too great for the federal treasury to undertake at this time.

COMMITTED

Many provinces do not want to embark on medicare at this time. But former premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba has pointed out that provinces like Manitoba cannot allow their taxpayers to be taxed for the costs of operating the scheme across Canada and at the same time justify staying out of the plan under which Ottawa pays 50 per cent of the costs.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are committed to start medicare in July. Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland are also expected to inform Ottawa that they will be ready to start next July.

Ottawa is waiting to hear from the other provinces. Saskatchewan will be in the plan. It already has a medicare plan of its own and by joining it will get Ottawa to pay half the costs.

'BROAD CONFEDERATION'

Germans Draw European Plan

PARIS (Reuters) — The magazine Paris Match says senior West German officials submitted a secret plan to Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger outlining a broad European confederation that would include East Germany and other East European countries.

The confederation would be open to any European state except Russia, the French weekly says.

It would be part of the Atlantic Alliance after it is reorganized in 1969. The presence of American and British troops in West Germany would be renegotiated and talks would start on the creation of a nuclear-free zone on both sides of the line dividing Europe.

The plan is said to provide for de facto recognition of both Germanys, and German reunification if East Germany "disengaged" itself from Moscow.

At the top of the confederation would be a cabinet bringing together officials of member nations.

Paris Match says the plan rested on the assumption that political evolution on both sides of the iron curtain must bring major changes.

It cites a growing tendency to autonomy among East European countries.

CHLORINE IN JACKSONVILLE

Christmas Spent in Gym As Gas Forces Evacuation

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Four hundred persons, who fled their homes after chlorine gas drifted toward them, sang carols in a high school gymnasium Christmas Day as a woman and her tiny infant sat as the centrepiece of a nativity tableau.

Until Monday afternoon, when the all-clear was posted for 300 families roused from their homes by police late Christmas Eve, the holiday was celebrated with strangers at the gym of Robert E. Lee High School or with friends and relatives.

Suffers of respiratory disease and heart patients were told to stay away from the neighborhood, however.

Almost every home in an eight- by 10-block section four miles southwest of downtown Jacksonville was emptied because dangerous fumes were drifting toward them from 91 chlorine tanks ruptured by a fire at the nearby Apperson Chemical Co.

COLD HAMPERS WORK

Bitter cold thwarted efforts to halt the flow of gas. First, firemen mixed it with ammonia fumes, in an attempt to neutralize the gas, but the chlorine was overwhelming.

Then, forklift driver Carl Dickey, 18, and Willie Clarence Williams, 20, worked through the night upending the torpedo shaped tanks into tubs of caustic soda, but the soda froze.

Wooden arrows were cut to peg length, sharpened and driven with hammers into the leaking valves but the chlorine ate through the wood in an hour. Warming temperatures allowed them to finish the work Monday.

Three firmen were felled by the gas Monday, joining 18 taken to hospitals for treatment of gas inahalation during the original fire Saturday night.

All were home Monday night when the emergency was ended.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cool, dry air has thrust southward into the central interior giving partial clearing there but other parts of B.C. remain cloudy and mild. Rain or drizzle continued in coastal areas today and rain or wet snow in the southern interior.

A Pacific weather system will spread continuous rain to the north coast tonight and to the remainder of the coast Wednesday. Skies will cloud over ahead of it in the interior tonight and snow will spread throughout the central and eastern interior. Temperatures will remain mild with afternoon highs in the forties on the coast and in the thirties in the interior.

said he assumed someone had picked out a handy foreign car as a target.

The explosion occurred about 25 minutes after Bradsher, his wife, Monica, and their two sons —Keith, 3, and Neal, 2, returned home from a Christmas dinner. They live in a building for non-Communist foreigners.

PARKS NEAR APARTMENT

Finding the apartment building's small parking lot full, Bradsher parked the car in an alley just around the corner from the sentry box of a policeman assigned to the building.

The explosion tore off the right front fender and extensively damaged the under side of the car.

The blast was of such force that it smashed the windows of apatments for at least four floors above the car. The gas tank, although full, did not explode.

A hole in the snow-covered pavement just under the right front axle indicated that the explosive had been placed on the ground after the car had been driven onto what seemed to be a clean patch of snow.

Soviet Youth Gets Amnesty In Britain

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A 28-year-old Russian youth leader who took refuge in the American Embassy here Wednesday left the building Sunday night and was taken into Indian custody.

A British high commission spokesman said Saturday the youth leader, Aziz Ulug-Zade, was granted permission to enter Britain immediately and without restraint, at his own request.

A U.S. embassy official released a copy of a letter from American Ambassador Chester Bowles which said Ulug-Zade was given verbal assurances he would not be forced to go to any country against his wishes.

Meanwhile, he would be kept "safe and secure" accommodation by the Indian authorities, the letter said.

The embassy official also released a letter from Ulug-Zade to Bowles which said the Russian did not wish to return to Russia but wanted to live permanently in an English-speaking Western country, preferably Britain.

Youth Dies After Tumble Into Ditch

LADYSMITH — An Indian youth found unconscious in a shallow ditch on the Chemainus Bay reserve died in hospital here early Christmas morning.

Police said today their investigations show Ronald Aleck, 19, had been drinking and had taken a quantity of pills.

Mrs. Ellen Bagley, who also lives on the reserve, spotted Aleck unconscious alongside the road Saturday morning and drove him to Ladysmith Hospital. The youth died at 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Officers said they estimate the youth had been lying beside the road about five hours.

His mother, Agnes, lives on the reserve but RCMP still probing the case could not say whether Aleck had other relatives there or whether he was employed.

Coroner Russ Inkster of Nanaimo has ordered an autopsy to determine the cause of death. Whether an inquest will be held has not yet been settled.

Manitoba Flood Pact Signed

WINNIPEG (CP)—A $2,100,000 federal-provincial agreement to provide flood protection to communities in Manitoba's Red River Valley was signed today.

Where feasible, permanent dikes will protect communities up to the level of the disastrous 1950 flood. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost and the province 25 per cent.

The agreement, signed by Jean-Luc Pepin, federal minister of energy, mines and resources, and Harry J. Enns, the province's acting highways minister, formalizes an arrangement made between former Premier Duff Roblin and Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp after the 1966 flood. Under this arrangement, permanent dikes around Morris, St. Jean and Emerson now are substantially complete.

Engineering plans have been developed for dikes around other centres. Four communities being considered under the agreement are Letellier, Rosenort, Dominion City and St. Adolphe.

Two Quakes Recorded

Two earthquakes were recorded in the vicinity of Vancouver Island early today.

But an absence of damage reports suggests the tremors occurred in the ocean.

Seismographs at Berkeley, Calif., and Seattle recorded the earthquakes off the B.C. or Washington coast at 1:31 a.m. and again at 1:52 a.m.

Dr. Mansour Niazi at the University of California said he measured them at 5 and 4.5 on the Richter scale, strong enough to cause damage in a populated area.

The only explanation for the lack of reports, he said, was that the quakes might have been centred in an isolated area, possibly in the ocean.

Yule Message From Johnson Is Peace Hope

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—President Johnson spent a quiet Christmas day resting at the White House with his family after a 27,000-mile globe-circling trip.

The president was expected to leave here today for the LBJ ranch in Texas to prepare his annual State of the Union message for delivery to Congress in two weeks.

In a Christmas Day message, Johnson reiterated his pledge to the nation to continue to search for peace in Vietnam despite past disappointments.

Johnson flew halfway round the world to talk peace with Pope Paul Saturday.

The president flew from U.S. air bases in Thailand and Vietnam in the spirit, he said, of the Pope's offer of mediation to end the Vietnam war.

After their 60-minute conversation in the Pope's private library, the president read a statement which included no new concessions on Vietnam or any indication that he had accepted the Pope's offer.

He disclosed, however, that he had spoken to the Pope about the plight of American prisoners in North Vietnam who he said were being deprived of internationally-recognized rights.

He invited the pontiff to send representatives to visit North Vietnamese prisoners in South Vietnam to see how they were being treated.

First One to Circle Globe

Johnson became the first U.S. president to circle the globe, visiting Australia, South Vietnam, Thailand, Pakistan and Rome on the homeward-bound leg.

The trip's main purpose was the memorial ceremony for Australian Prime Minister Harold Holt in Melbourne. It took 4½ days.

His day Saturday lasted 27 hours. It started with a predawn speech at Korat Air base in Thailand, then 90-minute meeting with U.S. airmen at Cam Ranh base in Vietnam, a 60-minute meeting with President Ayub Khan of Pakistan in Karachi and a 60-minute talk with Italian President Giuseppe Saragat before calling on the Pope.

The president's plans in Rome were kept a secret until the last minute and White House officials disclosed that they had only been completed three hours before arrival.

There were plans to visit Madrid but these were cancelled. The reason was not known.

A human wall of police surrounded the airport, the Vatican and the demonstrator-beleaguered U.S. Embassy as the president helicoptered from point to point.

Johnson Gets 'Hangman' Label

Communist - inspired demonstrators shouting "Free Vietnam" and "Johnson Hangman" scuffled with police near the Embassy but later drifted off apparently discouraged by some of the strongest security precautions in Roman history.

The Communist party organ L'Unita bore the headline, "He did not dare to drive through Rome."

Security helicopters circled over the Vatican's palaces and security men with walkie-talkies mingled with medieval-robed Swiss Guards and papal officials during the meeting.

Later, the president read a statement saying that the United States "would agree to any proposal that would substitute the word and the vote for the knife and the grenade in bringing an honorable peace to Vietnam."

He said the Pope had suggested "a principle of mutual restraint," which if accepted by both sides would bring a rapid and solid progress towards peace.

"We should be willing to stop the bombing and proceed promptly to serious and productive discussions."

He said he agreed with the Pope that an honorable settlement of the dispute was possible and said "it was a good meeting and I hope it will bear fruit."

Johnson returned to the White House early Sunday. He brought back with him clothes and a gold cross for grandson Patrick Lyndon Nugent, son of daughter Luci and Patrick Nugent.

Johnson said he picked up the jersey and red and blue pants for the baby at a military post exchange for $1.58.

The cross was a personal gift to the infant from Pope Paul. For Mrs. Johnson, the Pope sent along a 15th century Madonna and Child.

It's 'Same to You' At Yule Session

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Chief Soviet government press spokesman Leonid Zamyatin clashed with a Communist Chinese correspondent Monday at a press conference called to outline the development of Kremlin foreign policy over the last 50 years.

The clash came after Zamyatin, reading from a prepared statement lasting nearly an hour, reiterated charges that China was blocking co-ordinated aid to Vietnam by Communist countries.

"The refusal to join in the common efforts of the Socialist countries, the cowardly and capitulatory position of the Mao Tse-tung group on the Vietnam problems and the abandonment of the struggle against imperialism have in no small measure encouraged the United States in escalating this dangerous conflict in Vietnam," he said.

When he had finished his statement and invited questions, the correspondent from the official New China news agency jumped to his feet and accused Zamyatin of making a malicious attack on China.

DEFENDS CHINA

Amid interruptions from the Soviet press chief who accused him of provocations, the correspondent asked whether Zamyatin knew how the North Vietnamese Communists estimated Chinese aid in their "struggle against United States aggression."

Zamyatin replied that the help given to North Vietnam "by all Socialists countries, above all the Soviet Union," had helped it to resist U.S. aggression. It was known, he added, that the North Vietnamese regarded Chinese aid as "clearly insufficient."

Challenged by the New China news agency correspondent to say when, where and how the North Vietnamese had made such an opinion known, Zamyatin replied: "This is our evaluation from talks with Socialist countries."

In other questions at this press conference, Zamyatin deplored China's latest reported atom bomb test.

As an atheist state, the Soviet Union does not celebrate Christmas and all official institutions were working Monday.

MORE FAVOR HARD LINE IN VIETNAM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are becoming more determined to see the Vietnam war through and favor a limited stepup, the Louis Harris public opinion poll reports.

Harris said his nationwide poll found that most Americans favor intensification of the war effort—but not to the extent of using atomic weapons or crossing the Chinese border.

The consensus—58 to 24 per cent—is that the way to achieve a negotiated peace is "to convince the Communists they will lose the war if they continue the fighting." The same issue last July found favor by only 45 to 42 per cent.

The copyrighted poll appeared in Saturday's Washington Post.

HO SENDS GREETINGS AS MAO TURNS 74

MAO
. . . long reign

TOKYO (AP) — Chairman Mao Tse-tung today marked his 74th birthday with a greeting from North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

But as in the past, broadcasts from Peking monitored in Tokyo did not mention the anniversary.

Ho's greeting was reported by Hanoi's Vietnam news agency. It said the 77-year-old Ho wishes Mao a long life on behalf of the government and party of North Vietnam.

The broadcast was monitored in Tokyo.

U.S. 'Provoking' Soviet Vessels

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda says U.S. planes are "unceasingly provoking" Soviet ships delivering supplies to the North Vietnamese port of Haiphon.

Pravda special correspondents Yuli Semyomov and Arkaday Vasilyev say the latest "provocation" was agasint the Soviet diesel ship Iman, carrying wheat to North Vietnam.

First U.S. bombers flew over the ship and then helicopters from American aircraft carriers appeared and shadowed the Iman for some time, they say.

After the helicopters, more military aircraft appeared above the vessel and finally fighter-bombers began to harass the Iman, diving close to its masthead, they report.

"But despite the provocative actions of the U.S. military, the Soviet sailors carried out their international duty and delivered their cargo to the hero-city of Haiphong," the correspondents write.

"The cargo was delivered so that the Vietnamese people could successfully fight and continue to work."

ATTENDANCE WAS GOOD

Some 162,000 persons visited the annual European Agricultural and Industrial Fair "Elmia 67" which ended recently in Sweden.

NORTH VIETNAM LISTS PEACE CONDITIONS

U.S. Terms Vetoed as Swindle

TOKYO (UPI)—President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam in a rare public appearance Christmas Day told his embattled people they are defeating the United States.

Hanoi's official newspaper rejected President Johnson's latest offer as a "peace swindle."

Radio Hanoi said Ho spoke at length to a rally in bomb-scarred Hanoi marking the anniversary of the founding of his army and the beginning of the fight against the French 23 years ago. Ho is 77.

FEELS YOUNG

"I feel as though I were 20 years younger," he told the rally, then turned to the war. "Our line and policies are correct. Our entire people are united and of one mind, our armed forces have a matchless heroism, and we are enjoying the . . . firm support of friends in the five continents.

"This is why we will surely win and the U.S. aggressors will surely be defeated," he said. "It is clear that the U.S. is being defeated."

Nhan Dan, the official newspaper of North Vietnam, said in a commentary that Johnson's latest peace offer—made in an interview broadcast nationally in the United States—was aimed at "dragging on the U.S. aggressive war in Vietnam."

"Johnson did not utter a single word on what the world people are demanding," the newspaper said. It said those demands were:

—To stop definitively and unconditionally the bombing and other acts of war against North Vietnam;

—To withdraw U.S. and allied troops from South Vietnam;

—To recognize the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong—as the "only genuine representative of the South Vietnamese people."

PEACE SWINDLE

"Johnson has resorted to a series of peace swindles," Nham Dan said. "He recently claimed that the demilitarized zone must be respected, that the unity of Vietnam as a whole must be a matter for peaceful adjustments and negotiations (and) that the political future of South Vietnam must be worked out by the people of South Vietnam and the like.

"Johnson's claims are nothing but worn-out tricks aimed at dragging on the U.S. aggressive war in Vietnam," the newspaper said.

HO
. . . 'we'll surely win'

"All the U.S. imperialists' deceitful allegations have been denied by their own deeds. Their empty words on peace desires have been unmasked by the new steps of war escalation in both parts of Vietnam and the U.S. scheme to expand its aggression to Cambodia and Laos."

Ho said in his speech the impending resignation of Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara was a sign that the United States is losing the war.

NOT GIVEN UP

"(He) . . . has been compelled to give up his post . . . thus getting the blame in place of Johnson and his accomplices," Ho said. "However, the U.S. diehard imperialists have not yet given up their aggressive designs."

Ho called on North Vietnamese Communists to stand together to drive out "the U.S. aggressors." He closed his speech by thanking the Communist nations that have aided his forces.

New Law for a New Era

THE UNVEILING OF THE Anglo-French supersonic Concorde airliner a few days ago added urgency to the words of Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin who a short time before had spoken of the new problems in national and international air law which are being presented. Such giant aircraft as the Concorde—undoubtedly to be followed by others—will make necessary new agreements on service, new provision for the rights of people on the ground and in the air, and a new approach to legislation governing the world's flying space which now will shrink more quickly than ever.

It is odd but true that in some respects more progress in legal concepts has been made in space travel than in air travel, for the newness of the former medium has made necessary new guides for its use. Thus the recent Outer Space Treaty laid the basis for the peaceful exploration and use of outer space, the moon and other celestial bodies. This is a move toward a common rejection of the military use of space—a concept which has had very limited application in the nations' use of the air. Like new departures in international control of the ocean floor and its resources, the discussions on space indicate a recognition of a new global responsibility among the nations—the glimmering of an understanding that the earth must be kept safe for the benefit of all peoples.

Mr. Martin raised some specific points in his address to the Second International Conference on Air and Space Law. Two matters of present concern are agreements on assistance and return of astronauts, and on the liability for damage resulting from launching objects into space. Here even the basic terms must be defined before any concrete agreement can be reached. And there may be interesting repercussions, for the new concepts in regard to space liability, for instance, may bring about a new look at existing practices in regard to liability in the air, because obviously there would have to be a measure of harmony in the approaches of the law to these two problems.

Jurisdiction in air space may be enforceable at comparatively low altitudes, but outer space raises new problems. Equally so does the impending era of giant airliners with their sonic booms and the ground measures necessary to counteract them. The new airports which will be necessary create questions of location and public liability. Recognition of the principle of freedom of the air, with its problems of overflight, will require a high degree of international integration in pooling arrangements, union agreements, and mergers to spread the enormous costs of the new equipment over larger business bases. This indicates that bilateral agreements in air travel may soon become obsolete and that far-reaching multilateral agreements will be necessary from now on.

In meeting these new problems of air space, the growing experience in outer space law is bound to exert some influence on our thinking. The questions raised by the impact of technology are pushing the nations into new fields of international co-operation. Our jurists will have to meet this challenge as successfully as the scientists and engineers are meeting theirs.

Rise and Fall

ALTHOUGH THE TERM "client state" for a dependent of one of the great powers is commonly used, it is becoming obvious that the description is seldom accurate. The foremost current example of this is South Vietnam's relations with the United States where, although the former is entirely dependent on the latter militarily and largely dependent economically, the two still fail to act in concert.

President Johnson, in his latest television address to his country, made the point several times that peace might be found through informal talks between South Vietnamese President Thieu and leaders of the National Liberation Front. The reaction of President Thieu was that he would talk to NFL spokesmen only if they defected to the Saigon regime. This intransigence on the part of a chief of state who is in effect little more than an American puppet may seem strange unless it is recognized that the United States is also a captive of the South Vietnam government. The Saigon regime is no doubt involved in corruption; some of its army lacks the will to fight; it delays land reforms or economic reforms which are necessary; but it knows that the investment of the United States in terms of men killed, money spent and prestige committed is so great that an American withdrawal is impossible unless Saigon is willing to negotiate.

West Germany and Greece are two other vivid examples of how "client states" can entrap their sponsor. Both were armed by the United States as bulwarks against Communism; both are proving to be an embarrassment—Greece with its reactionary military dictatorship based on American arms, and West Germany with its awkward attitude toward the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

There are many other instances of the same phenomenon, and not only for the United States but for Soviet Russia, which also exercises extra-territorial influence. China was the "client state" which got out of the control of Russia, while Cuba is a thorn in Moscow's side and Yugoslavia, Romania, Egypt and Syria are also providing headaches.

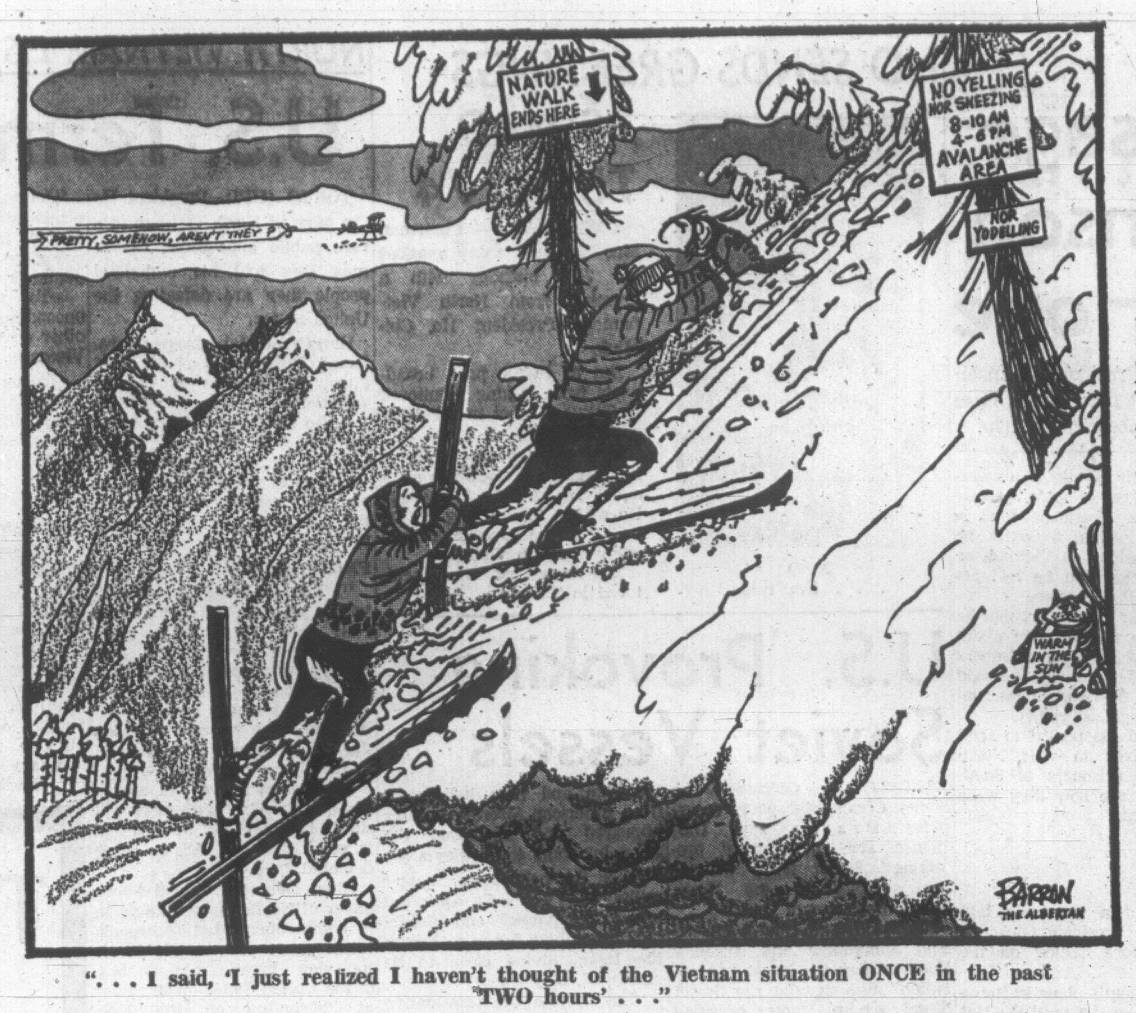

The lesson seems to be that foreign aid inculcates self-sufficiency in the beneficiary, which in turn leads to a tendency to throw off the reins of the donor country. In the enlightened foreign aid programs of today this, of course, is the objective. But another factor in the ultimate decline of "imperialistic" gestures is that too often the donor nation fails to adapt to new conditions inside and outside the evolving client state. Seeking mainly to retain the status quo, its policies become outdated and unworkable, and its influence consequently dwindles.

Non-Resident School Fees

THE CASE OF THE YOUNG student whose parents reside out of town and against whom the usual non-resident fees have been assessed for attendance at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School has come to a happy conclusion. A Vancouver firm has provided a special "Christmas bursary" to cover the charge and the grandparents with whom the young lady stays have accepted the gift.

The incident points up an anomaly in the present fee structure applied to schools. It is reasonable enough to levy an assessment against the child of a non-resident if no school costs are being met by the family. If such charges were not imposed, then tax-paying residents of a school district could be saddled with the burden of educating children of parents who make no contribution.

But anyone owning property in British Columbia pays property taxes in one form or another—as do renters whose rates include a share of the landlord's tax payments. Taxes are inescapable, even for the grandparents in the Oak Bay case. Is there not some relatively simple method of transferring a portion of parents' tax payments to another school district to cover the tuition of their children living there? This would avoid the burden of double payments to educate a child. The point is worth some attention when the legislature meets again.

"... I said, 'I just realized I haven't thought of the Vietnam situation ONCE in the past TWO hours' ..."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

A Losing Battle With the Calendar

MR. PEARSON, the most incurably optimistic prime minister in our history, is once again in trouble with the calendar. As the centennial session manifestly cannot be fitted into centennial year, the unfinished business will have to be carried forward as it was at the end of 1964 and again at the end of 1966. The difficulty is certainly not on this occasion attributable to an obstructionist opposition. After the struggles of last spring, the government planned a centennial session devoted largely to social legislation of a character unlikely to divide members on partisan lines.

Western

A good deal of time has been given over to matters such as capital punishment and divorce reform and more weeks will be demanded when Parliament resumes. In addition the Conservatives under Mr. Stanfield's leadership have been markedly co-operative, according the government a valuable breathing space by treating the issue of national unity, at least for the present, as out of bounds.

Financial Upset

What was obviously not contemplated when Mr. Pearson, in a burst of August enthusiasm, proposed a bill-a-day pace for the resumed session, was the financial crisis, which necessitated a second budget. But the proposal was never a realistic objective. There has always been a gap between the government's aspirations, which are limitless, and its capacity to manage Parliament's business. For example, no prime minister has attached such importance to committees, but in fact a dozen of them are not organized even now, and the list of dormant groups includes such important committees as that on public accounts.

In announcing his decision to resign following the Liberal leadership convention next spring, Mr. Pearson left the impression that what he had in mind was a bit of tidying up when Parliament returns in January, a short break and then a new session. But he was rather vague about these plans and seemed more concerned to dispel the impression that, as outgoing leader, he would suffer any diminution of authority either in his party or in Parliament or in the federal-provincial conference next February.

It may, in fact, be a good thing if Mr. Pearson on this occasion, falls even farther behind in his struggle with the calendar. For a new session prior to April will mean a new throne speech, written of course by the present prime minister but at the least foreshadowing the actions of the new prime minister, as yet unknown, who will emerge from the Liberal convention.

Unusual Clarity

There is no insuperable difficulty here. It used to be accepted that a throne speech conceals as much as it reveals and Mr. Pearson could doubtless revert, if he chose, to the earlier tradition. But this would be a rather sharp and perhaps embarrassing break from his own straight-forward style. Although the speech of last May did contain a good deal of centennial rhetoric, it has been his custom to set out the government's program with a good deal of clarity at the beginning of each session. At times we have even had background briefings on the significance of passages placed in His Excellency's mouth.

A party in opposition possesses a freedom in conventions not shared by a party in power. The Liberals, according to their present plans, intend to make the Ottawa gathering a serious exercise in policy building. This will be no easy task with a leadership struggle in progress. The Conservatives, despite their trial run at the Montmorency conference, were frustrated in their effort and in the end could do no more than turn over to their new leader resolutions (some very controversial) which had never gone past the committee stage.

But in the case of the Liberals the difficulty will be compounded because a government must govern and not be governed, even by its own supporters assembled in convention. This was shown rather painfully at the time of the last liberal meeting. Scarcely had the echoes died away when the prime minister made it very plain that he could not be bound by a resolution calling for a North American-Caribbean free trade area.

The problem is even more awkward when the leadership is involved. Mr. Pearson presides over a cabinet which has long been divided on economic issues. In seeking to maintain a balance he has sometimes gone to extraordinary lengths; for example, in bringing back to his council Mr. Walter Gordon, who was so much the leader of an opposition within the party that he even challenged the government in external affairs. That deep differences persist is manifest from Mr. Pearson's own long and damaging silence on the key issue of medicare.

Such dangerous issues are not easily blurred at the best of times. How are the ministers to preserve the necessary appearance of unity when the various contenders for leadership are bidding against each other for delegate support. Some Liberals already see the convention as the climax of a long struggle to determine whether the party will continue on the radical path favored by Mr. Gordon, or whether it will veer back towards the middle of the road.

This can only mean that a new session before April will open at a time of great uncertainty. But perhaps it is not necessary. The back-log of unfinished business will probably take a good deal longer than is generally assumed. A recess until after the convention would permit the new prime minister to meet Parliament with his own program. This would seem the best solution even if it meant another losing battle with the calendar at the end of 1968.

FROM LONDON — By TIM TRAYNOR

Concorde and Technology's Challenge

IRONY of ironies, Britain and France have shown what co-operation can produce at the very moment General de Gaulle is manning the barricades to keep Britain out of the European Common Market. The doors of a hangar in Southern France opened last week and there, for all the world to see, was a prototype of the first supersonic jetliner, jointly developed by the British and French aircraft industries. In the words of the British Minister of Technology, Anthony Wedgwood Benn, it would henceforth be known to the British not as Concord, but as the French-style Concorde, the final 'e' standing for "excellence, for England, for Europe and for the Entente—that alliance of sympathy and affection which binds our two countries together."

Traynor

The obvious question which arises is: Why does the co-operation end with projects like the Concorde? It is a question which increasingly puzzles and vexes European leaders. They see here the nucleus of European technology and feel that its urgent development is imperative if Europe is not to fall into total dependence of the United States for the products of advanced technology in industry. It is recognized that the nations of Europe individually have not the resources to challenge American dominance. Their comparatively small markets do not justify the huge research and development costs which American industries easily absorb in the course of pioneering a new process. Neither do individual European states have anything on the scale of the U.S. space and military programs generating futuristic technologies at government expense. Only Britain and France are still within hailing distance of the Americans and it is recognized that the European technological future is in their hands.

How long can General de Gaulle avoid coming fully to grips with this issue? He is certainly not doing so at present, for all his protestations of concern about the American threat to European industry. He spurns the most promising path to European technological co-operation—British membership of the Market.

He argues that British Market membership is not necessary for co-operation, often pointing to Concorde as proof of the fact. But he will convince no one that as much can be done without Britain in, as with Britain as a member of the ECM. The Wilson government which has offered to participate in a European technological community, has made it clear it will be much more reserved in its approach to co-operation if it is to occur outside the Common Market framework. Britain spends far more than all the other European countries put together on research and development, has highly-developed aeronautic and nuclear power technologies, has a respectable electronics industry and has maintained, alone among the European countries, the nucleus of an independent computer industry. (The French government is attempting to establish one now after watching the majority of the French industry fall to the American computer giants.)

Were there no American challenge, Europe could probably get by without full British technological co-operation. But can it do so in the present situation? The obvious fact remains that the challenge continues to grow. The conclusion of Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber in his recent, widely read study, Le Defi Americain, is significant. He found it is not so much the dollar which makes the Americans formidable as their technological prowess, encouraged by effective mass education and marketing policies.

There is a further aspect of the Gaullist attitude which is highly questionable. As always, the orientation is toward the protection of national sovereignty. This is almost certainly incompatible with the sort of technological development which is patently necessary. Uniformity is the essence of the U.S. achievement. Funds are allocated by centralized authorities, whether government or industry, on the basis of policy decisions which will apply to the country as a whole. Resources need not be split between a variety of projects tailored to regional policies.

To Compete

If it is to compete with the Americans, Europe can hardly help moving toward centralization and policy harmonization. Sovereignty must of necessity be compromised. What the Common Market has achieved in this direction, despite Gen. de Gaulle, is only a start. There is a need for co-ordinated tax and tariff policies and a common company law to encourage cross-boundary mergers producing European companies. (U.S. companies doing over $300 million business yearly outnumber comparable companies based in the Common Market by six to one.) There will also ultimately be a need for a common military procurement policy. This cannot be divorced from the wider issue of the future military role of Europe, and is in some ways unattractive. But while Europe follows separate procurement policies, it will be handicapped in its efforts to compete technologically with the United States. An indication of the sort of handicap was provided this summer when the Anglo-French variable-geometry fighter aircraft was cancelled. The plane had to be designed to suit the differing requirements of the British and French governments, a situation which produced complications and finally led the French to pull out.

What will probably be the first electric searchlight to be used for a danger signal will be installed at Cape Flattery in a few days by the U.S. lighthouse tender Columbine. The installation of the light is a new plan which it is believed will be of unusual benefit to shipping.

Electric searchlights are believed to be more effective in piercing fog banks than the usual fixed or revolving light of the coastwise towers.

Like Shipyard Workers?

I see in your issue for December 15 that John Schibli, president of the Carpenters' Union, states that carpenters' wages increased 50 per cent between 1946 and 1956.

Since 1949 the cost of living has increased by approximately 50 per cent. In 1949 carpenters' wages were increased to $1.25 per hour. Since 1949 and up to 1967 they have increased almost 300 per cent.

Many carpenters will probably find themselves in the same position as the shipyard workers and for the same reason.—T. M. Watson, 1663 Rockland.

From Youth to Elderly

Tuesday evening the Senior Citizens of Kiwanis Village and The Villa were given a very nice treat when students of the University provided a bus to take us out to see the very beautiful lighting of the city. This was greatly appreciated by all those who took part. On coming back to the Villa a short musical program was enjoyed and all the old carols sung. It was beautiful.

We would like to commend those young people and thank them very much. — Mary J. Carmichael No. 2, Hibberson Crescent.

Very Un-Merry

Once again the people of British Columbia have been slapped in the face by the hand of Premier Bennett. This time his whipping boy is the taxpayer who likes to take a drink and have one for his friends at this time of the year. A rebuttal can be found at the next election.—John Sutherland, Sidney.

Saanich Candidate

Through the medium of the press, I would like to congratulate the reeve and incumbent council, as well as the new council member. They received a clear mandate and I know they will get on with the jobs that must now be done. I wish to thank all of the electorate in Saanich who supported and voted for me Dec. 9. My only regret is that 70 per cent of the voters did not bother to vote at all.—Joe Belton, 2575 MacDonald Drive.

To Buy Gifts

We, the students of St. Ann's Grade 8 "A", would like to thank you for announcing our car wash. It was a great success and we made $32.30. The money will be used to buy gifts for the children at Seven Oaks.—Pat Kelly and Pat McLellan, co-chairmen, and Sister Wilcock, home room teacher.

Hawk or Dove To Follow Ho?

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG—After Ho, who?

That tongue-twister of a question has taken on singular significance lately, amid reports that North Vietnam's aged President Ho Chi Minh is ill and dying.

Ho's death will inevitably raise the issue of his succession, and the change of leadership in Hanoi could have a bearing on the future of the Vietnam war.

To a large extent, Ho has already been succeeded. Now 77, he long ago assumed the role of arbiter, leaving the daily direction of the country to a collegium of younger associates. This move has served Ho in two prinicpal ways.

It has permitted him, in contrast to contemporaries like Mao Tse-tung and Charles de Gaulle, to protect his enormous prestige as "Uncle" Ho, the living legend. Thus his subordinates have shouldered the blame for such blunders as an abortive land reform or the unpopular purge of intellectuals a decade ago.

At the same time, his delegation of authority has given Hanoi a degree of institutional stability and experience, unparallelled elsewhere in Southeast Asia, that is partly responsible for North Vietnam's survival under the pressures of U.S. bombing.

If these pressures continue after Ho's death, it seems likely that their intense nationalism will hold his heirs together—just as the bipartisan British cabinet would undoubtedly have stuck together had Churchill died during the London blitz.

HO CHI MINH

But there are divergences within the politburo of the Lao Dong (Workers) Party, as the North Vietnamese Communists call their movement, that could emerge if Hanoi faced plausible negotiation offers.

Lean Both Ways

In short, apart from their differences on domestic affairs, Ho's potential successors are believed to have hawkish and dovish leanings. Some critics of U.S. policy in Vietnam submit that these tendencies have been insufficiently exploited in efforts to settle the war.

According to most specialists, the leading dogmatist in Hanoi is Truong Chinh, 58, politburo member and chairman of the National Assembly.

An admirer of blunt Red Chinese tactics, Chinh imposed the brutal land collectivization program in 1956 that provoked a bloody peasant revolt in parts of North Vietnam. As a result, he was dismissed as secretary-general of the Lao Dong Party.

The fact that he is still prominent suggests, however, that Chinh is too valuable to be sacrificed. It is also probable that he has strong support in Peking as well as in Hanoi's top party circles.

Along with Chinh, other reputed "hard-liners" in the politburo are Le Duc Tho, a senior theoretician, and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh. Another Hanoi hawk was Gen. Nguyen Chi Thanh, the army's political commissar, whose death on July 8 was given more publicity in China than in North Vietnam.

Other Dogmatists

The dogmatic faction is also said to include Hoang Quoc Viet, a veteran trade union activist and chief procurator; Hoang Van Hoan, former ambassador to Peking and first vice-chairman of the National Assembly, and To Huu, deputy minister of culture and foremost party censor.

In relative terms, the leading moderates in Hanoi are considered to be Premier Pham Van Dong and Defence Minister Vo Nguyen Giap, both ex-schoolteachers and both Ho's oldest associates still active.

Now 55, Giap gained immense popularity from his victory over the French at Dienbienphu in 1954. But his outspoken manner and his reported impatience with ideology have earned him the enmity of Truong Chinh and other diehards.

Chinh was successful in curbing Giap's authority by placing powerful political commissars inside the army. The most important of these was Nguyen Chi Thanh. His death last summer, however, removed one of Giap's key rivals.

Unlike Giap, Pham Van Dong is cautious and tactful and, of all those in Ho's successor group, probably the man most capable of balancing the rival groups in Hanoi. Like Giap, he is reputed to distrust and dislike the Chinese Communists, partly for their doctrinaire views, partly for their anti-Western posture.

Other Hanoi moderates include Deputy Premier Pham Hung, Minister of Interior Ung Van Khiem, the economist Le Than Nghi and Ton Duc Thang, vice-president of the republic and a participant in the celebrated French Navy revolt during the Russian revolution.

Most Enigmatic

Between the dogmatists and pragmatists stands Hanoi's most enigmatic and possibly its most important future figure, Le Duan. A southerner of peasant antecedents and currently the party secretary-general, Le Duan has long been identified as a Communist in the tough style of the Chinese. Informed sources indicate, however, that his position is rather a blend of nuances.

On the one hand, as a southerner who directed the guerrilla war against the French in the south as far back as 1947, Le Duan has always been fiercely loyal to his native region—an attitude that has marked him as a radical.

He reportedly opposed the 1954 Geneva Accords, arguing that the promise of elections to reunify Vietnam would not be fulfilled and the southern Communists would have therefore been betrayed. In addition to enhancing his prestige, the correctness of that forecast landed Le Duan the task of organizing the resistance movement later to emerge as the Viet Cong.

LE DUAN

Near to Moderates

While he now rejects any settlement that would again, in his view, betray the south, Le Duan seems to have aligned himself perceptibly closer to the moderates in Hanoi. Analysts offer two possible reasons for this alignment.

First, Le Duan has disputed bitterly in the past with Le Duc Tho, one of the leading diehards. Second, he has tended to lean less towards Peking than Moscow, perhaps in the realization that the Soviet Union is capable of giving Hanoi more aid than the Chinese.

Whatever their tendencies, all of Hanoi's leaders are essentially pro-Vietnamese. Their nationalism, symbolized by Ho, is a guarantee of their unity as long as the old man is alive. And their unity is likely to continue as long as their national survival is threatened, as they believe it to be at present.

With Ho gone, and perhaps with U.S. pressures on their country attentuated, Hanoi's ruling hierarchy could well face the internal rivalries and strains that have beset other Communist countries under similar circumstances.

Indians Haven't Much Reason For Celebration

By W. G. PORTMAN
Associate Editor, Canadian Churchman

There is a certain irony attached to Indian participation in celebrations of Canada's Centennial. What, in fact, happened was that the Indians were asked to help celebrate the anniversary of a country that was taken away from them.

Yet, in most cases Indians have participated, not least by allowing government money for Centennial projects to be used for building rinks and community centres that will serve mainly the white towns adjacent to reserves in which they were built.

They dutifully donned buckskin to be displayed in Dominion Day parades and pageants—and then headed back to the ghettos created for them by the treaties they signed with the representatives of the "great white mother"—treaties in which they gave up all rights to their country forever, in exchange for a guarantee of perpetual care.

This care, a hundred years later, is reflected in information like this:

Almost 50 per cent of Indian families earn less than $1,000 a year. About three-quarters earn less than $2,000. Nearly 40 per cent of the Indian population is unemployed (about 10 times the national average) and living on government relief.

About 57 per cent of Indian families live in houses of three rooms or less (national average is 11 per cent). Only nine per cent have sewer or septic tank and indoor toilets (national average 92 per cent). Only 44 per cent have electricity, against a national average of 92 per cent.

A Higher Death Rate

Average life expectancy of the Canadian Indian is 33 years. Mortality rate of Indians, compared with the national rate, is, for preschool children, eight times as much; for school children, teenagers, and adults, between 2½ and three times the national rate.

About 24 per cent of Canada's Indians are "functionally illiterate," which describes a lack of even the most elementary reading and writing skills needed for the most unskilled jobs. This, despite a jump in high school enrolment from 611 in 1948 to 4,761 in 1965.

From the time the treaties were signed—until now—the Canadian Indian has been the ward of the Crown, cared for by the Department of Indian Affairs working through its local agents in each geographic area.

The once-proud race of hunters and warriors was herded onto reserves and has since lived under the benevolent despotism of the local Indian agent, the missionary, whether Anglican or Roman Catholic, the Mountie and sometimes the fur trader—bearing the white man's burden in an outpost of empire.

The life expectancy of the Indian has lengthened, even though it lags far behind the national average, because the Indian Health Service has done much to provide better medical supervision. Infant mortality rates have declined.

There are 215,000 Indians on reserves, direct responsibility of the federal government, and another 200,000 persons of Indian extraction living elsewhere, for whom the government has no direct responsibility.

Overcrowding on the reserves is an obvious result of the increased population; migration to the cities in an attempt by individual Indians to escape the situation often is doomed to failure because nothing in his reserve environment has equipped him to stand on his own feet and to make his own decision in an urban setting.

Great Contributions

It wasn't always this way. Once, the Indian was a partner.

The Canadian Indian made it possible for the white man to take over his country. No European could have survived in Canada had it not been for the skill and knowledge provided by Indian manpower. The Indian contributed canoes and other implements, he served as a guide over the trails that only he knew well, he gave knowledge of his environment to the white explorer. Many explorers and traders adopted Indian ways and gave their names to many Metis families of mixed blood.

In Canada there were no Indian wars—no General Custer. Two races met with good will and lived harmoniously together for generations to their mutual benefit.

The partnership ended as settlement pushed to new frontiers and agriculture replaced the fur trade as the base of the country's economy. The Indian's traditional food supplies were either destroyed (as in the case of the buffalo) or pushed further away by the outreach of settlement.

Continued Indian retention of land was an impediment to agricultural development. The solution was simple: the Indians signed treaties surrendering their claims to the land in return for reserves, annuities, and a variety of government services and allowances.

What the Crown did, in effect, was to place the Indian on the reserve and forget him for 50 years.

Majority of the Indian population was effectively isolated from the rest of the population. Economic and technical assistance needed to help him advance and remain self-supporting through agriculture, which was practically the only economy available to him was not available.

In isolated cases, Indians have successfully become part of the larger community. Most remained isolated, an economically and socially depressed people.

And things haven't changed much—yet. The Indians, by and large, still are a depressed people, whose ambitions are submerged in a cloud of futility at any prospect of "making it" in an alien culture.

But there is hope. For the first time, educated, articulate, often bitter leaders and spokesmen have risen from among the Indians themselves, demanding recognition of the needs and hopes of their people.

There are indications that the whites in authority are listening.

Morals and Mystique of Transplants

'How Can I Search My Soul If I Have Another's Heart?'

By STANLEY UYS

CAPE TOWN—In the wake of the world's first human heart transplant — unfortunately not successful — some moral and philosophical doubts are now troubling South Africans.

In an almost superstitious way many ordinary people here, possibly because the event happened on their doorstep, are wondering whether medical science has not gone too far in tampering with the heart, which has its own special mystique.

They are inclined to agree with the heart transplant patient, Louis Washkansky, who quipped after the operation: "I am a Frankenstein now!"

Kind of Question Being Asked

"How can I search my soul if I have someone else's heart," is the kind of question which is being asked. It shows how inextricably the heart and soul are linked in the average person's imagination.

The operation has started speculation on what medical science will do next. Will it transplant a human brain? If so, who will be the survivor—the donor or the recipient? Once started along this road, will medical science not be carried away by its own enthusiasm?

The question was put directly to Professor Chris Barnard, head of the heart transplant team, at a press conference: "If I carried a disc on me consenting to donate my heart in the event of my being killed in an accident, would it lower my chances of resuscitation?

Amid laughter, Professor Barnard replied: "It depends to a large extent where you die—not in this country."

All the doubts and uncertainties raised by the man in the street are being answered swiftly and emphatically by doctors, lawyers and clergymen.

On the question of the definition of death, the doctors have declared that Miss Denise Darvall's heart was removed only after—and not before—it had stopped beating. Minutes after death the incision was made and a heart-lung by-pass machine was used to pump blood through the body so as to cool the heart and arrest deterioration before it was removed.

Legislation If Necessary

Lawyers have discussed the question of the legal definition of death and have expressed the view that legislation will be introduced if necessary—"the law will not stand in the way of medical progress."

But at what stage should a doctor decide that life cannot be maintained unaided? And even then, is it ethical to switch off the machines, by which action the tissues are allowed to die?

When does the doctor's conscience permit him to declare that he is not taking the life of a patient who is being kept alive on machines at least clinically?

The Cape Town doctors appear to have followed the precept of the British authority, Sir Keith Simpson, that when the doctor has abandoned all hope that life can be maintained unaided—that is the moment of death.

In the religious sphere, the churches have weighed in with assurances that heart transplants are all right. The Anglican Church said: "The doctors performed the operation in the course of their duties and in observance of the Hippocratic oath." The Roman Catholics said they had already decided kidney transplants were morally justified and there was no difference between kidney and heart transplants.

The Chief Rabbi of Cape Town said there was nothing immoral—"It was a question of trying to save a life and this I am convinced supersedes all other considerations."

A Presbyterian minister said "I have no objections to this operation. It has opened a new field of possiblities in the medical world and was aimed at saving human life."

Telephoned Congratulations

The Moderator of the biggest of the three Dutch Reformed Churches even telephoned Professor Barnard to congratulate him.

"There is no question that this operation was not morally and religiously justifiable," he said.

An atheist, however, commented: "Medical science is taking the mysticism out of religion. Although the churches will protest that the soul is not an identifiable physical unit, nevertheless belief in it will become more difficult as a result of medical science's irreligious invasion of the body."

Apart from the religious aspect there is the psychological one—the feeling that somehow the individual's identity has been diminished. As it is, most people find it hard enough in modern society to establish an identity for themselves.

Less Mystery About Life

Now if every single part of the body—even parts like the heart and the brain where many people think the mystery of life resides—can be replaced by a part from someone else's body, the question arises not merely "Who am I?" but "What am I?" Most people like the mystery of life to remain mysterious and unapproachable, and now the doctors are setting about it with scalpels.

Oddly no one has remarked here publicly yet on the most immediate question of all—that in Cape Town in the past few weeks a white woman has been given an African's kidney and a colored boy a white girl's kidney.

What price racial differentiation now? Admittedly, people are talking about it privately but not with alarm—which suggests moral as well as medical progress.

How Will B.C. Meet Big Test?

By VINCENT PRINCE
Le Devoir, Montreal

The chairman of the Coquitlam school board in British Columbia, E. P. Murphy, along with his colleagues, has just had laid before him a request for education in French in the Maillardville area.

Some 6,000 to 8,000 French speakers live in this area, which is connected with the Coquitlam school district.

Mr. Murphy apparently received the request with some sympathy, and he added for the benefit of journalists that the board was going to study this brief submitted by the French-Canadian Federation of British Columbia, then would contact Victoria. He said he had a feeling the board was going to be tht centre of attention of all French-Canadians.

Much Interested

We would say to Mr. Murphy that surely French Canada is very much interested in what is going to happen. We will not be indifferent to the attitude that he adopts. Far from it. For us it is a test that will indicate the good faith and good will of our English compatriots of that Pacific province.

Mr. Murphy can be assured that a refusal on his part or of his board will produce a quite painful reaction in Quebec, homeland and heart of French Canada. It will please only the separatists, who will see another confirmation of their thesis holding that no future exists for the French language outside Quebec.

It could be that the majority does not look too kindly on the institution of French classes within its territory. But a minority of 6,000 to 8,000 is not a negligible number.

It is up to the trustees to make this understood, if need be, by the rest of the population. It is up to them to assume their full responsibility.

John Condit of The Vancouver Sun, in an article dated Nov. 28, presents Mr. Murphy to us as a man of generous spirit. In an interview accorded Mr. Condit, Mr. Murphy is quoted as saying he believed French-Canadians should have this instruction; that he sees a national issue at stake.

These remarks are of a kind to make us somewhat optimistic.

French-English Relations Cause Growing Concern

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

The apparent turmoil in Quebec, created by separatists, General de Gaulle's interference and other elements, has only slightly increased public apprehension over French-English relations during the past year. But there has been a progressive rise in concern since 1963.

Today the same ratio of people (27 per cent) think feelings are better, as thought this way in 1966 and 1963. However, 38 per cent feel relations between French and English-speaking Canadians are worse, as compared to 33 per cent last year and 27 per cent five years ago.

As has been shown in other related surveys, the people of Quebec are the optimists in regard to French-English relations. A third of the population (34 per cent) in that province say feelings are better and 28 per cent say worse.

In the west, on the other hand, less than a quarter of the voters (22 per cent) think feelings are better and almost half the people (46 per cent) say worse. Ontario citizens fall between these two regions—26 per cent say better, 40 per cent worse.

The question: "Do you think that today the feelings between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians are better or worse than they were, say five years ago?"

Why a used Mercedes-Benz is a better buy than a new car of a lesser breed

Let's start with new cars. Some cost less—and deliver less. Some cost more largely because of their frills and finery. A Mercedes-Benz costs more because more engineering effort and money goes into building it.

That's why Mercedes-Benz cars stay good to look at, sound sweet and right, and feel good to drive—year after year.

And that's why buying a used Mercedes-Benz makes a lot of sense. Specially to the man who appreciates the inner satisfactions of driving a beautifully engineered car.

Make sense to you? If so, drop in and see us. We've got an excellent selection.

CRISIS IN CANADA, BRITAIN

Queen Notes Troubled Times

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The Queen in her Christmas message to Britain and the Commonwealth Monday made an implicit appeal to separatists in Canada when she urged Canadians to work together for the greater national interest as the pioneers of Confederation did 100 years ago.

"Canada has every reason to feel proud of her achievements in the last 100 years," the Queen told Britons in her annual radio and television address, made this year from Buckingham Palace.

"Confederation as a formal act could have achieved little by itself. Only the determined will of a great variety of individuals and groups to cooperate for the greater national interest could have breathed life into the creation of the Fathers of Confederation.

"The future of Canada as a great a nd prosperous country depends just as much on the will of the present generaton to work together. It is for them to continue and expand the process of development which began with such high hopes 100 years ago."

SPEAKS 7½ MINUTES

The Queen took an unusual step in beginning her 7½-minute speech, recorded 10 days ago, with a specific reference to Canada and its Centenary, which she described as "a milestone in history" for the Commonwealth.

Recalling her visit to Ottawa with Prince Philip in July, she said the Centennial celebrations were "a most moving occasion."

The impression she took away from Expo 67 was the degree of unity in outlook among the diverse nations and creeds of the world.

The Queen, whose broadcast was made for the first time in color television, wore a bright yellow dress of wild silk with pearls and a diamond brooch in the shape of a wattle plant, the Australian emblem.

In her speech, twice as long as usual, she told Britons their country faced formidable problems, "but let there be no doubt that she will overcome them."

CITES EXAMPLE

The Queen singled out the heroic exploit of Sir Francis Chichester in his lone voyage to Australia and back as an inspiration and example to the British people.

To the British in their economic troubles she urged an emulation of the Chichester spirit.

"Great national events can stir the imagination," the Queen said, "but so can individual actions."

"I am sure that the reason his great feat of seamanship so warmed our hearts was that we recognized in his enterprise and courage the very qualities which have played so large a part in British history and which we in these islands need just as much today and for the future."

The Queen saisd she was delighted that contacts between Commonwealth countries grow at all levels and particularly in sport.

EXTENDS GREETINGS

The Queen concluded:

"Modern communications make it possible for me to talk to you in your homes and to wish you a Merry Christmas and a very happy New Year.

"These techniques of radio and television are modern but the Christmas message is timeless. You may have heard it very often but in the end, no matter what scientific progress we make, the message will count for nothing unless we can achieve real peace and encourage genuine goodwill between individual people, and the nations of the world.

"Every Christmas I am sustained and encouraged by the happiness and sense of unity which comes from seeing all the members of my family together. I hope and pray that, with God's help, this Christmas spirit of family unity will spread and grow among our Commonwealth family of nations."

Day Had Added Significance As Centennial Year Nears End

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said in his Christmas message Monday that 1967 has put Canada's national problems in sharper focus and they can be settled "with that goodwill, tolerance and understanding that is the very essence of this season of Christmas."

Speaking on nationwide radio and television networks after the Queen's annual Christmas address, Mr. Pearson said Christmas this year has an added meaning because of Centennial year.

"That's been a wonderful and exciting year," he said.

"Except for a noisy few who look back to division and discord instead of forward to strength and unity, this year has given all Canadians a new sense of pride in their country and new hope for its future.

"This has served to put our national problems in sharper focus than has ever been the case before.

"These problems aren't disappearing. They're not going to solve themselves.

"But they now stand clearly defined for all to see and for all of us to tackle and settle with that goodwill, tolerance and understanding that is the very essence of this season of Christmas."

Mr. Pearson said that in that spirit, Canadians should rise above their difficulties, divisions, pettiness and pride to resolve national problems which, "after all, are so small in the context of this world's troubles and tragedies."

Avoid the Soft Life, Pope's Yule Message

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul remained inside Vatican City this Christmas to pray for peace and bestow his traditional blessing on the world. He appealed for man to avoid the easy life and seek peace in true Christian values.

The Roman Catholic pontiff, now 70, skipped his usual Christmas procedure of saying one of his three masses in a church outside the Vatican. This was passed over this year apparently to ease the strain on the Pope who underwent a prostate operation last month.

From the front balcony of St. Peter's Basilica the Pope gave his annual Christmas noonday speech and bestowed his blessing "Urbi et Orbi"—to the city of Rome and the world.

He addressed a crowd of 200,000 standing in St. Peter's Square under a heavy, grey sky.

MET WITH JOHNSON

He did not speak of Vietnam as he did last Christmas Day. Nor did he mention his Saturday meeting with U.S. President Johnson to discuss ways of ending the war.

He warned that the modern scramble for pleasure does not bring inner peace.

This was the fifth Christmas of Paul's reign.

His midnight mass this year, in the Sistine Chapel, was for diplomats accredited to the Vatican.

He said morning mass in his private chapel. Then he celebrated another in St. Peter's Basilica just before going at noon to the loggia overlooking the square.

As he spoke in Italian to the crowd in the square he looked fatigued. But his voice was firm and strong.

He said man needs Christian values to find peace within himself.

LEFTISTS DEMONSTRATE

An anti-American demonstration erupted in St. Peter's Square Sunday just as Pope Paul stepped to his apartment window to wish the world a Merry Christmas.

Some 40 to 50 young leftists, still rankled over the Pope's meeting with President Johnson at the Vatican Saturday night, went into action as the pontiff stepped to the window at noon for his regular Sunday blessing.

A dozen of them unfurled an eight-yard-long sign reading "Free Vietnam" and began to chant. Others hoisted signs reading "Stop the Bombings," "Don't Shake Hands with Somebody Who Kills Babies," and "Johnson—Christmas Is Not Your Day and 1968 Is Not Your Year."

Policemen in the square quickly sifted the demonstrators out of the crowd of 10,000 pilgrims. A few resisted and were placed in custody.

There was no violence.

REFERS TO ARMS RACE

Peace was the theme of the Pope's Christmas message to the world Saturday and of a major speech to his cardinals Friday.

In his Christmas message the Pope urged an end to what he called the fatal risks of the modern arms race. He appealed to the world for a new moral order as essential for achieving peace.

"Peace of heart does exist, it is possible, it is near at hand and today it is offered to us as the great gift of Christmas," he said. "Indeed this is our wish, this today is our message."

The speech did not deal with the war in Vietnam or with any other specific conflict. But in the Pope's speech to the College of Cardinals Friday he pleaded for an end to the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and offered himself as a mediator between Washington and Hanoi.

ANOTHER 62 HIROSHIMA VICTIMS DIED

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — The Hiroshima atom bomb hospital announced Monday that 62 of its patients died this year of ailments believed caused by the after effects of the 1945 U.S. atomic bomb blast.

The hospital said 35 persons died of variosious types of cancer, including leukemia, and 27 of other diseases including hardening of the liver.

The hospital accepts only patients who were exposed to the bomb explosion. It reported a total of 531 of its patients have died since the hospital opened in September, 1956.

WITH BRIDE

Injured Doctor Flown Home

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. William Holland, 41, a Kitchener physician crippled by spinal injuries suffered when he hit his head while diving in Hawaii three months ago, was flown back to Canada with his Japanese bride Monday.

Dr. Holland was on his honeymoon in Hawaii after marrying Masako, a 30-year-old nurse he met during two years as an anesthetist at a Singapore hospital.

Masako was on the beach watching when Dr. Holland raced into the surf and dived. He misjudged the water depth and struck his head on the bottom.

Dr. Holland was left paralyzed from the neck down. His brother, Dr. John B. Holland of Ayr, Ont., flew to Hawaii to help his sister-in-law, who speaks little English.

With the assistance of the March of Dimes, funds were raised to pay for accommodation on a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane. Six seats were removed, to make room for a bunk.

An ambulance met the plane at Toronto Monday and drove Dr. Holland home. He was accompanied by his sister, Mary Higgins of London.

"I am very happy to be here," said Masako Holland. "I look forward to seeing Bill's parents and family."

Dr. John Holland said his brother had made some progress in the last month, and now can move his hands a little.

Grit Hopefuls Get Invitation

WINNIPEG (CP) — Declared candidates for the national Liberal leadership will be invited to address the western Liberal policy conference here Jan. 21-22, Manitoba Liberal leader Gil Molgat has announced.

He said the invitation is on behalf of the Liberal leaders in the four western provinces.

Each person who has announced his candidacy prior to the conference will be asked to make a 10-minute address, Mr. Molgat said, and the order of speaking will be decided by draw.

The western policy conference, a follow-up to a similar meeting in Saskatoon last year, was called before Prime Minister Pearson announced his intention to resign.

Heart Not Buried

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—The second-hand heart that sustained Louis Washkansky for 19 days until his death from pneumonia Thursday was not buried with him Friday, say medical sources. The heart, transplanted from the body of automobile accident victim Denise Darvall Dec. 3, was retained for further detailed scientific examination.

Carrier Fire Kills 3

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — Fire broke out aboard the 38,000-ton U.S. aircraft carrier Kearsarge here Saturday soon after its arrival from Vietnam to observe the Christmas holidays. Three crewmen were killed and two others were injured.

Frosting Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has asked manufacturers of an aerosol spray used to frost cocktail glasses to place a warning on the label that inhaling the spray could cause death. Although reports of such deaths appeared more than two months ago, the commission said, the products continue to be advertised and sold without any warning.

Fewer See Bethlehem In War Aftermath

BETHLEHEM (AP)—Thousands of pilgrims crowded into Bethlehem Monday and celebrated Christmas in this Judean hilltop town where the New Testament says Christ was born.

Israeli soldiers, who had protected Bethlehem Sunday, withdrew despite an act of sabotage that the army blamed on Arabs. The Arab guerrilla organization, El Fatah, had threatened to strike at the holy shrines at Christmas.

Live radio broadcasts of a midnight Mass by the patriarch of Jerusalem were interrupted about 1 a.m. Monday when telephone cables connecting Bethlehem with Jerusalem were cut. Service was restored shortly thereafter.

After midnight mass, the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. Alberto Gori, led a procession and placed an effigy of the Infant Jesus in a grotto which Christians believe marks the spot where the Christ child lay in a manger.

BELLS PEAL

As dawn broke on a cold and gloomy day over Bethlehem, bells pealed from the Greek Orthodox Basilica of the Nativity to begin Orthodox services. Then low masses were celebrated at the Roman Catholic Franciscan Chapel of the Manger in the grotto beneath the Orthodox Basilica.

About 9,000 pilgrims were in town, far below the 20,000 expected. Few Christian Arabs from Israel were on hand.

Many Arabs used the occasion to visit friends and relatives in what was then West Jordan. But since the June War between Israel and the three Arab states—Jordan, Egypt and Syria—the barbed-wire barriers have been cleared away, and Arabs are free to go anywhere in Israeli-occupied Jordan.

The first Christmas celebrated in Bethlehem under Israeli rule was marred somewhat by petty bickering.

Local Arabs had asked Msgr. Gori not to recognize Israeli authorities by participating in the celebrations. He went ahead anyway.

RAP ISRAELI GESTURE

Even Israeli attempts to brighten the gloomy outlook backfield. Arabs claimed the six Christmas trees the Israelis gave the town was an insult because they symbolized the star of David's six points. Others said they represented the six days in the June war.

But in some quarters the Israelis and their organizing of Christmas won grudging praise.

Bethlehem Mayor Elias Bandak, a Christian Arab, said:

"Things went smoothly, and I have no complaints. I believe the weather had a bad effect on the number of pilgrims. I think it was unfortunate that continuous rain was forecast. And it never rained, but the pilgrims didn't come, either."

There were some complaints from pilgrims about the gun-toting Israelis patrolling inside the Holy City Sunday.

'D' Discoverer Dies

MADISON, Wis (AP)—Harry Steenbock, 81, the man who "trapped the sun" by discovering Vitamin D in 1924, died Monday of complications following a heart attack.

TORCH PARADE HITS BONN STAND

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Police broke up a student torchlight demonstration against the Vietnam war outside the church where Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger was attending Christmas Mass early Monday.

The disturbance forced Kiesinger, his wife and son to leave Bonn's Muenster Roman Catholic Cathedral by a side door.

The demonstrators said they had come to protest what one called "the sanctimoniousness of the chancellor, praying in the church and at the same time supporting American policies and death in Vietnam."

CONFERENCE HERE

New Look Taken At Catholic Role

New decrees presented by the Roman Catholic Church in its second Vatican Council are making themselves felt in Victoria.

A meeting to consider the changes in religious life suggested by Vatican II is now in session at St. Ann's Academy.

Fifty-two delegates from B.C. and Alaska, representing 286 Sisters of St. Ann, are attending the meeting, called a chapter, which will continue until Jan. 1.

"This is a history-making event," said Sister Frieda Marie, director of resident students at the Academy in Victoria. "We are reassessing what our role in the Christian community is and what we are saying, and how we can be most effective in saying what we really are."

"The emphasis is on living in our own religious community as Sisters of St. Ann, whose diverse personalities and professions can come to loving harmony and be supportive of one another," she explained.

TOWARD AUTONOMY

"We can then go from this strength to help all members of the community make mankind of which we feel we are a part.

"We feel this is a move toward autonomy for our houses in the province and it will work its way down to local levels."

There are 27 houses of the Sisters of St. Ann in B.C. The sisters working at teaching, nursing, administering and other skills.

The delegates have prepared six papers which they will present on research, evaluation and direction; consecration; community; development of the person; mission and authority.

They will discuss the papers and vote on their acceptance or rejection.

The chapter, which was opened by a mass conducted by Bishop Remi De Roo, will then elect delegates to carry the thinking of the present session to a general chapter in Lachine, Quebec in June.

HEY, LOOK THE WORLD'S STILL HERE!

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters)—About 50 persons poked their heads out of a lead-covered nuclear shelter near here early Monday and found to their surprise the world had not ended.

The 50 belonged to the Orthon sect, which believes in the god Orthon. They claimed he told them a nuclear war would break out at Christmas and only the righteous would survive and live a new life in a new world.

Liberation Factions Plan Merger

CAIRO (UPI) — Long-feuding rival Palestine liberation movements today were reported weighing unified guerrilla operations to intensify the armed struggle against Israel.

The newspaper Al Ahram said representatives of the various organizations were meeting in Cairo "to explore the possibilities of bringing about unified Palestinian action, mobilizing all potential guerrilla groups and escalating the armed struggle in the occupied territory."

The move came shortly after the resignation of Ahmed Shukeiry, long-time leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Slain in Argument

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP)—Robert John Spooner, 27, of Vancouver, was shot to death Sunday during an argument with a neighbor at a Carthage trailer court. Charged with second-degree murder is Clyde Melton Boyer, 37, of Carthage. He is being held in jail in lieu of $15,000 bond.

WATER OVERFLOWED from Snohomish River east of Everett to make Christmas a bleak day for lowland residents along the river. Authorities asked mass evacuation but most stayed in their homes.

Christmas Evacuation Shunned Despite Snohomish Flood Fear

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI)—The Snohomish River crested at its all-time high here early today while weary dike workers battled to prevent extensive lowland flooding.

The flood was held responsible for at least one death. Three minor roads in the area were under water and impassable. Water swirled over the tops of cars and nine families were evacuated in the Snohomish area, east of here.

A fleet of trucks loaded with sandbags rumbled through the night as about 100 dike workers labored to reinforce and build up 23 miles of retainer.

Burt Baker, 66, a rancher, suffered a fatal heart attack Christmas Day while pushing his house trailer out of the water's path two miles east of here.

At 6 a.m. the Snohomish was at 30.17 feet, rising slowly. It was expected to crest at 31 feet.

The highest previous reading was 30.10 feet in the mid-1940s.

A light drizzle fell in the area and the river moved upward under the impetus of melting snow from unseasonably warm weather.

Authorities had asked more than 200 families to evacuate their homes on Christmas Day but only about three dozen responded.

Gilbert Bean, public information officer of the rescue corps, said 10,000 sandbags had been trucked into the area, along with about two dozen dump trucks, a tractor and a road grader for use by the dike crews.

Some dikes were reported crumbling, but Bean said there was no widespread collapse.

Bean said 600 acres were inundated Monday evening when a dike burst on Eby Island, east of Everett, sending water gushing over the lowland.

In spite of that, almost all of the 125 families located on the island refused to budge.

Snohomish county search and rescue units evacuated nine families in the Snohomish city area. A few other families in the flooded area left themselves.

Bean said late Monday that some persons in a 27-unit trailer camp east of Snohomish were starting to pull out the units which had wheels, while volunteers built sandbag barricades.

Throughout the remainder of western Washington, rain, though diminished, continued and there was scattered flooding. However, it was minor compared with that occurring in the Snohomish Valley.

Trouble for World And Johnson, Too

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—The world will come to the edge of a nuclear war during 1968 but the clash will be averted, says Mario Carino Pugliese, most popular of Argentine astrologers.

At the end of 1966, Carino predicted spacemen's deaths, Argentine floods, spectacular progress in heart surgery and internal difficulties in Britain, all of which came true.

His forecast for 1968 says the United States will go through one of its most difficult times and President Johnson may not be able to overcome the setbacks that lie in store for him.

"Two well-known European statesmen will disappear and changes will take place in the Roman Catholic Church which are bound to amaze the world," he adds.

Carino says the first manned trip to the moon will take place during 1968, with Russia likely to lead the way. But he says the results of the adventure are unclear to him.

He also forecasts spectacular progress in rocketry and surgery.

'Roadside Justice' Follows Next

The provincial government plans to expand its campaign to treat traffic offenders as rule breakers rather than criminals.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last week said legislation will be introduced at the session beginning Jan. 25 to widen the trail blazed this year by the "roadside suspension" law which gave police power to use their own discretion in dealing with drinking drivers directly.

He would not outline the coming legislation except to describe it as a concerted effort to remove traffic cases from the courtrooms if no loss of life, injury or serious damage was involved.

However, it is known that the government has been examining an Ontario system of demerits which could lead to licence suspension for traffic infractions.

A possible modification could give policemen discretionary power to award the demerits directly for less serious violations with drivers retaining the right to have the matter taken to court.

"What concerns us is that all motor vehicle violations involve so many people in the toils of criminal courts for what is essentially an infraction of traffic pattern or regulation," said Mr. Bonner.

The solution, he said, is to allow police discretion to handle such violations as civil misdemeanors rather than cases requiring adjudication in criminal courts.

Jealous Prisoners Stage Hunger Strike

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—The jealousy of long-term prisoners over the applause lavished on one of their number for his efforts as an artist led to a hunger strike which disrupted Auckland prison recently.

A magistrate inquiring into the incident has pinpointed the art success as the main cause of the hunger strike among maximum security prisoners.

The aspiring artist is George Wilder, New Zealand's most notable prison escaper, who has on several cases broken out from top security detention. On more than one occasion he has eluded pursuit for lengthy periods and maintained himself in forest country.

Some time ago he became interested in art and displayed considerable aptitude. Some of his paintings were seen by intellectuals, several of whom launched a campaign to persuade the authorities to permit Wilder greater facilities for his art work.

Actually another maximum security prisoner has also shown talent as an artist, but his work has had much less attention.

As a result of the campaign on Wilder's behalf, several of his pictures were published in the press.

The magistrate conducting the inquiry found that "unfortunate publicity" for Wilder's paintings caused much jealousy among security inmates.

Bi-Bi Report Angers Ukrainians

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Ukrainian Canadian Committee, disappointed with the first report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, is preparing a white paper on the report.

"We are completely ignored, like second-class citizens," Dr. Basil Kushnir of Winnipeg, committee president, said in an interview today.

He said the committee, in its white paper, "wants to safeguard our language and our culture by constitutional guarantees."

Dr. Kushnir said he hopes the white paper will be ready before the federal-provincial constitutional conference in February.

Better Deal With RCMP, Says Reeve

NORTH COWICHAN — Amalgamation of North Cowichan and Duncan could, in the near future, bring together a total population of more than 15,000.

Reeve Donald Morton made this point in discussing renewal of the municipal contract with the RCMP.

North Cowichan is due to sign a two-year police contract in April.

He said at the end of those two years, if the population is more than 15,000, the district must make up its mind about whether it wants its own police force.

He said the municipal council is now paying for the equivalent of 14 or 15 RCMP staff.

But if council established a force of this number on its own it would not be as well policed as the RCMP service also includes the senior detachment NCO and the highway patrol.

Reeve Morton said, "We have discussed the idea of our own force in a casual way, once or twice, but the weight of evidence seems to be in favor of retaining the RCMP."

NEW BRIDGE OPENED AT SOOKE

Santa arrived early in Sooke this year.

The new Sooke River Bridge opened without fanfare Friday, in time to handle pre-Christmas traffic.

It replaces the wooden structure which was built just after the Second World War and because it handled only one lane of traffic safely, has earned a name as a bottleneck over the past 20 years.

'GLOWING LIKE AN EMBER' SHIP FIRE KILLS 3 CREW

NEW YORK (AP) — "We could see the fire in all the portholes all the way up the superstructure," said one fireman describing the blaze in the Norwegian freighter Dianet that claimed the lives of three crew members and injured 18 others. "It was glowing like an ember."

Fire officials estimated the blaze early Monday may have started as much as 30 minutes before an alarm was sounded and fireboats dispatched to the vessel's Hudson River anchorage off 87th street.

At Ostrica, La., a Mississippi River port south of New Orleans, eight sailors were burned early Monday when a string of barges rammed the Gulf Supreme and the 18,000-ton Gulf Oil Co. tanker was ripped by explosions. Two of the men were in serious condition.

New York fire officials said the freighter disaster was preceded by a rollicking Christmas Eve party. Said one:

"You can get an idea what kind of a party it was by looking in the waste bins on deck. There must have been 200 or 300 empty cans of beer there."

Two of the injured—one in critical condition—remained in hospital today.

The Dianet arrived in New York Dec. 17 and had been at anchor waiting for a berth to discharge her 8,020-ton cargo of sugar.

HEAVY FLOODING IN WEST GERMANY

Loosened Land Mines New Threat

BONN (Reuters) — Hundreds of West Germans driven from their homes by Christmas floods today were warned their houses might be threatened by East German landmines when the waters subside.

Raging Christmas eve floods caused by melting snow and heavy rains inundated minefields along the border. Authorities said mines washed loose in the floods could be carried by torrential streams far into West Germany.

Police warned the public to beware of wooden containers and plate-shaped plastic mines.

Wide areas of South Germany were still under water. But authorities expected swollen rivers which swept across highways and fields in Franconia, the Saarland, Hesse, Westphalia, Lower Saxony and the East German province of Thuringia to recede today.

U.S. troops worked throughout Christmas helping Germans dam the River Main.

The Rhine River rose well over its normal level and overflowed at Bonn. A five-year-old boy was drowned when he fell from his uncle's shoulders while crossing a footbridge.

Common Market Members Facing Stormy Future

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS (AP)—The European Common Market is in trouble as it completes its 10th year, and not only because French President de Gaulle vetoed talks with Britain.

The veto may cause trouble enough. Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany has threatened a slowdown on matters of special interest to de Gaulle. They include trade deals with countries of the Mediterranean basin and Africa, neighbors and former colonies of France.

Failure by the Common Market to act would weaken French influence in the whole turbulent area.

Other Common Market leaders, angered by the veto, are talking about new contracts with Britain, leaving out France. They are especially interested in new scientific products and projects Britain's heavy spending on research makes this kind of co-operation attractive.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain has proposed a "technological community" to foster it.

FEARS FOR FUTURE

"There is no future for Europe," he said, "or for Britain, if we allow American business and American industry so to dominate the strategic growth industries of our individual countries that they, and not we, are able to determine the pace and direction of Europe's industrial advance."

Wilson wanted Britain's scientific assets to be a kind of dowry that Britain would bring along on joining the Common Market, strengthening the new union at a weak point. Now it seems plain the wedding cannot take place so long as de Gaulle stays in power.

Industrially applied science will remain a weak point in the Common Market.

The weakness is being brought out in the course of a merger that began last summer between the Common Market proper and two sister organizations that deal with important sectors of industry—coal, steel and nuclear energy. All three have the same six members—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Aim of the Common Market is to unify the economies of its members. Its most successful work has been done on breaking down the tariff walls among them and getting them together on farm policy.

The European Coal and Steel Community was the first to be formed. It was considered a big step toward a united Europe when it went to work in 1952.

The Continent still was suffering from the effects of the Second World War. The community received powers to deal with the shortages of 1952, not with the surpluses of 1968.

Times have changed. Plastics, aluminum and newer metals, petroleum products, natural gas and nuclear energy have made coal and steel a lot less basic than they used to be.

Coal has become an especially weak industry in Europe.

The steel industry, not so badly off as coal, is suffering throughout the world because more steel is being produced than can be sold. There is an obvious thing to do: Cut production. But European community has not the power. Nor has it the money to give the steel away, if anyone should recommend that doubtful solution.

EURATOM EMERGES

The European Atomic Energy Community, better known as Euratom, came into existence at the same time as the Common Market, in 1958. Its aim was to have the six member nations co-operate in building a peaceful nuclear industry that could compete with that of the U.S.

It has not been especially successful.

Euratom officials also see its future endangered by U.S. President Johnson's eagerness to get a treaty signed with the Soviet Union to halt the spread of nuclear weapons. The chief issue remaining is how to inspect peaceful nuclear plants to see that no uranium or plutonium is sneaked away for use in weapons. Euratom has its own system of doing this, but the Russians dislike it.

If Euratom's inspection system is superseded, it loses another reason for existence.

U.S. Steel Profits Hit Slump

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The U.S. steel industry found it easier to make steel than money in 1967.

The industry poured 126,000,000 tons—down from the record 134,100,000 in 1966—but still comfortably above the once long-sought goal of 100,000,000 tons for the fifth straight year.

However, sales slipped 8 per cent and profits fell even harder—off 31 per cent for the 23 producers.

When all the figures are in, profits should be around $200,000,000 less than 1966, making it even tougher for the industry to support its planned $2,000,000,000-a-year capital spending program.

Analysts predict a good year in 1968 with an especially strong first half.

Auto inventory orders alone for January are 30 per cent above normal. Some of it is attributed to strengthening market conditions as well as strike-hedge buying in anticipation of a possible mid-summer walkout by the United Steelworkers Union.

Although earnings improved in the fourth quarter, final figures coming in later won't offset the dismal nine-month profit picture.

Production-curtailing snowstorms in February, problems in bringing new equipment into use, and strikes in the auto and construction industries forced analysts at one point to revise downward their 126,000,000-ton production forecast.

STRIKE SPREAD TERROR

A two-month steel haulers' strike in the fall spread terror on the highways in the U.S. steelmaking centres, delaying shipments at a time when demand for steel was beginning to head up.

Adding to the squeeze on profits were steadily rising labor and material costs and foreign imports.

Nearly 11,000,000 tons flowed in, up slightly from the record 10,700,000 in 1966.

Four-Day Layoff For CPR Workers

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway said today 4,580 men have been laid off for four days in railway repair and maintenance shops across Canada.

The closures, said to be due to a continuing decline in freight traffic, affected the company's Angus shops in Montreal, Weston shops in Winnipeg and Ogden shops in Calgary.

Out of work for the period Dec. 26-29 are 2,450 men in Montreal, 1,350 in Winnipeg and 780 in Calgary.

AS B.C. UNIONS DRAFT 1968 DEMANDS

Shorter Work Week Under Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor leaders say several major unions in British Columbia will negotiate for a four-day work week during 1968 in a shift of emphasis from pay increases to working hours.

Several unions, mainly in the construction and manufacturing industries, are reported mapping contract demands based on a four-day, 36-hour week. Others will seek 36 hours spread over five days.

Most of the 1,064 unions in the province now have five-day weeks of 40 to 44 hours.

The Amalgamated Meatcutters' Union has already won a four-day week contract with B.C. supermarkets.

Ray Haynes, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour, which represents 134,000 of the 260,000 organized workers in the province, says the rise in the cost of living during the next 12 months will determine just how much emphasis unions place on shorter hours.

"The work week could replace wages as the number one issue if the cost of living index holds relatively firm."

Mr. Haynes says 1967 was generally good for the trade union movement in B.C. There were few major strikes, and pay increases averaged 8 per cent.

UNITY IS PROBLEM

Labor unity would be the most serious problem facing the trade union movement in 1968.

"We need the increased co-operation and co-ordination of unions involved in bargaining or strike situations. We also need fewer unions—elimination of overlapping jurisdictions and less quarrelling among the unions that remain."

The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers had merged with the United Steelworkers of America to give the labor movement a badly needed morale boost. There were indications of several other mergers, among them the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers with the United Papermakers, and the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada with the International Woodworkers of America.

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada had previously broken away from the international brotherhood, reflecting an upsurge of nationalism among some Canadian unionists in recent years.

The Canadian group and the international have been locked in bitter jurisdictional battles across the province — most notably in Nanaimo where the Canadian body took certification at the big Harmac pulp mill away from the international brotherhood several months ago.

MEETING BUGGED

The dispute produced a celebrated incident when the international bugged with electronic eavesdropping devices a Vancouver hotel room being used by the Canadian group. A royal commission was set up to investigate.

Pat O'Neal, Mr. Haynes's predecessor as secretary of the B.C. labor federation, admitted he authorized the bugging. He later resigned all executive offices he held with the labor organization.

Most of the serious labor disputes in 1967 involved unions outside the federation, as in the case of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

One such union, the United Fishermen and Allied Workers, became involved in a jurisdictional war in Prince Rupert with the Deep Sea Fishermen's Union.

Two United Fishermen leaders went to jail for violating B.C. Supreme Court injunctions limiting strike activities. They are among 17 B.C. labor officials convicted of contempt of court since the fall of 1966.

The dispute tied up trawl and halibut operations out of Prince Rupert for four months. United Fishermen engaged in strikes against firms employing Deep Sea personnel but finally called them off when it became apparent they couldn't win.

The only other major dispute during the year involved the northern and southern interior divisions of the IWA which went on strike against timber companies in October demanding pay increases averaging 50 cents an hour on top of a $2.26 hourly base rate. The union wanted wage parity with the 26,000 members of its coast division.

Net Income Jumps

NEW YORK (CP) — General Mills Inc. had a net income of $16,508,000 or 99 cents a share for the six months ended Nov. 26, compared with $14,957,000 or 89 cents in the same six months of last year.

Cowboys to Face Packers in Final

Speedy Hayes Cuts Loose As Dallas Kayos Browns

By The Canadian Press

Green Bay Packers beat Los Angeles Rams 28-7 Saturday and Dallas Cowboys shattered Cleveland Browns 52-14 Sunday to win their National Football League conference titles and advance to the NFL final next Sunday.

The Packers defence stole the thunder from the Rams' famed "Fearsome Foursome" and with help from Bart Starr and Travis Williams humbled Los Angles to win the league's Western Conference championship.

Bullet Bob Hayes used his blinding speed to lead the Cowboys to their crushing victory over the Browns and into the Eastern Conference championship.

Dallas will meet Green Bay for the NFL title at Green Bay next Sunday, a repeat of last year's final.

ROOKIE SCORES 2 TDs

In Saturday's game, Starr was given almost impeccable protection by his own offensive line and riddled the proud Rams' defence while Williams, a rookie, scored two touchdowns, one on a 46-yard burst from scrimmage.

But it was the Packers' defence which put the Packers in the final.

Led by tackles Henry Jordan and Willie Davis and middle linebacker Ray Nitschke, the Packers time and again savagely stopped Ram thrusts deep into Packer territory.

And despite three fumble recoveries and a pass interception, the Rams were able to score only one touchdown.

Roman Gabriel, who had carried the Cinderella Rams into the playoff by completing 18 of 22 passes against Baltimore Colts the previous Sunday, was frustrated by a relentless pass rush.

RAMS SCORE FIRST

The Rams, who saw their eight-game winning streak and title dreams go up in smoke in the 20-degree cold, drew first blood when Gabriel teamed with Bernie Casey on a 29-yard touchdown pass play in the first period.

Minutes later, the Rams appeared poised to break the game open as Lamson picked off a Starr pass at the Packer 34 and returned it to the 10. But the momentum swung suddenly and savagely to the Packers.

On a third-down play from the five, Jordan smothered Gabriel at the 12. The Rams' Bruce Gosset attempted a field goal on fourth down but linebacker Dave Robinson deflected the ball. It was all Green Bay after that.

Tom Brown raced 39 yards on the next play, Williams scooted 46 yards around end for the tying touchdown.

A field goal attempt from the Packer 46 was short later in the second period. Willie Wood fielded the ball under the goal posts and struck for 44 yards.

Starr completed 17 of 23 passes for 222 yards. The Rams got to him only one time for a loss of 11 yards.

Gabriel completed 11 of 31 passes and was dropped five times for losses of 44 yards.

HAYES OUTSTANDING

At Dallas, Hayes caught an 86-yard bomb for a touchdown, returned punts 64 and 68 yards to set up two more and took a 36-yard pass that led to a fourth score.

Quarterback Don Meredith ran the Cowboys with precision and had a great passing day, completing 10 of 12 for 212 yards and two touchdowns.

Don Perkins, the pocket-sized Dallas fullback, ripped the Cleveland line for 74 yards and scored twice. His 24-yard run set up the first Cowboy touchdown.

Craig Baynham scored three touchdowns, two with one-yard blasts, the other with a three-yard catch of a Meredith pass.

Cleveland got a touchdown on the last play of the first half, driving 70 yards. Frank Ryan, given a mighty rush by the vicious Dallas front four which trapped him five times, passed 13 yards to Milt Morin for the score.

The second Cleveland touchdown came in the last two minutes on a 75-yard pass from Ryan to Paul Warfield. The Dallas lineup was sprinkled with reserves at the time.

OILERS REACH FINAL

Cellar to Top In One Season

By The Canadian Press

Houston Oilers clobbered Miami's ambitious young Dolphins 41-10 Saturday night and became the first team in history to drive from the cellar to the American Football League Eastern Division championship in a single season.

Striking for long gains on the passes of Pete Beathard and the running of Moyle Granger and Woodie Campbell, the Oilers moved into a 14-2 halftime lead. They simply overran the Dolphins in the last two quarters.

The Oilers now will play Western champion Oakland Raiders Dec. 31 for the AFL crown and a Super Bowl showdown with the National Football League winner at Miami, Fla., Jan. 14.

In league-ending games Sunday, Oakland beat Buffalo Bills 28-21 and New York Jets crushed San Diego Chargers 42-31.

In the championship game at Miami Saturday night, Campbell ran for two first-half touchdowns; Granger added two more in the third quarter on a 48-yard pass from Beathard and a one-yard run. Ken Houston scored a fifth touchdown with a 30-yard pass interception run-back in the kourth.

John Wittenborn completed the rout with 11 points on five conversions and field goals of 29 and 38 yards.

Miami rookie quarterback Bob Griese ran his string of attempted passes without an interception to 122 in the first half, breaking a single season record of 105 by Ed Songin in 1960. But Songin still holds the mark of 128 spanning two seasons.

As the second half opened, the roof fell in on Griese. Olen Underwood and Houston stole two of his passes, and both interceptions resulted in Oiler touchdowns.

JOE NAMATH
. . . breaks record

THROWS 30th TD PASS

Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica threw his 30th touchdown pass—the AFL's best this year—in beating Buffalo but Oakland also scored two touchdowns and Buffalo one on fumble recoveries. The victory gave Oakland a 13-1 won-lost record for the season.

Quarterback Joe Namath passed for four touchdowns and rolled up 343 yards through the air to set a pro football season passing record as he led New York to its win over San Diego.

Namath finished the day with a season total of 4,007 yards, breaking the mark of 3,746 yards set last Sunday by Sonny Jurgensen of the National League Washington Redskins. Namath previously had broken the American League mark.

Bruins Took Long Time To Regain Angry Style

By The Canadian Press

It has taken Boston Bruins 25 years to regain the fighting and playing form that once made them feared adversaries in the National Hockey League.

STAN MIKITA
. . . takes point lead

Now they're the highest-scoring club in the 12-team league and are showing no favoritism in proving, once again, that hockey is a riot in Boston.

The Bruins brought their season goal-total to 112 with a 6-3 victory over Oakland Seals Monday night and engaged in a wild donnybrook after clearing their bench for the fourth time at Boston this season.

The Bruins also shut out New York Rangers 4-0 Saturday, while Montreal edged Oakland 4-2, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-3, Chicago Black Hawks nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2, Pittsburgh Penguins shut out Minnesota North Stars 4-0, and Los Angeles Kings blanked St. Louis Blues 4-0.

Chicago defeated Montreal 3-1, Toronto downed Detroit 3-1, New York beat Philadelphia 3-1, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 4-3, and St. Louis shutout Minnesota 1-0 in other games Monday.

The Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs both emptied their benches for a wild foray Nov. 5 while Boston and Montreal tangled twice, the last time on Dec. 3.

FOND RECOLLECTIONS

The present Boston club compares in many ways to the fighting Bruins of the 1927-28 to 1940-41 era, which produced some of the wildest melees in NHL history while winning 10 championships and three Stanley Cups.

The Bruins of those pre-Second World War years boasted such staunch fistic fantastics as Eddie Shore, Art Chapman and Lionel Hitchman.

Today's tough guys include Ted Green (71 penalty minutes), Derek Sanderson (53) and Don Awrey (102).

Sunday's outbreak was precipitated by a shoving duel between Boston's Ken Hodge and Oakland's Charlie Burns. Players from both clubs poured onto the ice.

SANDERSON GETS PAIR

Burns and team-mate Kent Douglas received major penalties along with Hodge and Green. A minor penalty was also accessed against the Oakland bench.

Glen Sather of the Bruins and Oakland's Alain Caron were tagged also with roughing penalties after throwing punches late in the game.

Meanwhile, rookie Sanderson scored two goals for the Bruins Sunday with Eddie Westfall, Tommy Williams, Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk adding the others. Larry Cahan, Mike Laughton and Billy Hicke were the Oakland marksmen.

It was also the second straight victory for rookie goaltender Andre Gill, called up from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League Saturday night after injuries sidelined regulars Ed Johnston and Gerry Cheevers.

Stan Mikita, defending NHL scoring champion, took over the lead for the first time this season Monday with a goal and an assist for 41 points as Chicago remained two points ahead of Boston for the lead in the Eastern Division. Boston has played three fewer games than the Hawks.

Paul Terbenche and Doug Mohns were the other Chicago marksmen, while Bobby Rousseau accounted for Montreal's only goal.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION TAKES UP CLAY'S CASE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Lawyer Charles Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union disclosed Monday the ACLU has taken the case of former heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay, convicted last June of refusing to be inducted into the U.S. armed forces.

Morgan revealed also in an appeal that a federal hearing officer had recommended Clay be granted conscientious objector's status but this was rejected by the justice department before Clay was tried.

Clay, who claimed objector privilege as a Black Muslim minister under his Muslim name, Muhammed Ali, was convicted in Houston, Tex., after he refused to step forward and take the oath of military service.

He was sentenced to five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine, and stripped of his world title. Clay has appealed and recently asked the ACLU to enter the case after he discharged his lawyer.

DIDN'T INVENT BASEBALL

What is This You Say? Old Abner Was a Fraud?

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Abner Doubleday was a fraud, says a museum curator who wrote his master's thesis on Heritage of the American Game, 1840-1875.

John D. Clever, 34, says that contrary to folklore, Doubleday did not invent baseball.

"The game's historians wonder, not so much if Doubleday ever played baseball, but if he actually saw a game," says Clever.

Clever, a walking repository of baseball history, blames A. G. Spaulding, former professional baseball player and founder of the sporting goods company, for perpetuating "the myth of Doubleday."

Clever will have a sports exhibit on display in January at the Oregon Historical Society. He says that Spaulding formed a special committee in 1907 to investigate the origin of the game.

"It seems that someone from Denver wrote the commission that he had seen Doubleday scribbling the rules of baseball in the sand at Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1839 to show a group of youngsters how to play the game," says Clever.

★ ★ ★

"The special commission appointed by Spaulding jumped at the evidence with little further investigation. Besides, the name Abner Doubleday sounded good for legendary purposes. It had a certain ring to it."

How does Clever think it all started?

Games with ball, bat and bases have been traced back to Egyptian times," he says. "But research has revealed that something close to the early rules of baseball were first published in relation to a French game called Poisson in the 18th century."

Clever, a sportswriter in college, says baseball and football are losing out in their attempts to provide a greater challenge to the spectator and participant. He sees an upsurge in interest in "man-to-man" sports such as soccer and basketball.

"Too many baseball and football fans find themselves paying $5 to go to a game, only to miss the great play on the television instant replay," he said.

"Both sports, due to the commercialization and television gimmickry, are being reduced to parlor games."

Game Wasn't Fun For South Squad

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "All-star games are fun. There's no contact work and the practices are short."

That's what all-American tackle Edgar Chandler of Georgia said last week as the South team prepared for the College All-Star game with the North Christmas Day. But it didn't turn out to be fun for the Rebels.

Scoring in every quarter, the North stampeded the South 24-0 in an unexciting game played before 17,400 fans—the second smallest crowd in the history of the Shrine series for the benefit of crippled children.

Quarterback Greg Landry of Massachusetts led the Yankees on two touchdown drives and the other touchdown came easily after a pass interception by Dennis Coyne deep in South territory.

LEADS NORTH

Landry, outshining Navy's quarterback John Cartwright, directed the North 48 yards to a second period touchdown, and 93 yards to another in the fourth quarter.

He passed two yards to Bob Baltzell of Purdue for the first score and Oscar Reed of Colorado State got the other on a two-yard run.

Dwight Lee of Michigan State ran three yards for a touchdown in the third period after Coyne stole a pass from Mike Livingston of Southern Methodist and returned it 23 yards to the South 11.

COLORADO WINS

In the only other weekend bowl game, Colorado outslugged Miami, Fla., 31-21 behind the running and passing of Bob Anderson.

The quarterback shook off an ankle injury, entered the game just before the end of the first half and rallied the Buffaloes from a 14-7 deficit.

In all, he ran for touchdowns of two and 38 yards, carried 17 times for 108 yards and completed five of 10 passes for 49 more yards.

Sox Big Winner Loser on Slopes

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Lonborg, Boston Red Sox' Cy Young Award winner as the American League's outstanding pitcher, was in hospital today with a knee injury suffered while skiing.

Lonborg, who won 22 regular season games and then added two victories in the World Series, injured his left knee while skiing at Lake Tahoe, Nev., Sunday.

Driven to San Francisco, his knee was placed in a cast and he was flown to Boston, where he entered Sancta Maria Hospital in Cambridge.

"From what we're told, Jim tried to execute a certain manoeuvre on skis," Red Sox physician Dr. Thomas Tierney said.

He has a cast on his left knee and there are reports of torn ligaments.

Lonborg, who took up skiing seriously as a conditioning program this year after hurling the Red Sox to the pennant, signed a 1968 contract recently calling for about $50,000 a year.

MOSCOW (AP) — Karl Pumpurin of the Soviet Union set a light-heavyweight record by pressing 375.9 pounds at a weightlifting meet in Yerevan, Armenia.

BASEBALL TEAM . . . . . SHOWED PROFIT

Soccer Hurts Birds

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore Orioles, who finished tied for sixth in the American League last season after winning the 1966 World Series, incurred a net loss of $57,412 during the fiscal year ending Oct. 31.

But it wasn't the baseball operation that turned profit to loss in one year.

The Orioles, despite an attendance drop of 342,976 in 1967, would have produced a profit had they not fielded a team in the National Professional Soccer League.

The soccer entry, a subsidiary of Baltimore Baseball Club, Inc., won the Eastern Division title in the NPSL's inaugural season. But the operation cost about $250,000.

The net loss was disclosed Saturday in the annual financial statement mailed to stockholders.

No Sparkler in Sun, Szura Hot in Buffalo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

California's sunny climate didn't agree with Joe Szura, but the 29-year-old centre is happy in Buffalo's hockey weather.

Szura, who had a goal and three assists in 23 games with Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League this season, scored twice for Buffalo Bisons Sunday.

The effort powered the Bisons to a 5-2 American Hockey League victory over Springfield Kings and moved Buffalo into second place in the Western Division.

In other weekend action, Baltimore Clippers defeated Providence Reds 5-0 Saturday, while Buffalo tied Cleveland Barons 3-3, Hershey Bears downed Rochester Americans 4-1, and Springfield defeated Quebec Aces 5-3.

Quebec edged Providence 4-2 and Cleveland edged Rochester 3-2 in Monday's games.

Bob Jones also added two goals for Buffalo Sunday. Larry Wilson got the other. Yves Locas scored twice for Springfield.

MENARD ADDS 2

Howie Menard scored twice in Springfield's victory over Quebec, while Locas, Mike Corrigan and Dennis Rathwell added the others. Simon Nolet, Rene Drolet and Jean-Guy Gendron replied.

Don Marcotte, Bob Leiter, Roger DeJordy and Wayne Maxner were Hershey marksmen Saturday. Bob Barlow got the Rochester goal.

Fast Takeoff Helps Rockets To Dump Cats

Kamloops Rockets seemed to have all the answers Saturday but only a few Sunday to emerge with a split in two B.C. Junior Hockey League games played on the West Coast.

The league's second-place team dropped Victoria Cougars 7-2 before 1,635 fans at Memorial Arena on Saturday, bowed by the same score before 2,500 fans in New Westminster on Sunday.

Ray Wallis sparked Royals with three goals and three assists as New Westminster attracted its largest crowd of the season. Barry Wilcox of the Royals added two goals and three assists.

Randy Rota, with his 34th goal of the season, and Ken Begg scored Kamloops' goals.

PLAY WEDNESDAY

Sunday's victory pushed Royals to within a point of third-place Vernon Essos, nine ahead of Victoria.

Royals and Cougars, still lodged in fifth place, square off at the Arena on Wednesday.

A shaky start killed the Cougars Saturday. Kamloops scored on its first shot of the game then ran up a 5-0 lead before Victoria could get untracked.

Ken Tarnow scored three Kamloops goals while Jerry Janicki, Greg Scriver, Ken Lloyd and Jim McNeil added singles. Terry Mitchell and Greg Welderburn scored Victoria's goals.

FINLAY AWAY

Cougars played without the services of defenceman Bill Mainland and goaltender Murray Finlay, both of whom had been given permission to return to their homes in Trail for Christmas.

Finlay's absence was quickly felt as Rockets touched Ron Crahame for some soft goals in the early Kamloops splurge.

Victoria manager Bob Reid indicated Finlay will be back in goal for Wednesday's game.

Centre Greg Gow, nursing a hip injury was not in action for Victoria and Cougars also lost forward Barry Clarke midway in the game. Clarke started but returned to the dressing room after complaining of illness midway in the game.

Despite the lack of manpower, Cougars skated on even terms with Rockets. But Wally Denault's steady goalkeeping never gave the Cats little chance to recover from their demoralizing start.

Denault played what coach Ken Stewart considered "his best game of the season."

Colorado Victor In Bonnet Bowl

HOUSTON (AP)—Quarterback Bob Anderson scored two touchdowns to pull Colorado from behind twice in the second half Saturday as the underdog Buffs scored a 31-21 Bluebonnet college football bowl victory over Miami Hurricanes from Florida.

An ankle injury had prevented Anderson from starting the game but the 200-pounder operated smoothly while directing the pair of 80-yard second half surges.

Clippers Get Scalped In Fling at Cup Play

The Pacific Coast Soccer League cancelled two games Saturday and Mayfair Clippers of the Victoria and District League might have found themselves hoping for the same fate.

Clippers, seventh in the 10-team second division, were sadly outclassed in their bid to throw some thunder into the Province Cup competiton.

Canadian Scottish, first-division leaders, walloped the booting barbers 15-0 in a first-round cup match at Heywood Avenue Park.

The Scots now face Hourigan Kickers next Saturday for the right to represent the District League in the Island zone final against the northern representatives. Victoria's other entry, O'Keefes of the PCSL, have been drawn straight into the 16s of the provincial competition.

The Kicker-Scottish match is also scheduled at Heywood.

John Rostron led the Scottish with five goals. Gil McIlraith booted home four, Franz Van Doesburg added three, Mike Addison two and Stan Wiseman one in posting one of the most one-sided results in Province Cup history.

The PCSL's scheduled matches at Callister and Queen's Park Saturday were postponed because of bad field conditions.

EMERSON, NEWCOMBE TAKE . . . . . OPENING SINGLES MATCHES

Aussies Near Cup Victory

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Needing only one more victory to win the Davis Cup for the 11th time in the last 13 years, Australia sends the world's top doubles combination—John Newcombe and Tony Roche—into action against Spain Wednesday.

And, as if the challengers' problems weren't bad enough, a strained muscle may sideline Luis Arilla, who, with Manuel Santana, represents his country's last, slim hope.

Spanish manager Jaime Bartroli said a final decision about Arilla would be made Wednesday before the match which is scheduled for 10:15 p.m. EST tonight.

MEETS CHALLENGE

In the opening singles rounds today Roy Emerson beat Santana, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 and Newcombe swept past Manuel Orantes 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Actually it was Emerson's victory in the first match that just about destroyed Spain's chances since the 18-year-old Orantes had little chance against Newcombe, generally recognized as the top player in amateur tennis.

But Emerson, sometimes down on his game of late, rose to the occasion in his ninth Davis Cup challenge round singles match and the Spaniard never had a chance.

"Emerson was better than I have ever seen him before," Bartroli said, "While Santana has never played worse in the Davis Cup. Santana was very disappointed because it is not normal for him to lose a match even against someone like Emerson, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1."

Emerson broke Santana's service on the final game of the opening set then ran away with the second set when Santana double faulted away in his first serve. The last set went the same way as the second.

Newcombe also had things his own way against the game but outclassed Orantes. He broke through the Spaniard's first serve in the second and third sets and used his big service to sail away the victory.

NEWCOMBE, TOO!

Tony Roche Planning To Turn Pro

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Australian tennis stars Tony Roche and John Newcombe will play in a professional indoor tennis tournament in Sydney Jan. 23, according to reports today.

Roche and Newcombe are members of the Australian team which started play today in the Davis Cup challenge round against Spain.

The Sydney tournament will carry $39,200 prize money.

Others who are reported to have entered the Sydney tournament are Earl Bucholtz and Dennis Ralston of the United States, South African Cliff Drysdale, Yugoslav Nikki Pilic, Britain's Roger Taylor and France's Pierre Bartez.

RUMORS RAMPANT

It has been reported for weeks that Newcombe almost certainly would join the troupe promoted by American Dave Dixon for a three-year guarantee of $140,000 and Roche for a three-year guarantee of $125,000.

The signing of Newcombe and Roche is expected to take place in Sydney next week after the arrival of Dixon with the American pros.

Australia's other singles star, Roy Emerson, is said to be planning to join the troupe promoted by former U.S. Davis Cup manager George MacCall.

RACING ROUNDUP

Favorite Breezes To Victory

By The Associated Press

Hark the Herald, a short-priced favorite, won the colt-gelding division of the $105,510 Louisiana Futurity in New Orleans Saturday, covering the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5.

The colts and geldings raced for $56,090 while the fillies ran a week ago in two divisions for a total of $49,420.

Hark the Herald was four lengths in front and drawing away at the finish.

At Laurel, Md., Miss Spin won the Monumental Handicap.

The four-year-old filly's narrow victory took the $17,501 winner's share of the $29,425 Maryland fund race. Garth Patterson was the jockey.

Miss Spin gradually wore down Dec de Great on the home turn of the 1 1-16 miles, winning by a neck in 1:44 3-5 over a good track.

Exceedingly, which went off a slight favorite, was third.

At Miami, Jeronia gave jockey Jorge Velasquez his 430th victory of 1967 in the $16,550 City of Coral Gables Handicap at Tropical Park.

Jeronia took the lead at the start and held off a challenge by Country Friend to win by 3¼ lengths, running the six furlongs in 1:10 4-5.

Sikkim, the 2-1 favorite, finished third and Dey Sovereign got fourth in the field of 11.

It was Velasquez' third victory of the day. The slender Panamian now is second only to Willie Shoemaker, who holds the U.S. record of 485 wins in 1953.

Santa Anita Opens

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The extended 75-day season at the Santa Anita Race Track opened today with the $25,000 Palos Verdes Stakes as the feature race of the card.

Former Packer Supervises Refs

CHICAGO (AP) — Appointment of Herman F. Rohrig, 48, veteran collegiate and pro football official and collegiate basketball official, as supervisor of Big Ten Conference football and basketball officials was announced Saturday by Commissioner Bill Reed.

Rohrig, former star halfback for Nebraska and the Green Bay Packers, will be the first man serving in dual capacity in the Big Ten's officiating directorship since 1948.

He replaces Ike Armstrong, recently retired as football supervisor, and Bill Haarlow, who retired last June as basketball supervisor.

Bucks Aiming For Top Spot

By CANADIAN PRESS

Portland Buckaroos will be shooting for first place in the Western Hockey League tonight, after chasing Seattle Totems for most of the season.

The Bucks, just a single point back of Seattle, meet last-place Phoenix Roadrunners in Phoenix, while Seattle is idle.

Both of the leaders had things their own way Monday night, Seattle blasting San Diego 7-2 at Seattle and Portland blanking Vancouver Canucks 3-0 at Portland.

Rookie forward Tom Iannone put on a great Christmas show for a crowd of 3,626 at Seattle as he collected three goals in the first period and one more in the third.

At Portland, Bill Saunders and Rich Van Impe broke open a scoreless battle with two goals in the first three minutes of the third period. Norm Johnson added the other in the final minute.

Portland edged to within one point of Seattle by blasting San Diego 13-1 Saturday night. Portland's goals all were scored consecutively to set a WHL record.

In another Saturday game, Phoenix goaltender Rick Charron juggled the puck into his own net to give Vancouver a 4-3 overtime victory.

FIGHT RESULTS

PORTLAND, Maine — Jimmy McDermott, 169½, Holyoke, Mass., stopped Larry Carney, 175, Lowell, Mass., 1.

TOKYO — Paul Fuji, 143, Japan, knocked out Sado Takagi, 144, Japan, 2.

BIG CROWDS

Leaders Blank Wolves

LONDON (CP) — Winger George Best slammed in two goals Tuesday and sparked Manchester United to a 4-0 victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers—a victory that added up to a great Christmas for the English League soccer leaders.

The win before England's biggest crowd of the season—63,450—put defending champion Manchester United into a three-point lead as the teams prepared to turn into the new year.

Liverpool, which tied 1-1 at Coventry, moved into second place with a better goal average than Manchester City which slumped to a 3-2 away defeat at the hands of West Bromwich Albion.

FANS LOCKED OUT

Manchester United now has 33 points from 23 games followed by Liverpool and Manchester City on the 30 mark.

The program calls for 42 matches—and the league winner automatically qualifies for the money-spinning European Cup of National Champions.

A total of 940,000 fans watched Tuesday's 44 English League matches—the highest attendance for Christmas matches in years.

About 10,000 were locked outside the gates at Manchester United's stadium and the gates were closed at the Newcastle-Sunderland match with 59,420 persons inside the ground.

There were crowds of more than 50,000 at the Chelsea-Arsenal, Everton-Burnley and Sheffield Wednesday-Leeds United games.

A NEW HIGH

MacKenzie Sparks SFU

BURNABY—Brian MacKenzie and his Simon Fraser Clansmen were on the beam Saturday.

It meant bad news for Alaska Methodist University and a single-game team scoring record for Simon Fraser's basketball team. MacKenzie, Clansmen's top scorer recruited from Victoria, dropped in 27 points as they crushed the visitors 118-50.

SFU's previous high was 116, set last season against Mount Royal College of Calgary.

SFU Jayvees defeated Sheldon Jackson College of Sitka 76-70 in a preliminary game.

Veteran Skier Loses Place To Quebecer

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP)—Jerry Rinaldi, one of the original members of Canada's national ski team has been dropped and replaced by newcomer Currie Chapman, 22, of Chelsea, Que.

Coach John Platt said he made the choice at the end of a two-week training course at nearby Red Mountain.

Rinaldi had been on the team about five years as one of its original members.

Platt said he had to bring up Chapman because he had better times than Rinaldi.

Other members of the team that leaves for Europe Dec. 28 and practice for the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, are: Scott and Wayne Henderson, Dan Irwin, Bill McKay, Michele Leman and Peter Duncan.

Cowboy Flanker Suffers Fracture

Letters, Letters, Letters And Then a Special Delivery!

MAYOR-ELECT NEY
. . . pass the lotion

COWICHAN BAY — Duncan letter carrier Arthur Freeman got a special delivery from Korea for Christmas — a three-year-old living doll.

Her name is Lucinda. Since birth she's been known as Han Sook. A crowded Pusan orphanage was her last home.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, who are in their late 40s, have been trying for three years to bring Lucinda here for adoption.

"We have written more letters and we have seen more officials . . . but we seemed to make no headway."

●

Welfare officials in Duncan and Vancouver worked valiantly but as late as two weeks ago "we were at a standstill," says Mr. Freeman.

Then suddenly word arrived that five Korean waifs would be arriving by air at Vancouver and Lucinda was among them.

The Freemans met her and brought her to their home located on a half-acre subdivision lot on Glen Road here and there was a great reception.

The Freemans have raised two adopted children to marriage (Linda who lives at Courtenay and Karen who lives at Kyuquot) and Kenneth, 11, an adopted boy lives at home with Brenda 18 and Susan 16, the Freeman's natural children.

●

Linda and Karen have four children between them and three of them are also spending the holiday with Lucinda.

Lucinda speaks no English but gets her wishes known by hand signals. She got a tea set for Christmas but it's the boys' trucks that catch her eye. Television she ignores.

She's been used to living with 100 other children in a situation where one learns early to protect his own. She still insists on carrying her own possessions with her in little bags.

"It all started when one of the older girls several years ago saw an advertisement in a magazine and the family started helping Lucinda through the Christian Children's Fund. It developed into "the most wonderful Christmas present" says Mr. Freeman.

●

Only one problem developed. When word got around Cowichan and Duncan about the Freeman's generosity, kindly people descended on them with well wishes.

Mr. Freeman knows the rule about nothing stopping a postman on his appointed rounds. But so many people wanted to talk to him while he was burdened with the Christmas rush, he could hardly finish his work.

"People are wonderful," he says.

And that's what people are saying about the Freemans.

LAKE COWICHAN KEEPS ITS FINGERS CROSSED

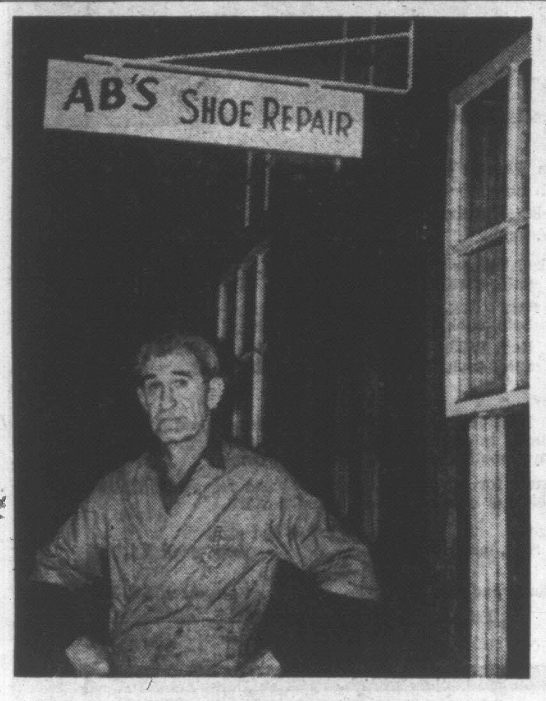

LAKE COWICHAN—For 14 months now this community has not had a traffic death.

And police here are hoping that careful driving and good luck will continue the safety string through the holiday season.

The last road fatality was in September of 1966. Since the snowfall last Thursday there has not even been a minor accident, police said today.

'WHAT IF I WON?'

Ney, Ney, a Thousand Times Ney Says Water-Shy Swim Organizer

AB KOTSCHEROFSKI
. . . waiting at the station

NANAIMO — Polar bear swim mastermind Frank Ney, mayor-elect of Nanaimo, did not dip his toes in the chilly water of Departure Bay this morning.

"You can imagine the criticism had I gone in the swim and won," said the dapper soon-to-be chief magistrate as he handed two silver dollars and a ripe banana to one of the estimated 300 swimmers lured out by his drum-beating.

$1,000 IN PRIZES

The final count of the brave souls who, dressed in the skimpiest of bathing suits, plunged into the grey but calm waters to earn their share of the $1,000 in silver put up by local businessmen, had not been made at press time.

Prizes came in threes for the plungers.

First they received two silver dollars, second a Jolly Roger hat (presumably to signify that only pirates would be out swimming on a day like this) and a banana which Mr. Ney insists was picked from the shores of Departure Bay just before the annual swim started.

The weather was slightly balmy for Nanaimo on Boxing Day. A steady 45 degrees at 9:30 a.m. and holding.

BALMY

The water was calculated to be "slightly lower" than the air temperature.

Shortly after the first swimmers turned blue in the frigid water the first ball of what promises to be an annual cricket match was bowled on a nearby pitch.

The willow striking the ball mingled well with the shrill screams coming from the water's edge.

"Shouts of joy," said Mr. Ney. "The happy shouts of people frolicking on the seashore. The only other place you could hear similar shouts today is in Hawaii."

And he insisted that the deeper the blue of the swimmer, the more he had been exposed to the sun.

For those who preferred to watch rather than risk their all in the coolish briny, the cricket match, with the International Establishment of Genglemen Bathers, Adventurers and Cricket Players at bat, providing somewhat warmer entertainment.

And for those who were psychologically unable to accept Mr. Ney's statement that Nanaimo was really in the midst of a Christmas heat wave, there was a gigantic beach bonfire to ward off evil chills.

The nonplussed Mr. Ney even had a logical reason for the fire.

"It's to ward off mosquitoes," he said. "You can't have swimmers wandering around in swimsuits being bitten to death by mosquitoes. The smoke from the fire keeps the insects away—and for those who want to sunbathe away from the fire we have both mosquito repellent and sun tan lotion."

It's Taking Time To Get Untracked

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—There's a plaza of stores in Windsor Street station Montreal, but you're taken aback to see a shoe repair sign hanging next to the agent's office in Duncan.

But there it is.

The CPR subsidiary, Marathon Realty, has rented railroad station space to Ab Kotscherofski.

He has $3,000 worth of shoe repair equipment set up in what used to be the old express room. But he's getting away to a slow start.

Not that many people think of taking their boots to a railroad station for repair.

BAD LUCK

Ab has had more than his share of ill fortune recently.

Three years ago he and his family were burned out of their home on Miller Road, Eagle Heights.

Not long after a back ailment forced him to give up his own trucking business.

These were bad blows but at 52 Ab was not going to quit and become just another welfare case.

He accepted the chance to attend the shoe repairing class at Vancouver Vocational School.

BORROWED

Ab says the nine-month course was like a Christmas present from Premier Bennett.

He completed the course in November, borrowed the $3,000 and rented the station space.

In three weeks Ab has netted only $20 but he's confident better times are ahead for himself,, his wife Eva and children Rodney, 15, Arlene, 14, and Stanley, 13.

Belmont Homes Light Up

Personnel of Pacific Command Canadian forces and their families at Belmont Park competed in their first Christmas lighting contest last week.

There were 25 entries divided into three classifications. The winners were:

Decorated window, Joan C. Lee, 114 Egerton.

Door decoration, Army Sgt. George Stilwell, 492 Thetis Crescent.

Roof and lawn decoration, John Green, 314 Zealous Crescent. Mr. Green also received the overall award.

The contest was organized by PO Douglas Noyes, chairman of Belmont Park town council.

Grant To Cover Expenses

Victoria Symphony Orchestra has been awarded a grant of $2,500 by the Canada Council to assist in the engagement of its new concert master, Ray Ovens from Birmingham, Eng.

"We hope this will cover his expenses in moving to Victoria," Brian Gingell, president of Victoria Symphony Society, said.

Earlier this year, the symphony received a $15,000 grant from the Canada Council to underwrite its 1967-68 operations.

The council's latest list of grants, totalling $400,000, was announced in Ottawa Friday.

Vancouver Symphony was awarded up to $11,000 to accompany the National Ballet of Canada during its engagement in Seattle in January.

Students Raise $150 for Asian Children's Fund

A house competition among students at Mount Newton Junior Secondary School produced $150 for the Children of Asia Fund.

They chose the fund "to remind those of us who sit down to three square meals a day that there are millions of starving people in the world," said three students who brought the contribution to The Times office last week.

The three house teams — Tartars, Spartans and Vikings—had a competition to see which one could raise the most money for the fund.

Tartars won with a total of $80.42. The amount was accomplished through a car wash, pizza sale, jelly bean guessing competition, hot dog sale and other work.

ELECTION CONFIRMED

NANAIMO (CP)—A recount of ballots from the Dec. 9 civic elections in Nanaimo has confirmed the election of Ted Jenkinson to city council.

The recount was requested by incumbent alerman Ken Alexander, who lost out by 17 votes to Mr. Jenkinson. The recount gave Mr. Jenkinson 2,045 votes, 15 more than Mr. Alexander.

'Astonishing He Still Has A Licence'

A driver who eluded city police only to be stopped by Saanich police was fined $350 and had his driving licence suspended last week.

Sentencing of Ronald Fraser, 25, of 4443 Wilkinson, for impaired driving came at the conclusion of a lengthy trial in which defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood introduced tests and witnesses aimed at showing inadequacies in the breathalizer.

Fraser was stopped by Saanich police early Oct. 22 after his car had been chased and lost by a city cruiser.

"It's quite astoninshing that he has a licence," said Magistrate Ostler after Fraser's driving record, which included numerous convictions for speeding and careless driving, was read to the court.

"I think there should be some treatment for this young man," he added, commenting on evidence that Fraser suffers from paranoia.

Fined $300 for a similar offence was John Peacy, 61, of 1149 Munro Street. His car was stopped by police on Esquimalt Road near Lampson Oct. 19.

Campbell R. Delays Fire Area Takeover

CAMPBELL RIVER—The much-discussed takeover of the fire protection district by the municipality has been put off.

Kenneth L. Scott, chairman of the district trustees, said: "There will be no changes at this time."

The proposed takeover has been a contentious issue. It is argued that if the municipality was responsible for fire protection it could supply services to areas outside on a contract basis. The protection district cannot do this—it can supply outside aid only if the equipment is not immediately required in its own area.

The district can also supply some aid to other fire protection districts.

Campbell River protection district has three Class A trucks, one tanker, a chief's car, seven paid firemen and 27 volunteers.

With this equipment it covers the entire Campbell River water district, North Campbell River fire district and Quinsam Heights.

Code Changes Represent New Social Thinking

OTTAWA (CP) — An omnibus bill revising the Criminal Code reflects advances in social thinking in Canada, says former Justice Minister Davie Fulton.

Mr. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said in an interview it wouldn't have been possible to introduce such legislation five years ago, when he was justice minister, without creating deep divisions.

He predicted reservations among some MPs on some features of the bill, notably that legalizing homosexual activity in private between consenting adults.

However, Mr. Fulton said introduction of the legislation Thursday by Justice Minister Trudeau was only possible because a popular consensus has developed on such matters as abortion, gambling and other areas covered in the bill.

Few MPs have had a chance to digest the far-reaching bill, which combines changes to no less than five separate acts, and reaction has been slow in developing.

Mr. Fulton's main criticism was aimed at the comprehensive nature of the bill. He said it is "unwise and undesirable" to lump so many important topics together.

MPs who supported most changes might find themselves objecting to a single area strongly. He thought it would have been wiser to introduce separate bills.

2 Charged In Murder

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two juveniles were charged Saturday in the slaying of a housewife who disappeared while on a Christmas shopping trip earlier this week.

The youngsters were charged with non-capital murder in the knife slaying of Rose Violet, 41, whose body was found Friday in bushland about 30 miles north of here. She had been stabbed three timees.

The names of the two charged were withheld.

The juveniles, both 17, were remanded until Dec. 27.

Young Girls Rounded Up As Prostitutes

MONTREAL (CP)—A prostitution ring involving about 30 girls between the ages of eight and 16 has been uncovered in neighboring Laval, police said.

Ten men, 45 to 50 years old, will appear in social welfare court following a police roundup Tursday night of nine leaders of the ring. The other man was arrested early today.

Police said the ring has been operating in Laval for at least two years. The girls gave their favors freely to members of the ring, and charged from 25 cents to $? to "outsiders."

A spokesman for the special police squad added that some of the girls appeared to have been victims of blackmail and extortion.

It was not known whether charges would be placed against the girls.

Youth Fined For Impairment

A 20-year-old youth was fined $350 in central court Saturday for impaired driving.

Police reported a car driven by Cornelius Arnold, suite 5—679 Battery Street, was observed speeding north on Government Street at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

They said the car was going about 55 miles per hour, and when stopped for a traffic light it kept rolling backwards so the police car had to reverse to avoid a collision.

Hit, Run Driver Fined $200

Harry Kelly, 3179 Alder, was fined $200 in central court Saturday for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Police said Kelly was the driver of a car which collided with a Hydro bus Friday, stopped briefly, and drove off.

Total damage in the accident was $125.

Caused Disturbance In Hotel Hallway

A man was fined $25 in central court Saturday for swearing and causing a disturbance in a hotel hallway late Friday.

Anthony Ranger, 642 Johnson, was arrested after police were called to the scene by hotel employees. He pleaded guilty.

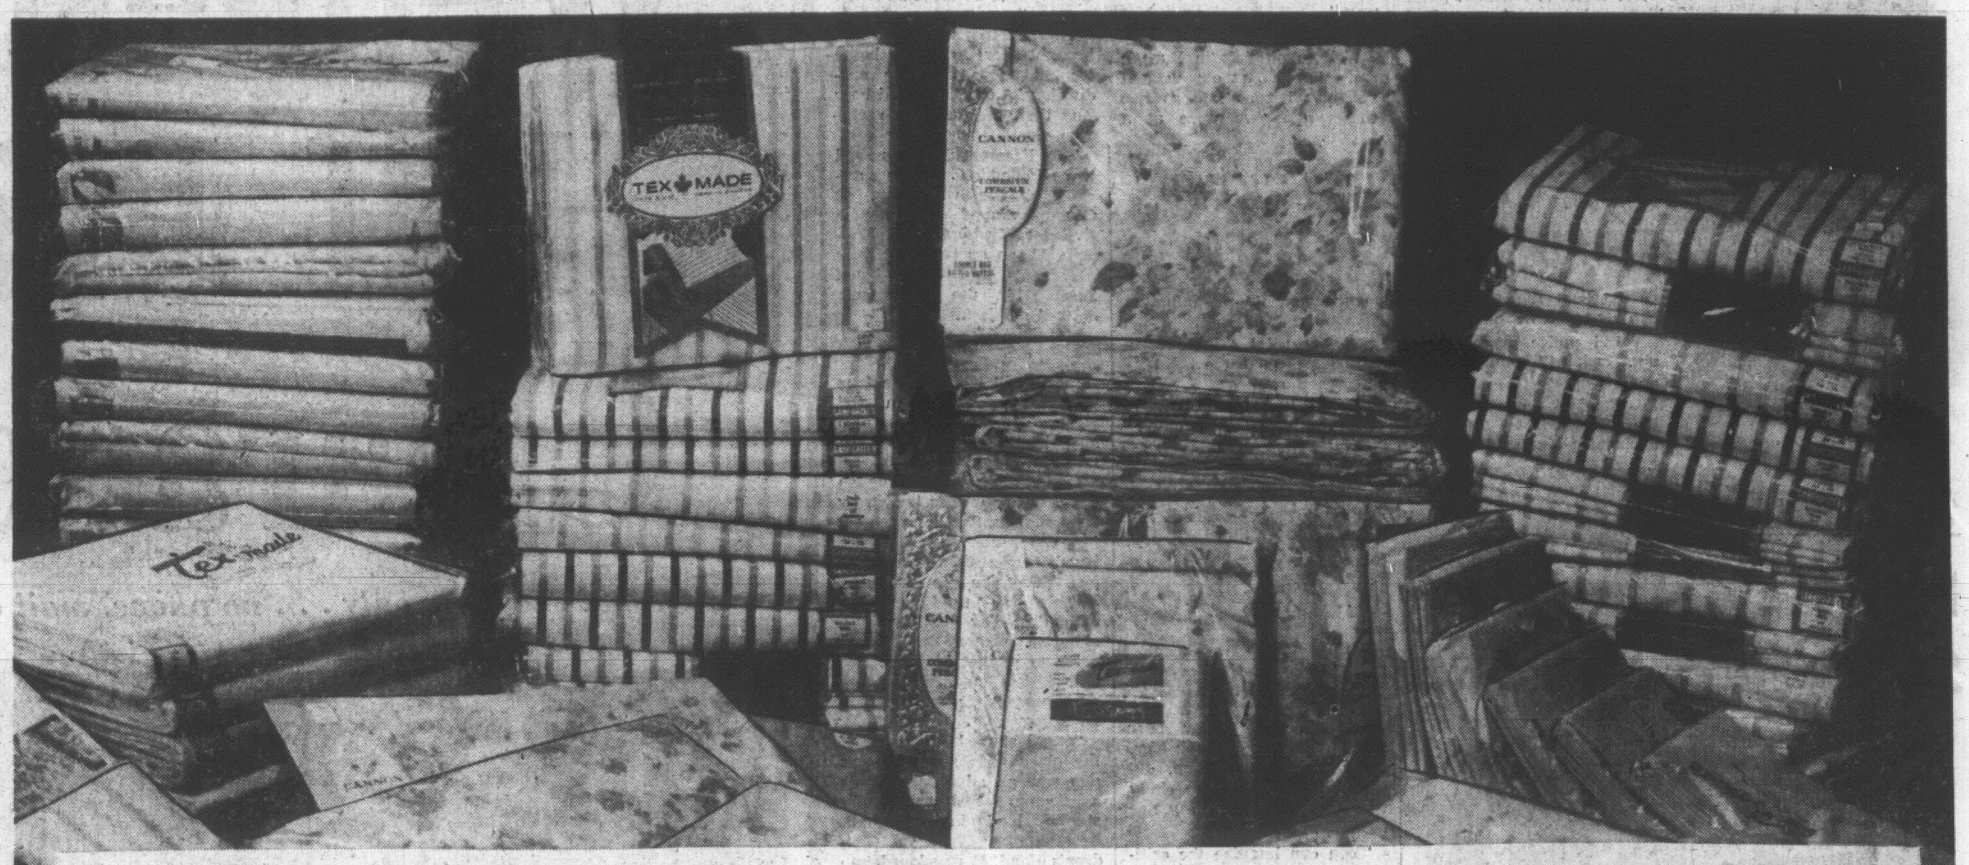

Blasts Planned

MOSCOW AP) — The Soviet Union will begin a series of daily blasting in the North Pacific soon, news agency Tass announced. Ships were warned to stay out of the area, about 850 miles off Hokkaido Island of Japan, from Monday through January 10. Tass gave no details of the magnitude of the explosions or the kind of explosives to be used.

LONG, HOT SUMMER?

Major Unions Geared For Contract Crunch

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

A big round of labor-management negotiations is expected to make headlines in 1968.

Major contracts expire in a number of fields, including logging and lumber, pulp, construction and local government.

Biggest interest may be generated among the public employees—particularly municipal and hospital workers.

Companies with contracts expiring on Dec. 31 have already received the demands of their employees. Unions with expiry dates during the coming year are mapping their proposals now.

In the forest industry, the biggest in B.C., the contract between coastal wood products companies and the International Woodworkers of America expires in June.

This agreement covers 26,000 workers in logging camps and plywood, lumber and shingle manufacturing plants including 1,800 on southern Vancouver Island.

40,000 Involved

Contracts between three pulp and paper unions and the pulp industry throughout B.C. expire one month after the coastal IWA one.

Between them, these talks will involve nearly 40,000 persons.

Major agreement up for renewal in the construction industry is the one with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters. It expires April 30.

The union will hold a wage conference at the end of January to formulate its proposals.

Construction unions are expected to try to streamline the various agreements so that major points, such as hours of work and termination dates, coincide. There would then be something like a master agreement.

Carpenters and electricians have already won the 37½-hour work week and it is expected there will be a further demand in the coming year to reduce this amount.

New Awakening

For years the spotlight has fallen on the hourly-rated blue-collar workers but the long-quiet public service and white-collar employees are showing signs of awakening.

Many hospital, municipal and school board contracts expire in the coming year, including most of the ones in Greater Victoria.

Already into negotiations are the Hospital Employees' Union, Local 180, and the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C., comprising a combined total of about 10,000 members at about 60 general hospitals.

The nurses want monthly salary increases of more than 50 per cent, which may stand as the biggest pay demand of any group this year.

The national president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Stan Little, told a Vancouver civic workers rally this month that public employees have been like docile animals but are changing into militant unionists.

He added that public employees believe they should be paid the same money they would get in private industry and that they aren't ready to subsidize the community to the point of getting lower pay.

Both sides have said the coming year will be a tough one for contract renewals.

Last June, C. S. J. Mc Kelvey, in charge of labor relations for the Union of B.C. Municipalities, told a municipal meeting in Powell River "it is going to be a long, hot summer."

Only 48 contracts were opened in 1967 but there will be 102 in the coming year.

He told delegates that area manuals were being prepared to inform all municipalities of existing agreements.

"For many years the unions have delighted in playing one city against another and they will continue to do so until we know exactly what our neighboring municipalities are doing," he said last summer.

"The unions are organized, we must be organized, too."

Last month, after a wage conference of the B.C. division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, a union spokesman warned:

"Delegates were cognizant of the efforts of employers to coordinate their bargaining strategy and steps are being taken to develop similar action on the part of public employees."

The last major contract year was 1966 and it saw 39 strikes and lockouts affect 411 employers, 24,748 employees, and caused a time loss of 272,922 working days, or 0.196 per cent of the total time worked.

Second Highest

The number of strikes was the second highest since 1951, the number of employers affected was a record, employees affected was the highest since 1959 and time loss was the greatest since 1959.

The number of strikes and their effects, however, were put in perspective by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson in a New Year's message at the end of 1966.

He observed that only one in 50 contracts resulted in a strike or lockout. There were 2,000 new contracts filed with his department where agreement was "negotiated without the matter coming to the attention of the public."

1,500 Want Raise of 11%

About 1,500 local government workers on southern Vancouver Island will expect no less than an 11 per cent pay raise next year, a union official says.

Such an increase would be in line with raises already approved for part of the group—outside civic workers in Victoria and Saanich.

Nearly all contracts covering members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees are open for re-negotiation in 1968, said Tom Smith, local CUPE representative.

They include civic workers in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt and employees, other than teachers, at the Greater Victoria, Saanich and Sooke School Boards, Victoria Public Library, plus several smaller units.

POSTED postmaster Al Davies, off to London, Ont., after seven years here, will take a traditional British Columbia gift with him — a Cowichan sweater. Rain nor hail nor snow nor gloom of night can pentrate it. District postal service director R. F. Reed, left, who made the presentation at a farewell gathering, made sure of the fit to avoid any chance sweater would have to be mailed back for exchange. Postmen are sick of parcels these days.

Mother, Son in Hospital After Two-Car Collision

A mother and son were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital at 10:30 a.m. today after an accident at Bay and Quadra.

Mrs. Nora Brant, 599 Tait St., suffered head injuries and 10-year-old Mark, severe bruises.

They were passengers in a car driven by William Brant.

Police report the Brant car, proceeding east on Bay, was in collision with a car southbound on Quadra, driven by Rudy Klingle, 3641 Elliston.

Both drivers were uninjured.

Police estimate damage to the cars at $1,000 each.

Three accidents in the area early Christmas morning sent five persons to hospital.

At 12:10 a.m. a car driven by Gary Wadden, 1237 Dominion, collided with one driven by Patricia Knott, 913 Sluggett, at Douglas and McKenzie Ave.

Three teen-aged persons in the Wadden car were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Sandra Johnson, 17, of 945 Green, is in good condition with facial cuts. Donna Hagen, 16, of 1254 Pandora, is in good condition with a cut hand.

Harold Corbett, 17, of Humpback Road, is in satisfactory condition with chest injuries.

FOG BLAMED

At 1:30 a.m., a car driven by Colin Hodson, 18, of 4052 Wilkinson, went off the road while attempting to turn off West Saanich Road onto Townsend.

Police blamed dense fog for the mishap.

Hodson is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken arm.

TOTAL WRECK

In a third accident, a car was a total loss after it left the road at Metchosin Road and Hatley around 2 a.m.

RCMP report the car went 350 yards, flipped over, and struck a pole.

Driver Bruce Davidson, 459 Obed, is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries.

Countdown To Comedown Starts Soon

Victoria's tallest chimney will be demolished next month.

The chimney, which has towered over the old Empress Hotel steam plant and laundry for 40 years, is 167 feet high and weighs 170 tons.

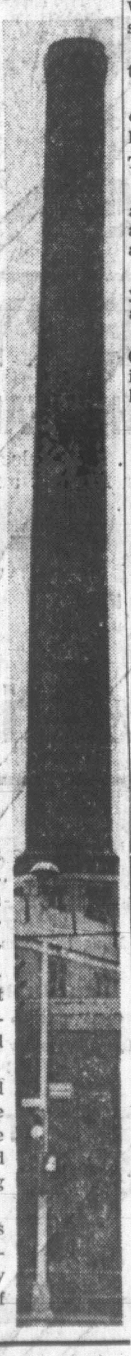

The whole site is being cleared by Mattison and Patterson, local demolition firm. Canadian Pacific Railway Co. spokesmen say no decision has been reached on future use of the land.

The 250,000 bricks in the chimney are in good condition and are to be stored at the CPR Wharf on Belleville Street for future use.

All machinery and equipment has been removed and walls of the power plant are now being dismantled. The project should be finished by the end of March.

Mattison and Patterson were among three firms which bid for the wrecking contract.

The wreckers plan on dropping the chimney with the use of cables.

Racing Driver Pays $75 Fine

A Gold River man Saturday was fined $75 in central court for careless driving.

Police said Robert St. Jules appeared to be in a race with another car on Government Street late Friday.

They said his car passed three cars on the right at speeds up to 50 miles per hour between Johnson and Fort Streets.

Man Arrested After Rampage In Building

City police have arrested a man they say went on a rampage in the Health and Welfare Building, 1947 Cook Street, early Sunday.

They estimate the damage at $3,000.

Three police cars converged on the building after a citizen reported hearing repeated crashes of breaking glass.

When police arrived, they saw a man using a metal ash tray stand to smash plate glass windows and doors.

The man was arrested and taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital where he was treated for cuts to his hands and left ankle.

The man, charged with breaking with intent to commit an indictable offence, will appear in central court Wednesday.

MRS. ARNOLD
. . . she's ready

Old Christmas Cards Can Bring New Cheer

Now that Christmas is over, Mrs. H. A. (Eunice) Arnold will be getting huge bundles of Christmas cards.

That's not so strange. She's been getting Christmas cards almost every day all year.

And when you get around to taking down your garlands of cards, Mrs. Arnold would like to have yours too.

She and some friendly helpers sort them and pack them and send them off to Bolivia, India and Taiwan. During 1967 they shipped out 500,000 and those countries want more.

Children in hospital make scrap books with them. Doctors and nurses use the backs of them for records of immunization programs. Some people hang the pictures on the wall and they are often the only touch of color in their homes.

If any donor is worried about cards bearing addresses which might result in a letter from abroad begging for presents, he can be assured all addresses are obliterated, says Mrs. Arnold.

She began her card campaigns 10 years ago at the request of the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions. Each year the job gets larger.

Now she keeps a deposit box which accepts gifts at any time but which can't be entered without a key, on her front porch at 30 Howe Street. (That's one block west of Moss near Dallas Road.)

At present about 25 persons call daily with boxes of cards. Mrs. Arnold also can use small gift boxes in shipping the cards. And if the card-giver wants to leave a silver donation toward shipping costs, that's welcome, too.

HARMFUL

Glitter cards should be separated. The glitter is made from ground glass and can be harmful to sensitive skin. Large commercial cards are especially welcome. The recipients often make calendars with them for use as gifts or prizes.

Mrs. Arnold's helpers include office workers, typists, artists and one 87-year-old woman who devotes three days a week to the project. Sometimes they get snowed under. So donors can also help by mailing cards direct to Mrs. Lillian R. Dickson, 196 North Chunking Road, Section 3, Taipei, Taiwan.

If you clip this story it will save you looking for it next week when you start to wonder what to do with all those cards.

CHINATOWN LIONS

Record Number Completes Red Cross Swim Program

A record number of youngsters have successfully completed the latest Red Cross water safety program, sponsored by the Victoria (Chinatown) Lions Cwim Club.

There were 48 successful candidates in the beginners class, 44 in the pre-junior, 45 in the junior, 31 in the intermediate and 24 in the senior.

Passing the basic survival course were: Daphne Ruskowski, Linda Station, Michael Bunch, Doug Burnham, Debbie Burt, Jamie Fanthorpe, Richard Hunt, Richard Marshall, Jack Moreau, Suzanne Moreau, Lynn Morrison and Susan Morrison.

Passing the advanced survival course were: Phillip Orchard, Howard Taylor, Ken Graham, Lawrence Piper, Susan Millar, Joy Bradstock, Annajane Taylor, Jerrilynne MacClean, and Louise Hamilton.

Winners of bronze medallions included: David Longstaff, David Smith, Martin Bowles, Alan Jones, Russell Mark, Sherry Mark, Peter Gibson, Dale Sebastion, Jean Paynter, Lawrence Tuttle, and Don Drummond.

Successful candidates in the survival swimming class included: Gaylene Chow, Wendy Gage, Andrew North, John Halliwell, Marilyn Dwyer, Robert Orchard and Sharron Barrett.

Lots of Enquiries Too

20,000 PHONE CALLS ONLY 6,000 CONTACTS

Just under 20,000 long distance calls from Greater Victoria were handled by telephone operators Christmas Day.

About 6,000 of them were completed, Gordon Murphy, district commercial and traffic manager, said today.

The figures do not include overseas calls which are handled through Vancouver or Montreal, he added. And among the 20,000 calls were numerous cases of people repeatedly trying to place the same call. Each attempt counts as a call handled by operators.

Three shifts totalling 157 girls handled the operators' chores as well as about 6,000 information queries. Normal number of information calls on a business day is 8,000, said Mr. Murphy.

Ratio of completed calls is about average for Christmas, he added. Calls placed within B.C. encountered few delays.

CITY WARMEST, MAYBE SOGGIEST

Victoria was the warmest city in Canada on Christmas Day.

The thermometer registered 52 degrees — the rain which had flooded gutters on Sunday dribbled away to almost nothing before 10 a.m.—even if it's still soggy underfoot.

(Sunday we had .74 inches and Christmas morning we had the best part of .18 inches.)

Coldest spots in Canada on Christmas Day were The Pas and Prince Albert, where it was 18 below zero, the snow probably was crunching underfoot and people covered their ears and rubbed their noses with their mittens if they stayed out long.

There's none of that sort of weather in sight for Victoria.

It was to be cloudy with fog patches today. Wednesday likely will provide rain or a drizzle from overcast skies, the temperatures continuing mild—45 tonight and 50 on Wednesday.

Winds were expected to be 15 miles-per-hour westerlies shifting to the southeast after midnight.

Youth Rescued From Finlayson

A youth is in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today after being carried from Finlayson Mountain in a dramatic rescue mission Christmas Eve and Christmas morning.

About midday Dec. 24, Ronald Evans, 18, of 684 Foul Bay, went climbing with four companions.

The other four were Phillip Powell, 16, of 1035 Roslyn, Geoff Davis, 17, 2555 Eastdowne, Pat Beattie, 17, 1016 Verrinder, and Brian Alquire, 17, 3496 Cardiff Place.

When the boys started down the mountain, they became lost. Four decided to go back to the top and pick up the trail from there. Evans continued down on his own.

Officials believe he fell over a cliff and knocked himself out.

When the other four reached the road and realized Evans hadn't made it, they contacted RCMP.

RCMP called Langford Fire Department who blew their siren and 22 men turned out for the search.

At 5:30, two groups of four men set out, the remainder waiting in the hall.

The men who found Evans had no stretcher and it was 11 p.m. before the necessary equipment arrived.

Seven firemen and Const. William Hunt of the RCMP took five hours to get Evans down to the road.

He was rushed to hospital with possible concussion.

Langford fire chief Al Lequesne praised the efforts of the men involved.

DANGEROUS

He also stressed that the Finlayson Mountain trail is dangerous at this time of year.

"It should be closed down," he said. "It was criss-crossed with fire breaks last summer, and there are several windfalls down.

"People go up at noon and start back around 4, not thinking it will be dark by 5:30."

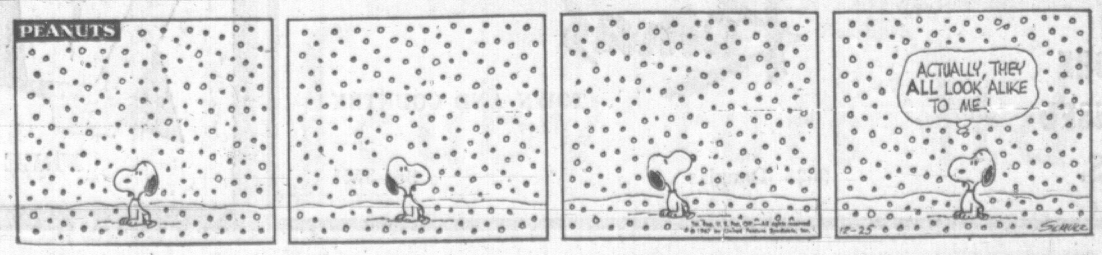

Ask The Times

Q. Would you tell me please if there is any scientific value in sweeping ahead of the rocks in curling. J. B.

A. Apart from making certain that the ice is clear of any foreign particle that may cause the rock to stop suddenly, the main scientific value in sweeping rests with the fact that the hard corn brooms (generally) are capable of scratching the ice. The theory is that "ridges" created by proper sweeping (across the path taken by the rock) means the rock encounters less friction than it would on smoother ice.

If Dolly Can't Walk Call the Doll Doctor

By Penny Saver

Was Christmas too much for that talking doll? Has the walking doll refused to take another step? Or did the injudicious hands of a little girl or boy divest some favorite of an arm or an eye? If such tragedies occurred at your house over the holiday season you need the doll doctor.

The doll doctor is a bright little woman who was bitten with the doll bug when she visited a doll hospital here in Victoria years ago. Nothing came of it then, but when she moved to Nova Scotia her interest revived and she eventually received her certificate from a school for doll technicians in California. She bought a doll hospital in Victoria and went into business.

Bulletins and news-letters from the various doll clubs to which she belongs keeps her up to date on the methods of treatment for the newest dolls. While she investigates Canadian products constantly, she finds however that she must send to the United States for most of her supplies.

Parts are a different matter. "I must have parts from every doll hospital that ever was in Victoria," she said, looking down into a box of baby-blue eyes. Indeed parts of the doll hospital would make real hospitals blush with shame. While transplants are a new thing with people, they are the only thing for dolls and, heads, legs and arms lie about, as casually as the patients themselves.

There is no reason for them to worry, the doll doctor knows what she is doing and is so well-known that she sometimes finds herself overworked, especially at Christmas. She hopes, however, to gain some helpers in the New Year.

She has decided to start a doll club in Victoria. The club may not do much at first as knowing how to repair dolls is not a prerequisite for membership, but the members can at least hold workshops to begin dressing dolls for underprivileged children. "I can handle the minor repairs," the doll doctor told me, but it is obvious just from looking around her crowded workshop that this task alone could take all her time.

If you are interested in dolls and would like to join the doll club, or if you have a doll in need of repairs, please call me at 382-3131 for the address of the doll doctor and her hospital.

STARTS 'HOT LINE'

TORONTO (CP)—The housewife on the phone wanted to know if she could buy baby food at a discount—she had just had twins which she hadn't counted on because she was on the pill.

The call was received by the genial president and general manager of the Power Chain of supermarkets, Leon Weinstein, who turned the call over to his secretary, who referred her to a social agency.

What does social counselling have to do with supermarket managing? That was one of the about 300 calls a week Mr. Weinstein receives at his office.

Fourteen months ago Mr. Weinstein installed a customer "hot line" for people to call with complaints, suggestions and questions ranging from "Why are bananas only nine cents a pound downtown and 14 cents in my local market?" to "Can you get me tickets to the World Series?"

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Harrison, 298 Beach Drive, marked their golden wedding anniversary on Christmas Eve. Both born in Bristol, England, the couple was married in the city's St. Barnabas Anglican Church on Dec. 24, 1917. In celebration of the anniversary, a family dinner was held at the Tally-Ho Travelodge on Saturday. All members of the family were present. They are Mr. and Mrs. M. L. (Gladys) Norton of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Harrison, Tommy and Billy, all of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. Cleve B. (Maureen) Tuttle, Karen, David and Cynthia, also of Victoria; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. (June) Willis, also of Victoria. At the dinner the honor couple presented each grandchild with a 50-dollar bill. They received a mantel clock as a gift from their children and grandchildren.

Mr. Harrison came to Canada with his father and two brothers in 1913. They homesteaded in the Battle River Valley, situated in the Brownfield district of Alberta. He enlisted in the 15th Light Horse at Calgary at the beginning of the First World War, went overseas, where he was transferred to the 49th Battalion of the Edmonton Regiment. He was sent to England after being wounded in Oct. 1918. He and his wife came to Canada the following March and homesteaded in Brownfield, later moving to Calgary. They've lived in Victoria since 1925.

Fete Bride-Elect

Pink rosebuds and a gift were presented to bride-elect Miss Edith Scarff when she was surprised at a shower by her office associates at the Colonial Inn. Orchids and azalea plants decorated the tables for the banquet which was served. Guests included Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. R. Baynes, Mrs. N. Boyd, Mrs. K. Campbell, Mrs. R. Corless, Mrs. G. Day, Mrs. G. Harris, Mrs. F. Highet, Mrs. G. Kennedy, Mrs. B. Lewis, Mrs. W. Mullins, Mrs. F. Neesham, Mrs. D. Parker, Mrs. J. Paton, Mrs. M. Percival, Mrs. O. Powell, Mrs. R. Price, Mrs. P. Saxon, Mrs. E. Sheppard, Mrs. G. Vollinger, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. N. White, the Misses Kathy Davies, Jean Grant, Martha Hymers, Margaret Littleproud, Rose Merryweather, Ronnie Neary, Gladys Perry and Betty Prangnell. Unable to attend were Mrs. T. Hurtock, the Misses Joan Hodgkinson, Mara Kruberg, Mary-Ellen Kingsfield and Jo-Ann Tremblay.

Annual Banquet

The Ontario Social Group held its annual banquet in the Terra Cotta room of the Dominion Hotel last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Lyle Balfour presided over the banquet, which was attended by 40 members and guests. Seated at the head table with Mrs. Balfour were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hawkes, Mr. H. V. O'Reilly and Mrs. Georgie Waddington. After a turkey dinner, films were shown, courtesy of the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority.

Married Here

Mrs. Lucy Cooling became the bride of Mr. Wilfred Pace on Wednesday, Dec. 20. Rev. Geoffrey G. Smith officiated at the service in Gordon United Church at Langford. Following the ceremony, a family reception was held at Wolf Rathskeller. The couple is now on an extended honeymoon trip to California. On their return, they will make their home at 370 Burnside Road.

Longer Duds Now the Mode

LONDON (CP) — "If skirts get any higher, I'll sell," cracked Beatrice Lillie when she blew into town recently for the premiere of Thoroughly Modern Millie.

The Toronto-born comedienne may have hit closer to the mark than she knew. This year has seen mini-skirts rocketing up, up, up like the stock market boom of 1929 and fashion oracles feel it won't be long before the great crash.

The comparison is apt, because fashion in its fickle way is already swinging back a full generation to the 1930s. London, the mini-skirt mecca, hasn't been the same place since Bonnie and Clyde took the town by storm.

The Bonnie and Clyde Look is everywhere on the fashion pages—droopy, calf-length dresses, long belted sweaters, Al Capone suits with padded shoulders and wide chalk stripes. Model Sue Lynn has set up a stall in Kensington Market to buy and sell genuine 1930s clothes.

The gangster move that has split the generations — elders attacking its immorality," youth going mad for its heady mixture of violence, humor and high spirits—is now a cult.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Mrs. Smith proudly writes that she has solved her children's birthday problems by taking ice cream and cake to school and treating the whole class. "The teacher," she says, "co-operates, and there is no fuss, no muss, and no frayed nerves." For whom? Perhaps not for the mother. But, I am a teacher, and if a mother came to me with such a suggestion I would quickly tell her that I am paid to teach, not to give parties. Furthermore, multiply this scene by 30 or 35, and considerable teaching time is lost.

When I first began to teach (and taught in a school that allowed it), I "co-operated" with one of those "no-fuss, no-muss" mothers who brought the birthday party to school. Games were played and the excitement ran high. The mother sat in the back wringing her hands while I tried my best to control the over-stimulated youngsters. Two children up-chucked their hastily gulped refreshments all over the floor. (No fuss, no muss, aye?)

Abby, please tell mothers to give their children's birthday parties at home. Thank you.

PAID TO TEACH

DEAR PAID: Hundreds of teachers share your views and wrote to tell me so. The only teachers who had a kind word to say about the classroom parties were kindergarten teachers. And they qualified their enthusiasm with, "IF the mother tidies up the room and leaves it as she found it."

DEAR ABBY: The woman who complained about her husband going to stag parties reminds me of this story:

Two men were in the barber shop getting haircuts. The barber finished with the first and asked, "Would you like a little hair tonic?" The man replied, "O, no, my wife might think I've been in a house of ill repute!"

About that time, the second man was finished and the barber asked him if he wanted some hair tonic. He replied, "Yes, please. MY wife has never been in a house of ill repute."

The point of my story is this: How does a complaining woman know so much? I have never seen a naked woman at a stag party, but I have seen some strippers come pretty close to it in some public bars where women sat in the front rows. Also, I understand that some women are not averse to going places where they are served by topless waitresses, so what are they complaining about?

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for the wife who signed herself "IGNORED."

You are not alone. My husband eats his dinner like he is a fugitive from a good meal, then he rushes to the TV set without a word, and leaves me sitting alone at the table. In the morning he eats his breakfast with his head buried in the newspaper, then dashes out of the house.

I keep flexing my tongue to give it some exercise so it doesn't go into a state of paralysis. Take Abby's advice and condition yourself to the silent life. Some men never change.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

Velvet and Feathers Set Fashion for the Holidays

NEW YORK (CP) — Velvet and feathers are the epitome of fashion elegance this holiday season.

"Court dresses heavy with museum-quality jewel embroidery or misty blithe-spirit drifts of ostrich feathers" is the way fashion authority Eleanor Lambert describes the new evening look.

Designer Malcolm Starr concurs. Bands and borders of jewels, rich jewelled bibs or high bodices have replaced the over-all beading," he says, offering his floor-length sapphire blue chiffon flowing from a Byzantine embroidered bodice.

Deep rich tones in velvets are reminiscent of the early Cavalier days, as in Samuel Winston's ruby red velvet formal worn with a short pink chenille jacket solidly encrusted with ruby and diamente jewelling.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If the aftermath of holiday housecleaning is getting the best of you, take a coffee break right now and consider the problems women used to have before modern gadgets lent a hand.

Lowman

The Victorian housewife, for instance, had acres of polished wooden floors in her house and often not enough help. There are some old drawings in the New York library showing how her sons and daughters used to invite their friends for a "waxing party." They would waltz and polka through the house with buffing rags tied to their shoes. One modern electric waxer would have saved a lot of punch and cookies.

The Greeks and Romans admired order in their homes and the straight sparse lines of their furniture and architecture allowed no dust to collect unnoticed. Their mosaic or baked brick floors were regularly sluiced with water, and the bedding was aired in the sun. Perhaps the fact that personal bathing was a usual and desirable habit fostered cleanliness in the households of this civilization.

In the Dark Ages and into the Renaissance the tenets of hygiene and cleanliness were lost. The highest nobility bathed perhaps once a year, if that, and their vast, draughty manors reflected in their dirt their owner's lack of concern with tidy living. Royal palaces were as grimy as hovels. The method of thorough housecleaning, when sickness or plague had contaminated a house, was to burn it down.

Cleaning implements were poor and few—a handful of straw or a stiff twig broom for sweeping and home-made strong soap which reddened the hands and hardly lathered. The flat flexible broom we use now was invented in the middle of the 19th century in the United States by a Shaker.

As it gradually dawned that disease and dirt were connected somehow the householder became more particular.

Our modern cleaning tools were invented when help became scarce and so costly that the average household could not afford it. One of the first vacuum cleaners ran by water pressure from a hose which was attached to a tap. Of course, you couldn't go very far away from the sink!

Commercially-made soap became more efficient and milder to milady's hands, and soap powder made mopping and machine washing practical and quicker. Electricity was a magic boon to housekeeping.

There are no doubt some people today who still remember heating heavy irons on the wood stove to press a shirtwaist, or waiting two days for heavy clothes to dry out or beating the dust out of a rug.

Doesn't this make you feel better? Coffee break is over! Now go and push the button on the washer or flip the switch on your electric waxer, and be glad you don't have to ask your teenagers to frug around on waxing cloths!

Sheaff-McKeever Vows Heard In St. Mark's Anglican Church

Sylvia Blanche McKeever wore a silver lame gown topped with a floor-length white lace coat when she became the bride of John Douglas Sheaff in St. Mark's Anglican Church. Her cathedral veil misted from a headpiece of lace and rhinestone flowers. She carried a bouquet of white poinsettias.

Canon Robert Willis heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. McKeever, Windsor Lodge, 1259 Stancil Lane, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheaff of Lake Cowichan. Mr. McKeever gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Judy Sheaff, the groom's sister, was the soloist, singing "O Holy Night" during the signing of the register.

Miss Wendy Bishop was maid of honor and the Misses Beverley Porter and Caroline Overman were bridesmaids. They wore matching red lace gowns with self-fabric headpieces en tone and carried bouquets of white poinsettias.

Richard Lewis acted as best man and Rolf Foss and Ajit Dalep ushered the guests.

A reception followed in Holyrood House. P. A. Bishop proposed the toast to the bride.

Guests travelling from out-of-town for the service were Miss Peggy Conyngham, County Cork, Ireland; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Comerford of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. R. Cross of Portland, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Chase and Gene of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. J. Sheaff of Abbotsford.

The couple will honeymoon at Harrison Hot Springs before travelling to Courtenay where they will make their new home.

As her travelling costume the bride chose a mauve wool suit with toning hat and black accessories. A white carnation corsage completed her ensemble.

Provides Show

By KATHLEEN BINNS

LONDON—I went to the London Stock Exchange just to get out of the rain. It might as easily have been the British Museum, Madame Tussaud's, Harrod's department store or even an amusement arcade.

But I found the visitors' gallery at 8 Throgmorton St. so stimulating I shall go again. It has everything in warmth and creature comforts (including a powder room), a bird's-eye view of the international scene, even a cinema show. Drama, too, for, like a visit to Bow Street, you feel it to be good theatre and not just a slice of life.

Looking down through glass to the floor of the "house" from your vantage point, you can see the drama of high finance. But as an unknowledgeable woman it strikes me as being extremely funny.

It's an ant-heap with midget men scurrying around criss-crossing one another's paths, streaming in and out of holes in the walls, stopping in their tracks, antennae aquiver, then purposefully edging off again between other ants, equally intent.

Viewing the scene dispassionately as a mere woman is bewildering—a seething mass of male workers, all well tailored in dark suits with never a floral tie, all apparently panic-stricken and darting about like the tongue of a chameleon.

'SEW SIMPLE

Mrs. Alma Sipe, Ridgeville, Ind., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I would like to share a sewing tip with all of your readers and hope they will be as delighted as I was when I discovered it recently.

"I found when working with bonded fabrics, sometimes you have a lot of bulk in some areas such as necklines where the facing seams end at the shoulder with the same seams on the garment. You can unbond your fabric by separating it and using just one thin layer of the fabric for facings, bias strips, etc. This gives the garment a much more finished look!"

Nazi Party Pickets Beaten at Film Debut

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The opening of a film dealing with inter-racial marriage had a second feature of seven American Nazi Party picketers being beaten by a crowd of some 50 angry young men.

The uniformed Nazis carried signs saying "Race-Mix Movies are Jewish" and "Black and White Together Make a Scumy (sic) Sick Gray" as they marched Friday night in front of a theatre showing "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?"

The jeering crowd knocked the marchers into the street, bloodying some of them. No arrests were made and the picketers sped off in a station wagon.

Before the picketing, a spokesman at the party's El Monte headquarters said the demonstration was not authorized.

Policemen Resign

EDSON, Alta (CP)—Four of the five members of the Edson town police force resigned Saturday, leaving Chief Mel Matheson the only policeman in town. Mayor M. D. Mead said the resignations were voluntary and had been percipitated by discontent and lack of co-operation on the force.

INJURED Sunday when her motorcycle collided with a car was Hollywood actress Ann-Margret who was flipped over the car's hood by the impact.

VOTERS LIKE BONNIE, CLYDE

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Bonnie and Clyde was named the favorite movie of 1967 in a poll of show business personalities and artists published here Sunday.

Nine of those polled voted for the movie which depicts the escapades of two notorious bank robbers of the 1930s Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker.

Second choice was Blow Up and third was A Man and a Woman.

Calloway's Going Like 60 And Feels Like a Teenager

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP)—Fingers snapping, toes tapping Cab Calloway listened to a recording he had just made of I Will Wait for You for a new album and pronounced his judgment.

"That's great," he said. "You can't do any better than that."

Calloway, who was 60 on Christmas Day, is doing great, too, in Hello, Dolly. He plays Horace Vandergelder, the meanest man in town.

The character belies the real Cab Calloway, but the show, with Pearl Bailey and an all-Negro cast, is a hit all over again.

Calloway said he doesn't feel like he's 60.

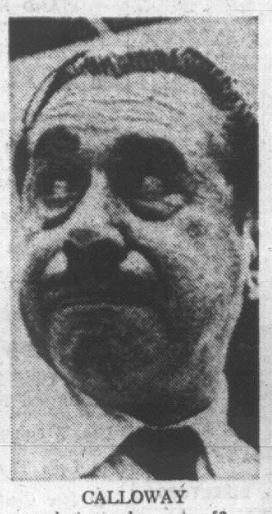

"I feel just like I was going on 20," he said. His face is unlined, his brown eyes twinkled under the studio lights and there wasn't a grey hair detectable on his head.

VOICE IS LUSTY

And, most important, his voice was as lusty and swinging as ever.

The day before he had put in two appearances—it was matinee day—in Hello, Dolly, but he showed no signs of fatigue.

On entering the recording studio he picked up a sheet of music and in seconds was humming and snapping his fingers.

CALLOWAY
. . . whatever became of? . . .

Calloway had taken the train down from his home in suburban White Plains for a third recording session for his new album—Cab Calloway "6"—to be issued by Pip Records early next year.

The record conveys the big band sound Calloway helped make famous with his Hi-De-Ho orchestra, but there's a difference, said Joe Abend, president of Pip.

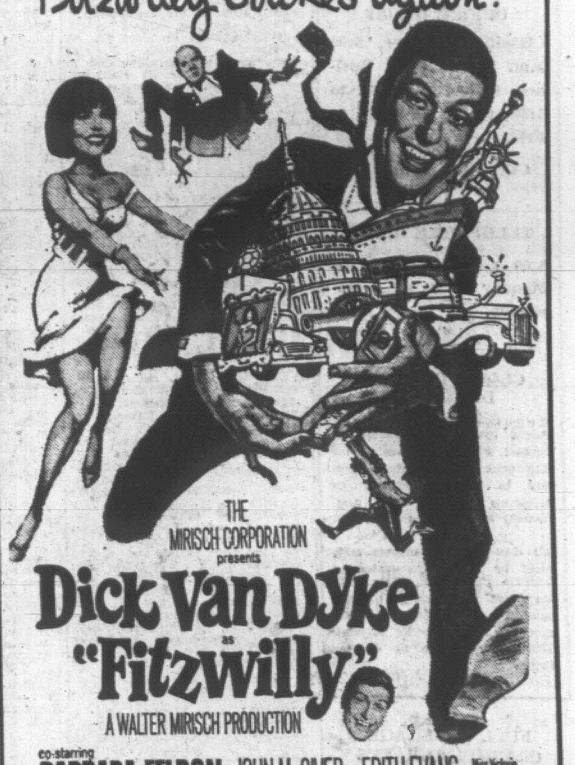

"Let's face it," Abend said. "The kids today don't know the old songs.

"We wanted to put him into a modern environment." He sings such show tunes as Hello, Dolly, Cabert, and Mame, but there are a few oldies such as September Song.

Pygmy Owls Show In Time for Count

This could be the year for Steller's Jays and Pygmy Owls when about 50 local bird watchers launch their annual beak count Saturday.

Several of the tiny owls, hardly the size of a robin, have been seen recently, naturalist David Stirling said today, although they have never been recorded during the traditional once-a-year count before.

And Steller's Jays, which are by no menas rare, are in great abundance this year and frequently seen in the city. It could be a record count for them.

The Victoria Natural History Society tally is held in conjunction with bird counts throughout North America. About 10,000 bird watchers in at least 700 localities from the Rio Grande to Alaska will be at work during the 10 days preceding Jan. 2.

VICTORIA HIGHEST

For several years Victoria has had the highest count of bird species in Canada, said Mr. Stirling, naturalist with the parks branch of the department of conservation and recreation.

Last year 128 species were spotted and 55,000 birds counted. About the same numbers are anticipated for this year.

Rarer species seen last year included Snowy Owls and Bohemian Waxwings.

Occasional influxes stem from a number of factors, including limited food supply elsewhere and optimum nesting conditions, although such variations are not yet fully understood, said Mr. Stirling.

The local count has been held on Boxing Day in years past.

The National Audubon Society in New Yourk co-ordinates efforts in the continent-wide count.

Doctors Use Big Grant For Exams

OTTAWA (CP) — A $250,000 grant has been awarded to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada by the board of trustees of the R. Samuel McLaughlin Foundation, it was announced Tuesday.

The college said in a statement it will use the grant to modify examination procedures for specialists through use of multiple choice tests to complement the present system of essay-type examinations.

New and more objective techniques for the college examinations also will be studied.

The statement said multiple-choice questions and more sophisticated techniques for oral examinations are being used in the United States and Britain.

The information gained is expected to lead to the development of a data centre in Canada to serve the needs of medical examinations.

The centre would bear the name of R. S. McLaughlin, chairman of the board of General Motors of Canada Ltd., the college said.

Wings Call Three

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League called up three players from their Fort Worth farm club Sunday.

LIEUT.-CMDR. WILSON

NAVY MAN

35-Year Career Ending

Thirty-five years of service with the Royal Canadian Navy will end Jan. 3 for Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. "Tug" Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, of 5152 Santa Clara Avenue, started his naval service in Halifax in 1933.

The outbreak of the Second World War saw him in the destroyer HMCS Saguenay in which he took part in the first England-bound convoy out of the east coast naval port.

He served in the Mediterranean, the Caribbean, on the Russian convoy routes and on the North Atlantic. He specialized in gunnery and weapons control systems.

TWO CORONATIONS

He attended two coronations: for King George VI and for Queen Elizabeth.

He held a number of appointments with the Pacific Maritime Command, serving on the frigates Ste. Therese and New Glasgow and for a two-year period was commanding officer of the minesweeper HMCS Cowichan.

Then he went to HMCS Cornwallis, the navy's new entry training establishment near Digby, Nova Scotia, as the base's first lieutenant-commander.

He returned to Esquimalt in 1964 to serve in a similar capacity at the (then) HMCS Naden, naval barracks. For a short time he was temporary executive officer of the barracks, and then became staff officer in charge of naval centennial projects throughout British Columbia.

Heavy Snow Blamed In Crash of Plane

A light plane crash last year which killed four people near Alert Bay has been blamed on continued flight into unfavorable weather conditions.

The civil aviation branch of the federal department of transport announced the verdict from its investigation Saturday.

Former Victoria pilot James McLellan, who had survived one crash previously, and three mainland businessmen died in the accident.

Their amphibious plane left Port Hardy April 11 of last year and was found submerged in Bamford Lagoon 30 miles northeast the next dy.

The team probing the accident for the DOT reported:

"Investigation at the scene established that the aircraft struck two trees near the water. At the time of impact, the aircraft was in a slightly nose-down attitude and in about a 45-degree bank to the right.

"It is considered probable that a heavy snow shower was encountered . . . which reduced visibility and the aircraft struck trees during a descending turn to the right."

There were no crash witnesses but people in the area reported snow showers during the day, said the report.

Mr. McLellan was survived by his wife Carole, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, who lived in Victoria.

DRIVER ALERT WHEN JUICED

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Don Dean proposes a shocking solution to keep motorists awake.

Dean, a 56-year-old automobile salesman, has wired his steering wheel so it gives the driver a mild charge of electricity at irregular intervals to prevent him from falling asleep. Dean tried it and said he had no trouble staying awake.

MAY HAVE OVERREACTED

'We Were Jittery' Heart Doctor Admits

WASHINGTON—The South African surgeon who performed the first human heart transplant on Dec. 3 said here Sunday the patient died in part because "we were jittery" and over-reacted to early signs the heart was being rejected.

Dr. Christian N. Barnard, of Groote Schuur Hospital, Cape Town, said "too vigorous use of drugs to suppress rejection helped lower Louis Washkansky's resistance to the point where pneumonia killed him Thursday. "Next time, we'll be less panicky," he said.

Dr. Barnard called medical results of placing a normal heart in an ailing body promising, adding that the new heart had cleared up some conditions caused by the ailing one in a "fantastic" manner.

Dr. Barnard was interviewed after taping a televison program.

At Groote Schuur on Dec. 3, Washkansky, who had been dying of heart failure, received the heart of 25-year-old Denise Darvall, who had been killed in an auto accident.

After Washkansky's death 18 days later, investigating doctors said they found no sign that the heart had been rejected, and attributed death to pneumonia.

DENTIST NEXT

Dr. Barnard said he had already selected his next patient, Philip Blaiber, a retired Cape Town dentist, and had explained to him that although Washkansky had died, "we feel we've learned a lot." Blaiberg is eager for the operation, he said, but no date has been set.

DR. BARNARD
. . . wait 'til next time

Dr. Barnard, speaking to reporters with a grave and sombre mien said he had administered the anti-rejection drugs to Washkansky in doses as large as are used in kidney transplants. But now he said, he believes, "we treated more than we should have."

The turning point in Washkansky's case came about the fourth day, Dr. Barnard said. At that time, doctors had been reducing the doses of the dangerous anti-rejection drugs.

But then, he said, came the first faint signs that heart function was deteriorating, that the feared rejection may have been beginning.

"I got jittery . . . jumpy . . ." He looked apologetically at his listeners with a mute request in his eyes for appreciation of the dilemma.

He knew drugs could reverse rejection within a day or two, but "with the heart . . . I got jumpy . . . if the heart fails . . . there is nothing to take over."

So he said, with an expression of sadness and self-reproach, he raised the dosages to combat the rejection.

Partly because of this, he said, germs present inside the patient were able to gain a foothold, and eventually kill him. Now, he says, his response was "too vigorous."

DIABETES A FACTOR

Dr. Barnard said also that Washkansky's diabetes probably contributed to his death by increasing his vulnerability to infection.

He said he was pleased by results produced by Miss Darvall's normal heart in Washkansky's diseased body.

CHRISTMAS DINNER POISONS FAMILY

BOGOTA (AP)—Eight members of a family in Tunja, central Colombia, were reported to have died of poisoning Monday after eating Christmas dinner.

Three other family members were reported in hospital in serious condition.

An outbreak of poisonings late last month in the central Colombian town of Chiquinquira killed at least 80. The November disaster was blamed on an insecticide which contaminated bread.

'Lunar Bug' Test Set Next Month by U.S.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. space agency today officially set Jan. 17 as the target launching date for its first unmanned Lunar Module, the type of craft which is to land U.S. astronauts on the surface of the moon.

The bug-like vehicle, perched upon the same Saturn I rocket that was on a nearby launch pad when three astronauts died there in a spacecraft fire Jan. 27 last, will be launched on an earth orbital exercise lasting about 6½ hours.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said the primary objective of the mission, officially designated Apollo 5, "is to verify that the Lunar Module is ready for manned operations in space."

If successful, the test will flight-qualify the main spacecraft propulsion engines and the Lunar Module's structural concept, NASA said.

Raise for Hirohito

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese government plans to give Emperor Hirohito and his family 23.5 per cent more a year to live on, raising their annual living allowance to $233,333. It has been $188,889 since 1964. The allowance, which must be approved by Parliament, pays for the Emperor, Empress Nagako, Crown Prince Akihito, his wife and their two children.

Family Poisoned?

CORDELE, Ga. (UPI) — An attractive 35-year-old woman, whose husband, three sons and grandson all died within the past two years, faced a hearing today on charges that she murdered one of them by lacing his coffee with arsenic. Authorities also reported that the mother of Mrs. Janie Lou Gibbs had entered hospital over the weekend. Mrs. Gibbs was so well-liked that about 25 children were taken each day by working mothers to her nursery.

CHRISTMAS ACROSS CANADA

Taxi Drivers Complain —No Snow in Montreal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taxi drivers in Montreal complained of lost business because of lack of snow and no impaired driving charges were laid on Christmas Eve in Calgary for the first time in memory as Canadians celebrated a traditional Christmas at home.

To handle the Christmas rush of travellers, Air Canada booked 50 additional flights in and out of Toronto and American airlines scheduled for extra flights to and from New York. Railways added extra trains and cars on their runs to Montreal, Windsor and western Canada.

Six inches of snow hid the dismal colors of late fall in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Charlottetown and Summerside, P.E.I., still had a foot of snow on the ground, but Newfoundland roads were bare under overcast skies.

Rain contined in lower Mainland area of British Columbia, but most other areas of the province reported snow. Up to two feet of snow had fallen in parts of the Cariboo.

About half an inch of snow fell in Montreal Christmas morning and Quebec City was sunny with temperatures in the mid 20s. Christmas party-goers used their own cars or public transportation as the snow melted on Montreal's main streets in 30-degree temperatures.

The old Brewery Mission in Montreal costinued its Yuletide tradition Monday as it served turkey dinners to 800 homeless men. Only a few minor accidents and impaired driving cases were reported.

Manitoba had blue skeies and sunshine in three-degree weather. About two-tenths of an insh of snow was added to the six inches of snow already on the ground.

The air was crisp in most parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan with temperatures at or below zero. Low-lying fog banks obscured the North Saskatchewan River in downtown Edmonton for most of Christmas morning.

TOO MUCH WATER SHUTS LIQUOR STORE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The booze was a little more watery than usual, so the government liquor store at 28th and Main was closed for six hours Friday.

Manager Doug Terry said Saturday that water from melting snow on the roof cascaded into the store through a vent.

Cartons of liquor and beer at floor level collapsed as the water swirled up to two inches deep, and stacks of higher cases came crashing down.

Mr. Terry said he had no idea yet of how much liquor was lost.

The store finally opened for business at 4 p.m. Friday.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA . . .

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

A time of high hopes—and hazards—for pets both old and new. However, the young are particularly susceptible to helpless holiday happenings. Most of these are challenges to gastronomic competency, especially among pups and kittens, and include: ornaments, or portions thereof, scraps of trimming, tassels and tinsel, and toys themselves, or portions, that are small enough to swallow. Free-flying feathered members may nibble on a tree or ornaments, or enmesh themselves in wires or ribbon. Any of these events can prove tragic. Kittens especially are attracted to glitter (pins, for instance) and once they get an object well back in their mouth, they find it easier to swallow than spit out. A well-fed puppy will still sample practically anything it can get in its mouth, but a hungry one will gulp down an even wider variety of objects—and considerably faster.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Some friends tell me I should feed my parakeet greens and others tell me not to, that it will make him sick. I'm confused and would like some really expert advice on this, which I will follow. (My friend who is the strongest advocate of feeding greens has never had a parakeet live longer than four years, and I wonder.)—C. C.

DEAR C. C.: I would, too. Excessive greens, overly wet greens or greenery contaminated by chemicals all can be life-shorteners. Many breeders never feed any greens. On the other hand, many budgie breeders use, and advocate feeding, some green food. I personally feel judicious use of really fresh greens is advantageous from a nutritional standpoint, as well as to relieve boredom.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our Mississippi Map turtle, Theodora, has been terribly indecisive, of late. This will be her first winter with us and she can't seem to make up her mind regarding hibernation. Will she or won't she, and when should she? Right now, she acts half asleep but still eats once in awhile. Because she doesn't really act as if she knows her own mind in this regard, she's leaving us all a bit in the dark.—T. K.

DEAR T. K.: Theodora's tours into the twilight zone should be either encouraged or eliminated entirely. This indecision could cost Theodora her life, as the half-hibernating turtle usually eats too little to maintain the spark of life indefinitely. Tempt Theodora's torpidity by keeping her in the dark and at a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees in a draft-free nest of dirt and or shavings.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: It's my little rat, Finkie, I'm writing about. She has this stupid habit of chewing holes in her fur. How can I get her to stop it?—H. A.

DEAR H. A.: Finkie's frazzled fur could be due to a variety of causes. If she's nervous—a common complaint among rat-Finkies—she may simply be chewing on fur instead of her fingernails. In this event, a happier home life and more exercise, including possibly some with a male companion, should prove beneficial. Or, this scraggly syndrome could indicate a vitamin, mineral or fatty acid deficiency. If so, nutritional adjustment and or additives may be in order. Other possible factors vary from skin infections or parasites, to allergies. I'd like to be more specific, but only a local rodent-restorer can actually pinpoint Finkie's trouble.

'Please Kiss A Nurse'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A team of surgeons has successfully inserted an electronic device to maintain the normal heartbeat of 101-year-old Hugh Chambers Steward.

Afterward the Ireland-born, great grandfather looked past his surgeons—who used a newly-developed heart-saving technique—and spotted his nurses.

"Kiss one of the ladies for me?" he said with a smile after the 1½ hours of surgery.

Surgeons said Steward, born Sept. 5, 1866, in Dromore, Ireland, is one of the oldest persons on record to benefit from the new technique.

The electronic device is known as a Pacemaker and is about the size of a woman's compact. It is embedded between the ribs and the skin in superficial tissues of the chest and a wire leads to the chest.

It artificially produces the normal impulse that shoots some 70 times a minute from the top of the heart down to the bottom, causing blood to be pumped.

Teachers Come Up Over

MELBOURNE (CP) — The drift of Australian teachers across the Pacific to Canada has become so serious it is being called the "classroom brain drain."

Last year, 300 resigned here to seek a new career in Canadian schools. Up to Sept. 30 this year, 413 had quit. Every month more and more are leaving.

These resignations are worrying enough for Australian education authorities, but the drain is no longer confined to teachers, valuable as they are.

One of Australia's leading education specialists, Dr. Bryan Clarke, 44, vice-principal of a centre for deaf children in Melbourne, is going to Vancouver.

And a brilliant young lecturer in psychology at Monash University, Melbourne, Dr. Alan Worthington, 31, is moving to Trent University at Peterborough, Ont.

Dr. Clarke has specialized since 1954 in the teaching of deaf children. At a school in Kew, Melbourne, he has been training teachers to work with deaf children. His outstanding pioneering efforts have put the State of Victoria far in the lead in educational opportunities for handicapped children.

He leaves Australia Jan. 6 for Vancouver where he will be associate professor of special education at the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Clarke will get $4,000 a year more in Vancouver than he does in Melbourne; Dr. Worthington $8,000 more at Trent than at Monash. But both stress that it isn't only the money that is persuading them to uproot their families and move.

MORE FREEDOM

Dr. Clarke will still be training teachers in specialized work, but at the university in British Columbia he will have more freedom than in Melbourne.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bobby Wolley, age 11, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, for his question:

What are the sleeping habits of the seal?

Scientists who study animal behavior try to forget the usual behavior patterns of human beings. This is especially true when they set about studying the sleep patterns of the animal kingdom. In most cases, these patterns simply cannot be compared to our notions of regular nightly sleep.

The seal at the circus is classified in the animal order Pinnipedia, meaning fin-footed. He has dozens of cousins and on the subject of basic daily habits, each species has its own ideas. The details of their behavior patterns are not easy to study because scientists must go to sea in order to observe them. What's more, many seals migrate to and from their breeding grounds. And many tend to change their behavior with their seasonal visits to land and sea. Hence, we cannot give a detailed report of all their sleeping habits.

The Celtic peoples of Scotland and Ireland had some fabulous notions about the night life of their seals. They claimed that these sea-going mammals come ashore at night, shed their fur coats and frolic around like sky larking human beings. A modern scientist might smile at these legends, but naturally he would write them off as folk fantasy. However, he might offer a suggestion as to how these yarns got started. Many types of seal come ashore to sleep at night. In the moonlight, a glistening wet herd settling down for a sound night's sleep might, just might, be mistaken for frolicking people.

The mammals have the most highly developed brains and nervous systems in the animal kingdom. This complicated biological equipment requires regular periods of rest and sleep. All the mammals sleep, but their patterns range from short cat naps to the deep, long winter coma of hibernation.

Sleeps in Water

Most land mammals seek quiet shelters for their sleep periods. But the seal is a sea-going mammal and the sea offers no shelter from prowling sharks and bloodthirsty killer whales. Most seal species can sleep either on land or floating on their backs in the water. The walrus giant of the clan can doze comfortably on a chunk of ice.

Most seals share life with a herd of friends and relatives. This gives them plenty of chances to enjoy their natural impulses to play and squabble. And, since there is safety in numbers, it also provides protection from their enemies. Most species love to bask and during these daylight dozes, a few old troupers can be trusted to keep an eye open for trouble. The circus seal is a sea lion. His relatives bask and doze on the rocks off the British Columbia coast and perhaps sleep there at night. Other species that live along more desolate shores are believed to come ashore for a safe and sound sleep every night of the year.

Most members of a seal herd are directly or indirectly related to each other. Many species migrate at certain seasons to their ancestral breeding grounds on remote islands. The family herd is usually a harem of wives and youngsters dominated by a reigning bull, and during the breeding season, this fellow has his problems. His nautral impulses of jealousy and protectiveness keep him alert day and night. He stays on guard for weeks, never leaving his rocky post even to eat. If and when he dozes, he certainly does so with one of his watchful eyes at least partly open.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Dawn Dunbar, age 11, of Bodines, Pennsylvania, for her question:

What is an archaeopteryx?

His fancy scientific name means "the ancient winged one." And that is just what he was. Three specimens of his fossilized remains were found in the last century and now are preserved in European museums. He was the world's earliest early bird and he took to the air during the Mesozoic Era that belonged to the dinosaurs. He was about the size of a modern crow and his features were so reptilian that his form could be mistaken for a small dinosaur. But archaeopteryx was clothed, not in reptile scales but in bird feathers.

Instead of a regular bird beak, however, he had a long beak of toothy jaws. The bones of each wing extended to form three workable little fingers and most likely he used them to climb trees. His entire body was covered with feathers. His wings and his long reptile tail were fringed with borders of stiff pinions. Archaeopteryx lived about 140 million years ago and soon became extinct to make room for more advanced members of the bird family.

King Eyes Return but Prisoner Amnesty Almost a Farce

ATHENS (AP) — A close friend of King Constantine, serving as mediator between him and the Greek military junta, says he is "100 per cent certain" the 27-year-old monarch will return to his throne "in perhaps the next few days."

This report from Haralambos Potamianos, a retired air vice-marshal, was bolstered by a remark by Queen Frederika, the king's mother, who told photographers in Rome taking Christmas pictures of the royal family: "We hope to return to Greece soon."

The king fled to Rome after his attempt Dec. 13 to overthrow the military dictatorship collapsed. Negotiators have been trying to arrange his return to Athens.

Asked by reporters in Rome if he would be returning for more talks, Potamianos said: "I hope not. I am 100 per cent certain the king will return. It might happen in the next few days."

He disclosed that the king and Premier George Papandopoulos, leader of the junta, exchanged Christmas greetings by cable.

In Athens, one celebrated prisoner of the regime was free but a second was still in prison after the junta suddenly reversed a promise of Papadopoulos to free 2,600 political prisoners for Christmas.

Andreas Papandreau, son of the former premier George Papandreou, was reunited with his family, but composer Mikis Theodorakis, who wrote the score for the film Zorba the Greek, was still in prison in Athens.

The about-face on the amnesty meant that only about 300 persons would be freed, the secretary-general of the ministry of public order, Col. John Ludas, said. He told reporters the clemency did not extend to "hard-core Communists," and he included in this category the 2,600 persons arrested after the April 21 coup and held since then on the islands of Leros and Yioura.

They have not been officially charged, and none has been put on trial.

'NOT HOSTILE'

U.S. Seeks To Calm Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state department sought today to quiet the fears of Cambodia that U.S. military forces might move into that neutral country to root out Communist Vietnamese military elements which take refuge there.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he wanted to reaffirm that the United States has "no hostile intention toward Cambodia" and will continue to seek a peaceful settlement of the problem posed by "the use of Cambodian territory by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army units."

The state department addressed itself to the issue shortly after Cambodia broadcast a communique saying that it would "offer desperate resistance" to any U.S. forces entering Cambodia "allegedly pursuing Communist Vietnamese forces."

The communique said it would call for help from military forces of other countries.

NOTE TO PRINCE

McCloskey said the United States, in a Dec. 4 note to Prince Norodom Sihanouk's government, tried to give him information which would help him deal with the problem of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces seeking sanctuary in Cambodia after battles with allied forces in the south.

The note, according to McCloskey, pointed out that the United States "has made or supported a number of proposals" to try to deal with the problem.

McCloskey also acknowledged the United States received late last week a reply from Cambodia which again rejected the idea that Communist Vietnamese forces in any number are on Cambodian territory and charged the United States was trying to impose its military will over the whole area.

'We'll Ask For Help'

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The Cambodian government warned today that it would appeal for help from friendly countries if American troops crossed into its territory.

It also said the Americans would meet stubborn armed resistance from the Cambodian people.

The government statement followed reports from Washington that the U.S. is considering plans to pursue Viet Cong guerrillas who allegedly use Cambodia as a sanctuary before and after action in South Vietnam.

The Cambodian government has denied charges that the guerrillas launch attacks from inside Cambodia and use that country as a refuge.

U.S. Bombs Convoys As Short Truce Ends

IN PARIS today en route to Africa for diplomatic meetings, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do of South Vietnam denied he planned any talks with North Vietnamese representatives.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers swept over North Vietnam immediately after the southern allied Christmas truce ended and tore up Communist convoys trying to complete a massive movement of supplies started under the umbrella of the ceasefire.

U.S. headquarters reported about 100 trucks destroyed or damaged in the heavy strikes which began Christmas night and continued today. A ferry carrying eight trucks was blown up and sunk.

Headquarters reported that U.S. jets spotted more than 300 trucks, one of the biggest transport targets of the war.

The ground war also resumed after the truce ended at 6 p.m. Christmas night (5 a.m. EST Monday) but only scattered actions were reported. The Viet Cong had announced that it would observe a 72-hour Christmas truce, until 1 a.m. Wednesday (noon EST today).

Acting on intelligence from reconnaissance planes which maintained the vigil over the North during the truce, first planes reached the target area with only a few minutes of light remaining. Long strings of flares were dropped, and the bombing continued throughout Christmas night.

RAINS BOMBS ON CONVOY

A 150-truck convoy was scattered along seven miles of highway below Thanh Hoa. Navy Skyhawk jets rained 500-pound bombs along the route, dotting it with billowing fires that lighted the night sky.

Farther south, near Vinh, a 100-truck convoy was blasted.

The ferry south of Vinh was hit just before sundown.

Communiques made no mention of any planes lost on the raids over the North, but a marine observation plane was shot down in South Vietnam.

Vital Military Posts in Laos 'Attacked by N. Viet Troops'

SAIGON (AP)—Laotian military sources said today North Vietnamese regulars had attacked two strategic military posts inside Laos and probably had overrun one of them.

The two posts were identified as Lam Bak, north of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, and Phalane, in southern Laos, close to the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Communications from the Laotian capital of Vietiane said both posts had been attacked by strong forces of North Vietnamese regulars.

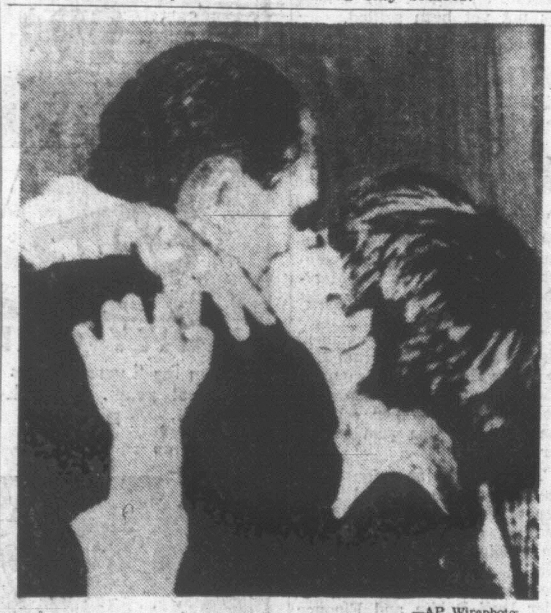

Presumably the attacks took place within the last 24 hours, but the messages from Vientiane did not say precisely.

Lam Bak was believed to have fallen to the North Vietnamese. Military sources said the post was lightly defended and that all communications from it had ceased.

Phalane was better defended and was thought to have repulsed the attacks.

Earlier, the government radio of Laos broadcast a defence ministry statement saying "the military situation is very critical and tense" following a series of attacks on government positions by North Vietnamese regular troops.

It was the second time in two weeks that the Laotian government had reported attacks against its troops by North Vietnamese forces.

Blast Shatters Moscow Block

MOSCOW (AP)—An explosion shattered a six-storey apartment building Monday night.

Tass news agency said today nine persons were killed and several injured, but a witness at the scene said a policeman told him more than 20 persons were killed.

Another bystander said 10 or 12 bodies were removed from the wreckage.

The blast was believed by a burst gas main, the result of a rare winter thaw in Moscow. Temperatures soared 40 degrees, from below zero to above freezing in the last two days, expanding and flexing buried gas mains.

In an unrelated incident, 10 minutes earlier on the opposite side of the Moscow River, a powerful bomb wrecked the auto of Henry S. Bradsher, Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow. No one was injured.

The apartment house blew up about 9:30 p.m., bystanders said. About 100 persons were believed living in the building's 24 apartments two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Rescue workers with searchlights hunted in a heavy snowfall for victims while dozens of ambulances, fire engines and police cars gathered at the wreckage.

Most of the residents were believed at home because it was an ordinary weekday night. Russians celebrate Christmas Jan. 7, according to the Julian calendar.

Gas explosions are not rare in the Soviet capital, although they are not publicly reported and officials refuse to disclose information on their frequency. The same area was hit by a tremendous gas explosion last January that knocked out telephone communications for days. This never was publicly reported.

The Soviet press and radio maintained a blackout on the disaster Monday night also, and police, troops and barriers blocked off the mass of rubble and torn walls.

Hundreds of Russians gathered this morning as a huge crane worked behind a board fence thrown up overnight. Police and soldiers would not allow Western newspaper men to enter.

"I saw them get a woman and a little girl out alive, but not many could come through that blast," a man said.

SHATTERS WINDOWS

Concrete lamp posts were flattened for 100 yards. Windows in surrounding buildings were blown out. Their electricity and water were cut off.

The destroyed building was part of a block of apartments facing Karsnokhlmsky Street, a main traffic artery that circles downtown Moscow. It stood at the end of the Karsnokhlmsky bridge over the Moscow River about two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

Police investigating the bombing of Bradsher's automobile seemed perplexed, and veteran foreign correspondents could not recall an attack similar to it in Moscow.

Bradsher said he did not believe the bombing was directed against him or his family. He

MOTHER, 5 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

ST. EDOUARD, Alta. (CP) — A mother and her five children died in their blazing farm home early today as she vainly sought to bring them to safety.

RCMP identified the victims as Mrs. Ronald Nielsen, 30, and her children, Arthur, Ronnie, Brenda, Beverley and Barbara, aged 18 months to 10 years.

Mr. Nielsen was taken to hospital in nearby St. Paul, 130 miles northeast of Edmonton, with severe shock and burns, suffered when he tried to climb through a bedroom window to save his trapped family.

A neighbor said Mrs. Nielsen had been ironing on Christmas Day and it was suggested that the iron may have been left on.

The family had lived in the two-storey, 45-year-old house for about a year.

Neighbors said the father told them when he woke at 2:30 a.m. he noticed a small fire near the stove. He ran to the front door, intending to start his car and carry the children to it.

When he opened the door, there was a blast and the fire roared up the walls of the building, defeating his efforts to get back inside. He summoned neighbors but they were unable to help.

A neighbor described the house as a "wooden fire trap."

Survives Drain Plunge

LEWISTON, N.Y. (AP) — A New York state trooper searching for a young girl believed drowned in a creek was swept through a big drain pipe today and then tumbled about 200 feet into the Niagara gorge.

Trooper Kenneth J. Troidl, 27, suffered only bruises.

Princes' Purses Picked

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Home Minister Yashwantrao Chavan told Indian maharajahs and princes today that the government intends to abolish their privy purses and privileges.

The privy purses were granted to the princely rulers when they agreed to merge their states with India at the time of independence in 1947. They were also given privileges such as flying their own flags, freedom from taxes and from prosecution except by special permission of the government.

The government pays out about 48,000,000 rupees ($6,900,000) a year for the privy purses to 279 princes varying from 2,600,000 rupees to the maharajah of Mysore down to 2,400 rupees to former rulers of minor states.

WILSON VISIT TO KOSYGIN?

LONDON (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson may visit Moscow early next year for talks with Soviet Premier Kosygin, informed sources here said today. Wilson is to visit Washington in February for talks with U.S. President Johnson.

Peking Silent On Report

TOKYO (CP) — Peking kept silent again today about a report from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission that the Chinese had set off their seventh nuclear test explosion Sunday.

The silence heightened speculation that something went wrong.

Official boasting and reports of celebrations in the streets followed each of China's six previous blasts. But a Radio Peking broadcast Monday made no mention of the reported Christmas Eve explosion in the Lop Nor testing area of central Asia. Instead it reviewed the first six blasts and touted the thought of Mao Tse-tung.

The AEC estimated the explosion equalled 20,000 tons of TNT. That would be similar to the first atomic bomb, dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

Japanese Air Force planes detected unusual radioactive fallout over Japan today, but the government said it was not great enough to endanger humans.

However, the government said the radioactivity was the second strongest ever detected coming from China, exceeded only by that of China's third nuclear blast, an A-bomb equal to more than 200,000 tons of TNT, set off May 9, 1966.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that there was no official word there Monday of the test.

Scientists at Niigata, northern Japan, today detected seven giant radioactive particles which they believed were caused by the Chinese blast.

Scientists said the latest test was believed to have taken place in the atmosphere about noon Sunday.

A Japanese military writer, Tadao Tusumi, said the latest Chinese test was believed connected with experiments with low-yield nuclear weapons. The low yield of the explosion could indicate the bomb was carried by a medium-range missile, experts in Washington said.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Indian Boy Can Stand Up to Say Thanks

By KATHRINE THOMAS

The Unitarian Service Committee is dedicated to helping the desperately needy on a person-to-person basis.

It is often difficult to imagine how our small contribution can help the thousands suffering in Asia.

But when we hear of individual cases, we begin to understand how far a little money can go to alleviate pain.

Take little Kuperndra, a six-year-old Indian boy who was born a cripple.

His parents were too busy struggling to earn enough rupees for food for their large family to have time to worry about Kuperndra.

For all his short life, he had been unable to walk. He used to crawl pitifully around their dark, tiny hut

One day, a USC worker visited the home and discovered the little boy.

The worker took him to see an orthopaedic surgeon and because of the generosity of Canadians, the little boy was able to have the operation he needed.

His legs are still a little deformed because he had been neglected for so long.

But he can walk, run and play with his little brothers and sisters for the first time in his life.

His mother cried with happiness to see that her child was cured.

She thanked the USC worker profusely and asked that her deepest gratitude be conveyed to the Canadian angels of mercy who had made the operation possible.

No longer would she have to live with the terrible fear that her son must spend his days as a crippled beggar in the market place begging for his every meal.

Her child would now be able to make his way as a man in the world.

Donations to the Children of Asia Fund may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates and Douglas, the Times Business office, or mailed in care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Perhaps it was the very money contributed by Victorians which made such a miracle possible.

Official receipts will be sent out from the USC in January.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova serves Canada's wonder drink to the children of India.

New Law for a New Era

THE UNVEILING OF THE Anglo-French supersonic Concorde airliner a few days ago added urgency to the words of Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin who a short time before had spoken of the new problems in national and international air law which are being presented. Such giant aircraft as the Concorde—undoubtedly to be followed by others—will make necessary new agreements on service, new provision for the rights of people on the ground and in the air, and a new approach to legislation governing the world's flying space which now will shrink more quickly than ever.

It is odd but true that in some respects more progress in legal concepts has been made in space travel than in air travel, for the newness of the former medium has made necessary new guides for its use. Thus the recent Outer Space Treaty laid the basis for the peaceful exploration and use of outer space, the moon and other celestial bodies. This is a move toward a common rejection of the military use of space—a concept which has had very limited application in the nations' use of the air. Like new departures in international control of the ocean floor and its resources, the discussions on space indicate a recognition of a new global responsibility among the nations—the glimmering of an understanding that the earth must be kept safe for the benefit of all peoples.

Mr. Martin raised some specific points in his address to the Second International Conference on Air and Space Law. Two matters of present concern are agreements on assistance and return of astronauts, and on the liability for damage resulting from launching objects into space. Here even the basic terms must be defined before any concrete agreement can be reached. And there may be interesting repercussions, for the new concepts in regard to space liability, for instance, may bring about a new look at existing practices in regard to liability in the air, because obviously there would have to be a measure of harmony in the approaches of the law to these two problems.

Jurisdiction in air space may be enforceable at comparatively low altitudes, but outer space raises new problems. Equally so does the impending era of giant airliners with their sonic booms and the ground measures necessary to counteract them. The new airports which will be necessary create questions of location and public liability. Recognition of the principle of freedom of the air, with its problems of overflight, will require a high degree of international integration in pooling arrangements, union agreements, and mergers to spread the enormous costs of the new equipment over larger business bases. This indicates that bilateral agreements in air travel may soon become obsolete and that far-reaching multilateral agreements will be necessary from now on.

In meeting these new problems of air space, the growing experience in outer space law is bound to exert some influence on our thinking. The questions raised by the impact of technology are pushing the nations into new fields of international co-operation. Our jurists will have to meet this challenge as successfully as the scientists and engineers are meeting theirs.

Rise and Fall

ALTHOUGH THE TERM "client state" for a dependent of one of the great powers is commonly used, it is becoming obvious that the description is seldom accurate. The foremost current example of this is South Vietnam's relations with the United States where, although the former is entirely dependent on the latter militarily and largely dependent economically, the two still fail to act in concert.

President Johnson, in his latest television address to his country, made the point several times that peace might be found through informal talks between South Vietnamese President Thieu and leaders of the National Liberation Front. The reaction of President Thieu was that he would talk to NFL spokesmen only if they defected to the Saigon regime. This intransigence on the part of a chief of state who is in effect little more than an American puppet may seem strange unless it is recognized that the United States is also a captive of the South Vietnam government. The Saigon regime is no doubt involved in corruption; some of its army lacks the will to fight; it delays land reforms or economic reforms which are necessary; but it knows that the investment of the United States in terms of men killed, money spent and prestige committed is so great that an American withdrawal is impossible unless Saigon is willing to negotiate.

West Germany and Greece are two other vivid examples of how "client states" can entrap their sponsor. Both were armed by the United States as bulwarks against Communism; both are proving to be an embarrassment—Greece with its reactionary military dictatorship based on American arms, and West Germany with its awkward attitude toward the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

There are many other instances of the same phenomenon, and not only for the United States but for Soviet Russia, which also exercises extra-territorial influence. China was the "client state" which got out of the control of Russia, while Cuba is a thorn in Moscow's side and Yugoslavia, Romania, Egypt and Syria are also providing headaches.

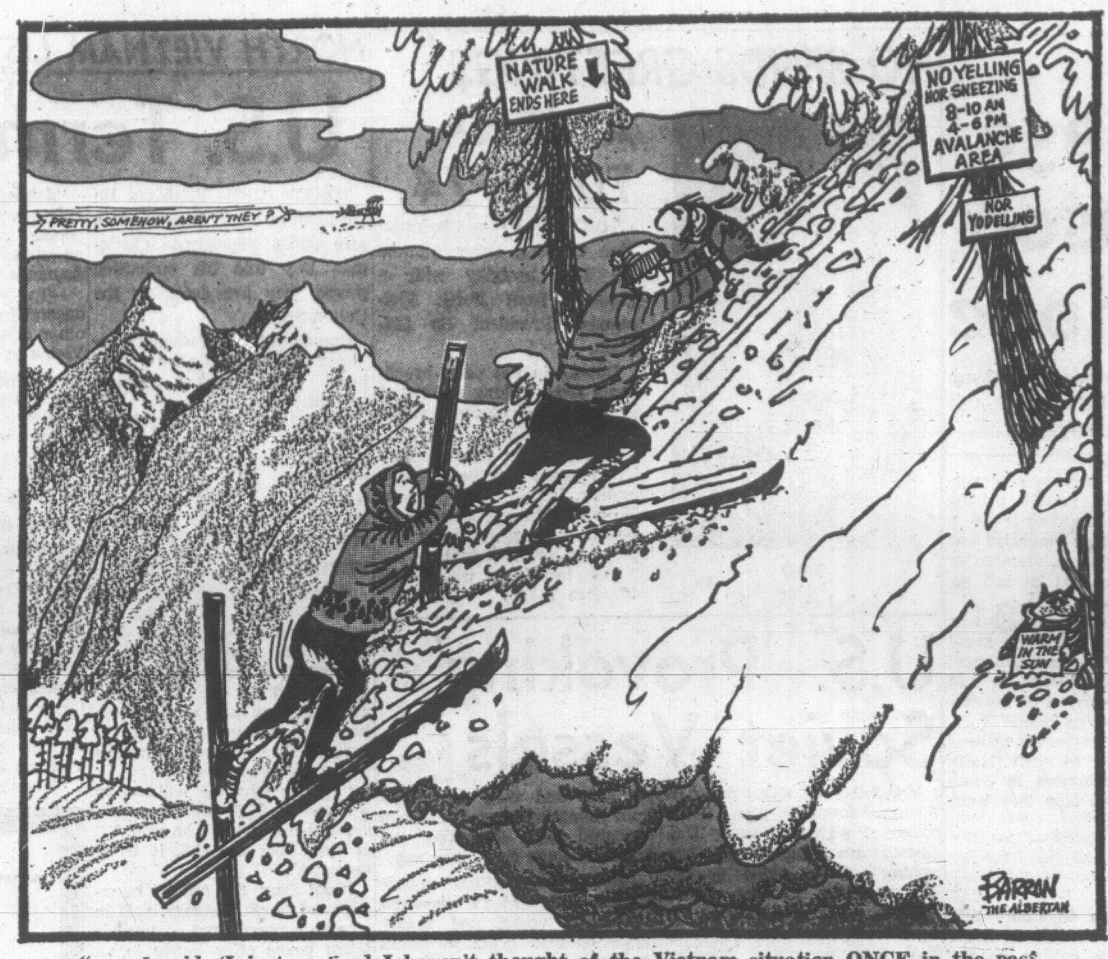

The lesson seems to be that foreign aid inculcates self-sufficiency in the beneficiary, which in turn leads to a tendency to throw off the reins of the donor country. In the enlightened foreign-aid programs of today this, of course, is the objective. But another factor in the ultimate decline of "imperialistic" gestures is that too often the donor nation fails to adapt to new conditions inside and outside the evolving client state. Seeking mainly to retain the status quo, its policies become outdated and unworkable, and its influence consequently dwindles.

Non-Resident School Fees

THE CASE OF THE YOUNG student whose parents reside out of town and against whom the usual non-resident fees have been assessed for attendance at Oak Bay Senior Secondary School has come to a happy conclusion. A Vancouver firm has provided a special "Christmas bursary" to cover the charge and the grandparents with whom the young lady stays have accepted the gift.

The incident points up an anomaly in the present fee structure applied to schools. It is reasonable enough to levy an assessment against the child of a non-resident if no school costs are being met by the family. If such charges were not imposed, then tax-paying residents of a school district could be saddled with the burden of educating children of parents who make no contribution.

But anyone owning property in British Columbia pays property taxes in one form or another—as do renters whose rates include a share of the landlord's tax payments. Taxes are inescapable, even for the grandparents in the Oak Bay case. Is there not some relatively simple method of transferring a portion of parents' tax payments to another school district to cover the tuition of their children living there? This would avoid the burden of double payments to educate a child. The point is worth some attention when the legislature meets again.

A Losing Battle With the Calendar

MR. PEARSON, the most incurably optimistic prime minister in our history, is once again in trouble with the calendar. As the centennial session manifestly cannot be fitted into centennial year, the unfinished business will have to be carried forward as it was at the end of 1964 and again at the end of 1966. The difficulty is certainly not on this occasion attributable to an obstructionist opposition. After the struggles of last spring, the government planned a centennial session devoted largely to social legislation of a character unlikely to divide members on partisan lines.

Western

A good deal of time has been given over to matters such as capital punishment and divorce reform and more weeks will be demanded when Parliament resumes. In addition the Conservatives under Mr. Stanfield's leadership have been markedly co-operative, according the government a valuable breathing space by treating the issue of national unity, at least for the present, as out of bounds.

Financial Upset

What was obviously not contemplated when Mr. Pearson, in a burst of August enthusiasm, proposed a bill-a-day pace for the resumed session, was the financial crisis, which necessitated a second budget. But the proposal was never a realistic objective. There has always been a gap between the government's aspirations, which are limitless, and its capacity to manage Parliament's business. For example, no prime minister has attached such importance to committees, but in fact a dozen of them are not organized even now, and the list of dormant groups includes such important committees as that on public accounts.

In announcing his decision to resign following the Liberal leadership convention next spring, Mr. Pearson left the impression that what he had in mind was a bit of tidying up when Parliament returns in January, a short break and then a new session. But he was rather vague about these plans and seemed more concerned to dispel the impression that, as outgoing leader, he would suffer any diminution of authority either in his party or in Parliament or in the federal-provincial conference next February.

It may, in fact, be a good thing if Mr. Pearson on this occasion, falls even farther behind in his struggle with the calendar. For a new session prior to April will mean a new throne speech, written of course by the present prime minister but at the least foreshadowing the actions of the new prime minister, as yet unknown, who will emerge from the Liberal convention.

Unusual Clarity

There is no insuperable difficulty here. It used to be accepted that a throne speech conceals as much as it reveals and Mr. Pearson could doubtless revert, if he chose, to the earlier tradition. But this would be a rather sharp and perhaps embarrassing break from his own straight-forward style. Although the speech of last May did contain a good deal of centennial rhetoric, it has been his custom to set out the government's program with a good deal of clarity at the beginning of each session. At times we have even had background briefings on the significance of passages placed in His Excellency's mouth.

A party in opposition possesses a freedom in conventions not shared by a party in power. The Liberals, according to their present plans, intend to make the Ottawa gathering a serious exercise in policy building. This will be no easy task with a leadership struggle in progress. The Conservatives, despite their trial run at the Montmorency conference, were frustrated in their effort and in the end could do no more than turn over to their new leader resolutions (some very controversial) which had never gone past the committee stage.

But in the case of the Liberals the difficulty will be compounded because a government must govern and not be governed, even by its own supporters assembled in convention. This was shown rather painfully at the time of the last liberal meeting. Scarcely had the echoes died away when the prime minister made it very plain that he could not be bound by a resolution calling for a North American-Caribbean free trade area.

The problem is even more awkward when the leadership is involved. Mr. Pearson presides over a cabinet which has long been divided on economic issues. In seeking to maintain a balance he has sometimes gone to extraordinary lengths; for example, in bringing back to his council Mr. Walter Gordon, who was so much the leader of an opposition within the party that he even challenged the government in external affairs. That deep differences persist is manifest from Mr. Pearson's own long and damaging silence on the key issue of medicare.

Such dangerous issues are not easily blurred at the best of times. How are the ministers to preserve the necessary appearance of unity when the various contenders for leadership are bidding against each other for delegate support. Some Liberals already see the convention as the climax of a long struggle to determine whether the party will continue on the radical path favored by Mr. Gordon, or whether it will veer back towards the middle of the road.

This can only mean that a new session before April will open at a time of great uncertainty. But perhaps it is not necessary. The back-log of unfinished business will probably take a good deal longer than is generally assumed. A recess until after the convention would permit the new prime minister to meet Parliament with his own program. This would seem the best solution even if it meant another losing battle with the calendar at the end of 1968.

FROM LONDON — By TIM TRAYNOR

Concorde and Technology's Challenge

IRONY of ironies, Britain and France have shown what co-operation can produce at the very moment General de Gaulle is manning the barricades to keep Britain out of the European Common Market. The doors of a hangar in Southern France opened last week and there, for all the world to see, was a prototype of the first supersonic jetliner, jointly developed by the British and French aircraft industries. In the words of the British Minister of Technology, Anthony Wedgwood Benn, it would henceforth be known to the British not as Concord, but as the French-style Concorde, the final 'e' standing for "excellence, for England, for Europe and for the Entente—that alliance of sympathy and affection which binds our two countries together."

Traynor

The obvious question which arises is: Why does the co-operation end with projects like the Concorde? It is a question which increasingly puzzles and vexes European leaders. They see here the nucleus of European technology and feel that its urgent development is imperative if Europe is not to fall into total dependence of the United States for the products of advanced technology in industry. It is recognized that the nations of Europe individually have not the resources to challenge American dominance. Their comparatively small markets do not justify the huge research and development costs which American industries easily absorb in the course of pioneering a new process. Neither do individual European states have anything on the scale of the U.S. space and military programs generating futuristic technologies at government expense. Only Britain and France are still within hailing distance of the Americans and it is recognized that the European technological future is in their hands.

How long can General de Gaulle avoid coming fully to grips with this issue? He is certainly not doing so at present, for all his protestations of concern about the American threat to European industry. He spurns the most promising path to European technological co-operation—British membership of the Market.

He argues that British Market membership is not necessary for co-operation, often pointing to Concorde as proof of the fact. But he will convince no one that as much can be done without Britain in, as with Britain as a member of the ECM. The Wilson government which has offered to participate in a European technological community, has made it clear it will be much more reserved in its approach to co-operation if it is to occur outside the Common Market framework. Britain spends far more than all the other European countries put together on research and development, has highly-developed aeronautic and nuclear power technologies, has a respectable electronics industry and has maintained, alone among the European countries, the nucleus of an independent computer industry. (The French government is attempting to establish one now after watching the majority of the French industry fall to the American computer giants.)

Were there no American challenge, Europe could probably get by without full British technological co-operation. But can it do so in the present situation? The obvious fact remains that the challenge continues to grow. The conclusion of Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber in his recent, widely read study, Le Defi Americain, is significant. He found it is not so much the dollar which makes the Americans formidable as their technological prowess, encouraged by effective mass education and marketing policies.

There is a further aspect of the Gaullist attitude which is highly questionable. As always, the orientation is toward the protection of national sovereignty. This is almost certainly incompatible with the sort of technological development which is patently necessary. Uniformity is the essence of the U.S. achievement. Funds are allocated by centralized authorities, whether government or industry, on the basis of policy decisions which will apply to the country as a whole. Resources need not be split between a variety of projects tailored to regional policies.

To Compete

If it is to compete with the Americans, Europe can hardly help moving toward centralization and policy harmonization. Sovereignty must of necessity be compromised. What the Common Market has achieved in this direction, despite Gen. de Gaulle, is only a start. There is a need for co-ordinated tax and tariff policies and a common company law to encourage cross-boundary mergers producing European companies. (U.S. companies doing over $300 million business yearly outnumber comparable companies based in the Common Market by six to one.) There will also ultimately be a need for a common military procurement policy. This cannot be divorced from the wider issue of the future military role of Europe, and is in some ways unattractive. But while Europe follows separate procurement policies, it will be handicapped in its efforts to compete technologically with the United States. An indication of the sort of handicap was provided this summer when the Anglo-French variable-geometry fighter aircraft was cancelled. The plane had to be designed to suit the differing requirements of the British and French governments, a situation which produced complications and finally led the French to pull out.

Looking Back

From the Times, Dec. 26, 1907.

What will probably be the first electric searchlight to be used for a danger signal will be installed at Cape Flattery in a few days by the U.S. lighthouse tender Columbine. The installation of the light is a new plan which it is believed will be of unusual benefit to shipping.

Electric searchlights are believed to be more effective in piercing fog banks than the usual fixed or revolving light of the coastwise towers.

Like Shipyard Workers?

I see in your issue for December 15 that John Schibli, president of the Carpenters' Union, states that carpenters' wages increased 50 per cent between 1946 and 1956.

Since 1949 the cost of living has increased by approximately 50 per cent. In 1949 carpenters' wages were increased to $1.25 per hour. Since 1949 and up to 1967 they have increased almost 300 per cent.

Many carpenters will probably find themselves in the same position as the shipyard workers and for the same reason.—T. M. Watson, 1663 Rockland.

From Youth to Elderly

Tuesday evening the Senior Citizens of Kiwanis Village and The Villa were given a very nice treat when students of the University provided a bus to take us out to see the very beautiful lighting of the city. This was greatly appreciated by all those who took part. On coming back to the Villa a short musical program was enjoyed and all the old carols sung. It was beautiful.

We would like to commend those young people and thank them very much. — Mary J. Carmichael No. 2, Hibberson Crescent.

Very Un-Merry

Once again the people of British Columbia have been slapped in the face by the hand of Premier Bennett. This time his whipping boy is the taxpayer who likes to take a drink and have one for his friends at this time of the year. A rebuttal can be found at the next election.—John Sutherland, Sidney.

Saanich Candidate

Through the medium of the press, I would like to congratulate the reeve and incumbent council, as well as the new council member. They received a clear mandate and I know they will get on with the jobs that must now be done. I wish to thank all of the electorate in Saanich who supported and voted for me Dec. 9. My only regret is that 70 per cent of the voters did not bother to vote at all.—Joe Belton, 2575 MacDonald Drive.

To Buy Gifts

We, the students of St. Ann's Grade 8 "A", would like to thank you for announcing our car wash. It was a great success and we made $32.30. The money will be used to buy gifts for the children at Seven Oaks.—Pat Kelly and Pat McLellan, co-chairmen, and Sister Wilcock, home room teacher.

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1967—PAGE 17

LEND A HAND said Santa and 46 members of Saanich Kiwanis Club responded. So did residents and merchants with donations of new and used toys. As a result more than 600 gifts were distributed to 135 needy families here Sunday. It took five trucks and trailers, each bearing a driver, a helper and a Santa to make the rounds. New president Stan Clark and retiring president Don McNab offered thanks today to everyone involved. Constable William Chisholm of Saanich police, who handled outlying routes, won special commendation. (Photo by William John)

LONG, HOT SUMMER?

Major Unions Geared For Contract Crunch

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

A big round of labor-management negotiations is expected to make headlines in 1968.

Major contracts expire in a number of fields, including logging and lumber, pulp, construction and local government.

Biggest interest may be generated among the public employees—particularly municipal and hospital workers.

Companies with contracts expiring on Dec. 31 have already received the demands of their employees. Unions with expiry dates during the coming year are mapping their proposals now.

In the forest industry, the biggest in B.C., the contract between coastal wood products companies and the International Woodworkers of America expires in June.

This agreement covers 26,000 workers in logging camps and plywood, lumber and shingle manufacturing plants including 1,800 on southern Vancouver Island.

40,000 Involved

Contracts between three pulp and paper unions and the pulp industry throughout B.C. expire one month after the coastal IWA one.

Between them, these talks will involve nearly 40,000 persons.

Major agreement up for renewal in the construction industry is the one with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters. It expires April 30.

The union will hold a wage conference at the end of January to formulate its proposals.

Construction unions are expected to try to streamline the various agreements so that major points, such as hours of work and termination dates, coincide. There would then be something like a master agreement.

Carpenters and electricians have already won the 37½-hour work week and it is expected there will be a further demand in the coming year to reduce this amount.

New Awakening

For years the spotlight has fallen on the hourly-rated blue-collar workers but the long-quiet public service and white-collar employees are showing signs of awakening.

Many hospital, municipal and school board contracts expire in the coming year, including most of the ones in Greater Victoria.

Already into negotiations are the Hospital Employees' Union, Local 180, and the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C., comprising a combined total of about 10,000 members at about 60 general hospitals.

The nurses want monthly salary increases of more than 50 per cent, which may stand as the biggest pay demand of any group this year.

The national president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Stan Little, told a Vancouver civic workers rally this month that public employees have been like docile animals but are changing into militant unionists.

He added that public employees believe they should be paid the same money they would get in private industry and that they aren't ready to subsidize the community to the point of getting lower pay.

Both sides have said the coming year will be a tough one for contract renewals.

Last June, C. S. J. McKelvey, in charge of labor relations for the Union of B.C. Municipalities, told a municipal meeting in Powell River "it is going to be a long, hot summer."

Only 48 contracts were opened in 1967 but there will be 102 in the coming year.

He told delegates that area manuals were being prepared to inform all municipalities of existing agreements.

"For many years the unions have delighted in playing one city against another and they will continue to do so until we know exactly what our neighboring municipalities are doing," he said last summer.

"The unions are organized, we must be organized, too."

Last month, after a wage conference of the B.C. division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, a union spokesman warned:

"Delegates were cognizant of the efforts of employers to coordinate their bargaining strategy and steps are being taken to develop similar action on the part of public employees."

The last major contract year was 1966 and it saw 39 strikes and lockouts affect 411 employers, 24,748 employees, and caused a time loss of 272,922 working days, or 0.196 per cent of the total time worked.

Second Highest

The number of strikes was the second highest since 1951, the number of employers affected was a record, employees affected was the highest since 1959 and time loss was the greatest since 1959.

The number of strikes and their effects, however, were put in perspective by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson in a New Year's message at the end of 1966.

He observed that only one in 50 contracts resulted in a strike or lockout. There were 2,000 new contracts filed with his department where agreement was "negotiated without the matter coming to the attention of the public."

1,500 Want Raise of 11%

About 1,500 local government workers on southern Vancouver Island will expect no less than an 11 per cent pay raise next year, a union official says.

Such an increase would be in line with raises already approved for part of the group—outside civic workers in Victoria and Saanich.

Nearly all contracts covering members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees are open for re-negotiation in 1968, said Tom Smith, local CUPE representative.

They include civic workers in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt and employees, other than teachers, at the Greater Victoria, Saanich and Sooke School Boards, Victoria Public Library, plus several smaller units.

POSTED postmaster Al Davies, off to London, Ont., after seven years here, will take a traditional British Columbia gift with him — a Cowichan sweater. Rain nor hail nor snow nor gloom of night can pentrate it. District postal service director R. F. Reed, left, who made the presentation at a farewell gathering, made sure of the fit to avoid any chance sweater would have to be mailed back for exchange. Postmen are sick of parcels these days.

Mother, Son in Hospital After Two-Car Collision

A mother and son were rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital at 10:30 a.m. today after an accident at Bay and Quadra.

Mrs. Nora Brant, 599 Tait St., suffered head injuries and 10-year-old Mark, severe bruises.

They were passengers in a car driven by William Brant.

Police report the Brant car, proceeding east on Bay, was in collision with a car southbound on Quadra, driven by Rudy Klingle, 3641 Elliston.

Both drivers were uninjured.

Police estimate damage to the cars at $1,000 each.

Three accidents in the area early Christmas morning sent five persons to hospital.

At 12:10 a.m. a car driven by Gary Wadden, 1237 Dominion, collided with one driven by Patricia Knott, 913 Sluggett, at Douglas and McKenzie Ave.

Three teen-aged persons in the Wadden car were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Sandra Johnson, 17, of 945 Green, is in good condition with facial cuts. Donna Hagen, 16, of 1254 Pandora, is in good condition with a cut hand.

Harold Corbett, 17, of Humpback Road, is in satisfactory condition with chest injuries.

FOG BLAMED

At 1:30 a.m., a car driven by Colin Hodson, 18, of 4052 Wilkinson, went off the road while attempting to turn off West Saanich Road onto Townsend.

Police blamed dense fog for the mishap.

Hodson is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubiles Hospital with a broken arm.

TOTAL WRECK

In a third accident, a car was a total loss after it left the road at Metchosin Road and Hatley around 2 a.m.

RCMP report the car went 350 yards, flipped over, and struck a pole.

Driver Bruce Davidson, 459 Obed, is in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries.

250,000 BRICKS

Countdown To Comedown Starts Soon

Victoria's tallest chimney will be demolished next month.

The chimney, which has towered over the old Empress Hotel steam plant and laundry for 40 years, is 167 feet high and weighs 170 tons.

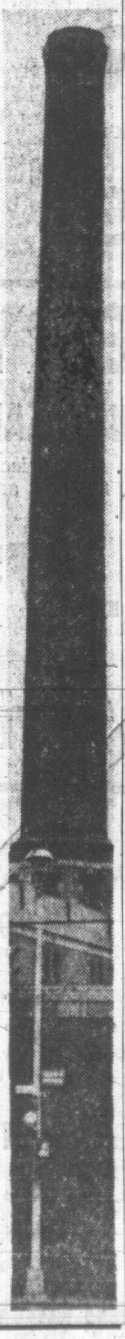

The whole site is being cleared by Mattison and Patterson, local demolition firm. Canadian Pacific Railway Co. spokesmen say no decision has been reached on future use of the land.

The 250,000 bricks in the chimney are in good condition and are to be stored at the CPR Wharf on Belleville Street for future use.

All machinery and equipment has been removed and walls of the power plant are now being dismantled. The project should be finished by the end of March.

Mattison and Patterson were among three firms which bid for the wrecking contract.

The wreckers plan on dropping the chimney with the use of cables.

Racing Driver Pays $75 Fine

A Gold River man Saturday was fined $75 in central court for careless driving.

Police said Robert St. Jules appeared to be in a race with another car on Government Street late Friday.

They said his car passed three cars on the right at speeds up to 50 miles per hour between Johnson and Fort Streets.

MRS. ARNOLD
. . . she's ready

Old Christmas Cards Can Bring New Cheer

Now that Christmas is over, Mrs. H. A. (Eunice) Arnold will be getting huge bundles of Christmas cards.

That's not so strange. She's been getting Christmas cards almost every day all year.

And when you get around to taking down your garlands of cards, Mrs. Arnold would like to have yours too.

She and some friendly helpers sort them and pack them and send then off to Bolivia, India and Taiwan. During 1967 they shipped out 500,000 and those countries want more.

Children in hospital make scrap books with them. Doctors and nurses use the backs of them for records of immunization programs. Some people hang the pictures on the wall and they are often the only touch of color in their homes.

If any donor is worred about cards bearing addresses which might result in a letter from abroad begging for presents, he can be assured all addresses are obliterated, says Mrs. Arnold.

She began her card campaigns 10 years ago at the request of the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions. Each year the job gets larger.

Now she keeps a deposit box which accepts gifts at any time but which can't be entered without a key, on her front porch at 30 Howe Street. (That's one block west of Moss near Dallas Road.)

At present about 25 persons call daily with boxes of cards. Mrs. Arnold also can use small gift boxes in shipping the cards. And if the card-giver wants to leave a silver donation toward shipping costs, that's welcome, too.

HARMFUL

Glitter cards should be separated. The glitter is made from ground glass and can be harmful to sensitive skin. Large commercial cards are especially welcome. The recipients often make calendars with them for use as gifts or prizes.

Mrs. Arnold's helpers include office workers, typists, artists and one 87-year-old woman who devotes three days a week to the project. Sometimes they get snowed under. So donors can also help by mailing cards direct to Mrs. Lillian R. Dickson, 196 North Chunking Road, Section 3, Taipei, Taiwan.

If you clip this story it will save you looking for it next week when you start to wonder what to do with all those cards.

Man Arrested After Rampage In Building

City police have arrested a man they say went on a rampage in the Health and Welfare Building, 1947 Cook Street, early Sunday.

Thry estimate the damage at $3,000.

Three police cars converged on the building after a citizen reported hearing repeated crashes of breaking glass.

When police arrived, they saw a man using a metal ash tray stand to smash plate glass windows and doors.

The man was arrested and taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital where he was treated for cuts to his hands and left ankle.

The man, charged with breaking with intent to commit an indictable offence, will appear in central court Wednesday.

CHINATOWN LIONS

Record Number Completes Red Cross Swim Program

A record number of youngsters have successfully completed the latest Red Cross water safety program, sponsored by the Victoria (Chinatown) Lions Cwim Club.

There were 48 successful candidates in the beginners class, 44 in the pre-junior, 45 in the junior, 31 in the intermediate and 24 in the senior.

Passing the basic survival course were: Daphne Ruskowski, Linda Station, Michael Bunch, Doug Burnham, Debbie Burt, Jamie Fanthorpe, Richard Hunt, Richard Marshall, Jack Moreau, Suzanne Moreau, Lynn Morrison and Susan Morrison.

Passing the advanced survival course were: Phillip Orchard, Howard Taylor, Ken Graham, Lawrence Piper, Susan Millar, Joy Bradstock, Annajane Taylor, Jerrilynne MacClean, and Louise Hamilton.

Winners of bronze medallions included: David Longstaff, David Smith, Martin Bowles, Alan Jones, Russell Mark, Sherry Mark, Peter Gibson, Dale Sebastion, Jean Paynter, Lawrence Tuttle, and Don Drummond.

Successful candidates in the survival swimming class included: Gaylene Chow, Wendy Gage, Andrew North, John Halliwell, Marilyn Dwyer, Robert Orchard and Sharron Barrett.

Lots of Enquiries Too

20,000 PHONE CALLS ONLY 6,000 CONTACTS

Just under 20,000 long distance calls from Greater Victoria were handled by telephone operators Christmas Day.

About 6,000 of them were completed, Gordon Murphy, district commercial and traffic manager, said today.

The figures do not include overseas calls which are handled through Vancouver or Montreal, he added. And among the 20,000 calls were numerous cases of people repeatedly trying to place the same call. Each attempt counts as a call handled by operators.

Three shifts totalling 157 girls handled the operators' chores as well as about 6,000 information queries. Normal number of information calls on a business day is 8,000, said Mr. Murphy.

Ratio of completed calls is about average for Christmas, he added. Calls placed within B.C. encountered few delays.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners in the Allmasters' weekly duplicate bridge game held at the Broughton Building Clubrooms were: North-South—1, Michael Champion and Peter Herold; 2, William Champion and Duncan Smith; 3, Laura Tingley and Sadie Macpherson; Denise McColl and Margaret McAvoy (tie); 4, Ronald Smith and Earle Dye.

East-West—1, Joan and Paul Smith; 2, Anne Dye and Marianne Powell; 3, Frances Watts and Dorothy Housley; 4, Ian Smith and Derek Ward; 5, Dorothy McConnell and Freda Small.

CITY WARMEST, MAYBE SOGGIEST

Victoria was the warmest city in Canada on Christmas Day.

The thermometer registered 52 degrees — the rain which had flooded gutters on Sunday dribbled away to almost nothing before 10 a.m.—even if it's still soggy underfoot.

(Sunday we had .74 inches and Christmas morning we had the best part of .18 inches.)

Coldest spots in Canada on Christmas Day were The Pas and Prince Albert, where it was 18 below zero, the snow probably was crunching underfoot and people covered their ears and rubbed their noses with their mittens if they stayed out long.

There's none of that sort of weather in sight for Victoria.

It was to be cloudy with fog patches today. Wednesday likely will provide rain or a drizzle from overcast skies, the temperatures continuing mild—45 tonight and 50 on Wednesday.

Winds were expected to be 15 miles-per-hour westerlies shifting to the southeast after midnight.

Youth Rescued From Finlayson

A youth is in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today after being carried from Finlayson Mountain in a dramatic rescue mission Christmas Eve and Christmas morning.

Ronald Evans, 18, went climbing with three companions on Dec. 24.

When the boys started down the mountain, they became lost. Three decided to go back to the top and pick up the trail from the start. Evans continued on his own.

Officials believe he fell over a cliff and knocked himself out.

When the other three reached the road and realized Evans hadn't made it, they contacted RCMP.

RCMP called Langford Fire Department who blew their siren and 22 men turned out for the search.

At 5:30, two groups of four men set out, the remainder waiting in the hall.

The men who found Evans had no stretcher and it was 11 p.m. before the necessary equipment arrived.

Seven firemen and Const. William Hunt of the RCMP took five hours to get Evans down to the road.

He was rushed to hospital with possible concussion.

Langford fire chief Al Lequesne praised the efforts of the men involved.

DANGEROUS

He also stressed that the Finlayson Mountain trail is dangerous at this time of year.

"It should be closed down," he said. "It was criss-crossed with fire breaks last summer, and there are several windfalls down.

"People go up at noon and start back around 4, not thinking it will be dark by 5:30."

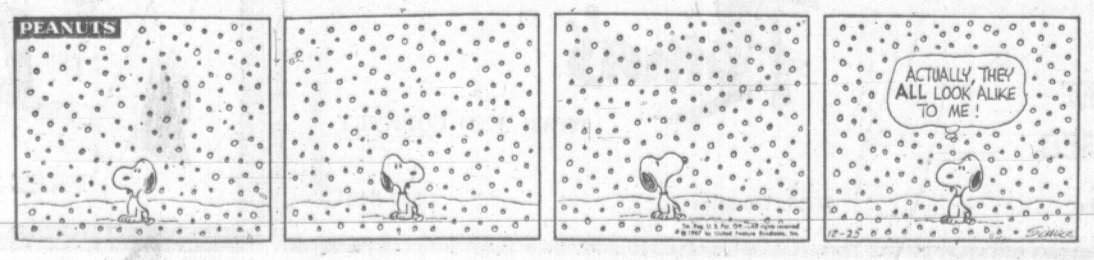

Ask The Times

Q. Would you tell me please if there is any scientific value in sweeping ahead of the rocks in curling. J. B.

A. Apart from making certain that the ice is clear of any foreign particle that may cause the rock to stop suddenly, the main scientific value in sweeping rests with the fact that the hard corn brooms (generally) are capable of scratching the ice. The theory is that "ridges" created by proper sweeping (across the path taken by the rock) means the rock encounters less friction than it would on smoother ice.

Common Market Members Facing Stormy Future

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS (AP)—The European Common Market is in trouble as it completes its 10th year, and not only because French President de Gaulle vetoed talks with Britain.

The veto may cause trouble enough. Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany has threatened a slowdown on matters of special interest to de Gaulle. They include trade deals with countries of the Mediterranean basin and Africa, neighbors and former colonies of France.

Failure by the Common Market to act would weaken French influence in the whole turbulent area.

Other Common Market leaders, angered by the veto, are talking about new contracts with Britain, leaving out France. They are especially interested in new scientific products and projects Britain's heavy spending on research makes this kind of co-operation attractive.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain has proposed a "technological community" to foster it.

FEARS FOR FUTURE

"There is no future for Europe," he said, "or for Britain, if we allow American business and American industry so to dominate the strategic growth industries of our individual countries that they, and not we, are able to determine the pace and direction of Europe's industrial advance."

Wilson wanted Britain's scientific assets to be a kind of dowry that Britain would bring along on joining the Common Market, strengthening the new union at a weak point. Now it seems plain the wedding cannot take place so long as de Gaulle stays in power.

Industrially applied science will remain a weak point in the Common Market.

The weakness is being brought out in the course of a merger that began last summer between the Common Market proper and two sister organizations that deal with important sectors of industry—coal, steel and nuclear energy. All three have the same six members—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Aim of the Common Market is to unify the economies of its members. Its most successful work has been done on breaking down the tariff walls among them and getting them together on farm policy.

The European Coal and Steel Community was the first to be formed. It was considered a big step toward a united Europe when it went to work in 1952.

The Continent still was suffering from the effects of the Second World War. The community received powers to deal with the shortages of 1952, not with the surpluses of 1968.

Times have changed. Plastics, aluminum and newer metals, petroleum products, natural gas and nuclear energy have made coal and steel a lot less basic than they used to be.

Coal has become an especially weak industry in Europe.

The steel industry, not so badly off as coal, is suffering throughout the world because more steel is being produced than can be sold. There is an obvious thing to do: Cut production. But European community has not the power. Nor has it the money to give the steel away, if anyone should recommend that doubtful solution.

EURATOM EMERGES

The European Atomic Energy Community, better known as Euratom, came into existence at the same time as the Common Market, in 1958. Its aim was to have the six member nations co-operate in building a peaceful nuclear industry that could compete with that of the U.S.

It has not been especially successful.

Euratom officials also see its future endangered by U.S. President Johnson's eagerness to get a treaty signed with the Soviet Union to halt the spread of nuclear weapons. The chief issue remaining is how to inspect peaceful nuclear plants to see that no uranium or plutonium is sneaked away for use in weapons. Euratom has its own system of doing this, but the Russians dislike it.

If Euratom's inspection system is superseded, it loses another reason for existence.

NEW PRESIDENT and chief executive officer of duPont Company is Charles B. McCoy. The 165-year-old firm claims to be the world's largest privately owned chemical manufacturer. McCoy, 12th president of the firm, succeeds Lamont duPont Copeland, who has moved up to board chairman. (AP Wirephoto.)

Chemical Firm In Winnipeg Denies Tieup

WINNIPEG (CP)—Officials of Border Chemical Co. Ltd. here have expressed concern at newspaper reports linking the firm to the Fundy Chemical Corp. of Dorchester Cape, N.B., Mark Smerchanski of Winnipeg, in a statement said his position as president of Border and of Fundy was "the only connection between the firms."

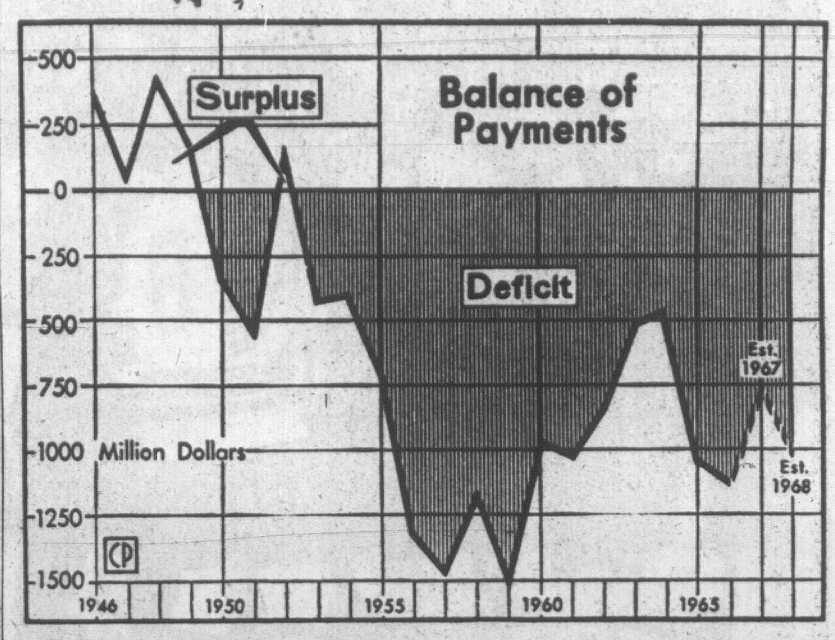

He said both firms are limited companies and Border has never held a financial interest in Fundy.

The Canadian Press in a story Dec. 19 from Dorchester, N.B., said Fundy's fertilizer plant was purchased by Border in 1965 from the New Brunswick Development Corp.

"This is erroneous," said Michael Skwark, counsel for Border Chemical Co. Ltd.

Mr. Skwark said the New Brunswick government approached Mr. Smerchanski in 1965 with a proposal that he purchase the fertilizer plant which it was constructing in a new industrial park.

"The government transferred all four shares in Fundy from its trustees of the New Brunswick Development Corp. to Mr. Smerchinski and three other nominees to retain a board of four directors," he said.

THANKS to help from Expo 67, Canada's balance-of-payments deficit for 1967 is forecast at $750,000,000, but a more familiar $1,000,000,000 is expected for 1968. Deficit or surplus, traced from 1946, is the amount left when total government commitments, including imports, dividends and foreign payments, have been set against all incoming moneys, which includes all tourist and export income. U.S. Steel Profits Hit Slump

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The U.S. steel industry found it easier to make steel than money in 1967.

The industry poured 126,000,000 tons—down from the record 134,100,000 in 1966—but still comfortably above the once long-sought goal of 100,000,000 tons for the fifth straight year.

However, sales slipped 8 per cent and profits fell even harder—off 31 per cent for the 23 producers.

When all the figures are in, profits should be around $200,000,000 less than 1966, making it even tougher for the industry to support its planned $2,000,000,000-a-year capital spending program.

Analysts predict a good year in 1968 with an especially strong first half.

Auto inventory orders alone for January are 30 per cent above normal. Some of it is attributed to strengthening market conditions as well as strike-hedge buying in anticipation of a possible mid-summer walkout by the United Steelworkers Union.

Although earnings improved in the fourth quarter, final figures coming in later won't offset the dismal nine-month profit picture.

Production-curtailing snowstorms in February, problems in bringing new equipment into use, and strikes in the auto and construction industries forced analysts at one point to revise downward their 126,000,000-ton production forecast.

STRIKE SPREAD TERROR

A two-month steel haulers' strike in the fall spread terror on the highways in the U.S. steelmaking centres, delaying shipments at a time when demand for steel was beginning to head up.

Adding to the squeeze on profits were steadily rising labor and material costs and foreign imports.

Nearly 11,000,000 tons flowed in, up slightly from the record 10,700,000 in 1966.

Four-Day Layoff For CPR Workers

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway said today 4,580 men have been laid off for four days in railway repair and maintenance shops across Canada.

The closures, said to be due to a continuing decline in freight traffic, affected the company's Angus shops in Montreal, Weston shops in Winnipeg and Ogden shops in Calgary.

Out of work for the period Dec. 26-29 are 2,450 men in Montreal, 1,350 in Winnipeg and 780 in Calgary.

Senator to 'Expose' Contractors

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. William Proxmire (D—Wis.) said today he would identify defence contractors who had illegally used government-owned industrial equipment for their private use.

Proxmire, chairman of the House-Senate economic committee, said there had been "shocking misuse" of $15 billion worth of machine tools and other facilities.

Stranded Oil Tanker Under Tow

GLASGOW (UPI)—An oil-laden British tanker was taken in tow by a rescue tug today after wallowing more than 24 hours without power in the North Atlantic. The Coast Guard said the Esso Canterbury, with 38 crewmen aboard, would be taken to Belfast, Ireland, for repairs.

14 Injured When Train Derailed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — At least 14 persons were injured today when all 15 cars of a New York Central passenger train derailed in the town of Riga, 10 miles southwest of here.

Prisoners Blast Way to Freedom

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI)—One of five "extremely dangerous" prisoners who broke out of a Brownfield jail was captured early today, but his four companions blasted their way out of a police trap with weapons they took from the jail late Monday.

Satellite Launched by Soviet

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today launched an unmanned satellite, Cosmos 197, whose purpose was announced only as "space exploration." The Cosmos series is believed by Western scientists to include tests for manned space shots, warhead re-entry and spy-in-the-sky satellites.

U.S. Blasts Convoys As Short Truce Ends

Chinese N-Test Failure?

TOKYO (CP) — Peking kept silent again today about a report from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission that the Chinese had set off their seventh nuclear test explosion Sunday.

The silence heightened speculation that something went wrong.

Official boasting and reports of celebrations in the streets followed each of China's six previous blasts. But a Radio Peking broadcast Monday made no mention of the reported Christmas Eve explosion in the Lop Nor testing area of central Asia. Instead it reviewed the first six blasts and touted the thought of Mao Tse-tung.

The AEC estimated the explosion equalled 20,000 tons of TNT. That would be similar to the first atomic bomb, dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

Japanese Air Force planes detected unusual radioactive fallout over Japan today, but the government said it was not great enough to endanger humans.

However, the government said the radioactivity was the second strongest ever detected coming from China, exceeded only by that of China's third nuclear blast, an A-bomb equal to more than 200,000 tons of TNT, set off May 9, 1966.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that there was no official word there Monday of the test.

Scientists at Niigata, northern Japan, today detected seven giant radioactive particles which they believed were caused by the Chinese blast.

Scientists said the latest test was believed to have taken place in the atmosphere about noon Sunday.

Sources close to military experts here said it was believed the detonation took place in the atmosphere not higher than 16,500 feet.

A Japanese military writer, Tadao Tusumi, said the latest Chinese test was believed connected with experiments with low-yield nuclear weapons. The low yield of the explosion could indicate the bomb was carried by a medium-range missile, experts in Washington said.

Supply Trucks Hit by Bombers

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. fighter-bombers swept over North Vietnam immediately after the southern allies' Christmas truce ended and tore up Communist convoys trying to complete a massive movement of supplies started under the umbrella of the ceasefire.

U.S. headquarters reported about 100 trucks destroyed or damaged in the heavy strikes which began Christmas night and continued today. A ferry carrying eight trucks was blown up and sunk.

Headquarters reported that U.S. jets spotted more than 300 trucks, one of the biggest transport targets of the war.

The ground war also resumed after the truce ended at 6 p.m. Christmas night (5 a.m. EST Monday) but only scattered actions were reported. The Viet Cong had announced that it would observe a 72-hour Christmas truce, until 1 a.m. Wednesday (noon EST today).

Acting on intelligence from reconnaissance planes which maintained the vigil over the North during the truce, first planes reached the target area with only a few minutes of light remaining. Long strings of flares were dropped, and the bombing continued throughout Christmas night.

RAINS BOMBS ON CONVOY

A 150-truck convoy was scattered along seven miles of highway below Thanh Hoa. Navy Skyhawk jets rained 500-pound bombs along the route, dotting it with billowing fires that lighted the night sky.

Farther south, near Vinh, a 100-truck convoy was blasted.

The ferry south of Vinh was hit just before sundown.

Communiques made no mention of any planes lost on the raids over the North, but a marine observation plane was shot down in South Vietnam.

'NOT HOSTILE'

U.S. Seeks To Calm Cambodia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state department sought today to quiet the fears of Cambodia that U.S. military forces might move into that neutral country to root out Communist Vietnamese military elements which take refuge there.

Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said he wanted to reaffirm that the United States has "no hostile intention toward Cambodia" and will continue to seek a peaceful settlement of the problem posed by "the use of Cambodian territory by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army units.

The state department addressed itself to the issue shortly after Cambodia broadcast a communique saying that it would "offer desperate resistance" to any U.S. forces entering Cambodia "allegedly pursuing Communist Vietnamese forces."

The communique said it would call for help from military forces of other countries.

NOTE TO PRINCE

McCloskey said the United States, in a Dec. 4 note to Prince Norodom Sihanouk's government, tried to give him information which would help him deal with the problem of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces seeking sanctuary in Cambodia after battles with allied forces in the south.

The note, according to McCloskey, pointed out that the United States "has made or supported a number of proposals" to try to deal with the problem.

It reaffirmed the U.S. government's belief that expanding and strengthening the International Control Commission along the Cambodian border would be a good way of accomplishing this.

McCloskey also acknowledged the United States received late last week a reply from Cambodia which again rejected the idea that Communist Vietnamese forces in any number are on Cambodian territory and charged the United States was trying to impose its military will over the whole area.

AT LEAST 9 DEAD

Blast Shatters Moscow Block

MOSCOW (AP)—An explosion shattered a six-storey apartment building Monday night.

Tass news agency said today nine persons were killed and several injured, but a witness at the scene said a policeman told him more than 20 persons were killed.

Another bystander said 10 or 12 bodies were removed from the wreckage.

The blast was believed caused by a burst gas main, the result of a rare winter thaw in Moscow. Temperatures soared 40 degrees, from below zero to above freezing in the last two days, expanding and flexing buried gas mains.

In an unrelated incident, 10 minutes earlier on the opposite side of the Moscow River, a powerful bomb wrecked the auto of Henry S. Bradsher, Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow. No one was injured.

The apartment house blew up about 9:30 p.m., bystanders said. About 100 persons were believed living in the building's 24 apartments two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Rescue workers with searchlights hunted in a heavy snowfall for victims while dozens of ambulances, fire engines and police cars gathered at the wreckage.

Most of the residents were believed at home because it was an ordinary weekday night. Russians celebrate Christmas Jan. 7, according to the Julian calendar.

Gas explosions are not rare in the Soviet capital, although they are not publicly reported and officials refuse to disclose information on their frequency. The same area was hit by a tremendous gas explosion last January that knocked out telephone communications for days. This never was publicly reported.

The Soviet press and radio maintained a blackout on the disaster Monday night also, and police, troops and barriers blocked off the mass of rubble and torn walls.

Hundreds of Russians gathered this morning as a huge crane worked behind a board fence thrown up overnight. Police and soldiers would not allow Western newspaper men to enter.

"I saw them get a woman and a little girl out alive, but not many could come through that blast," a man said.

SHATTERS WINDOWS

Concrete lamp posts were flattened for 100 yards. Windows in surrounding buildings were blown out. Their electricity and water were cut off.

The destroyed building was part of a block of apartments facing Karsnokhlmsky Street, a main traffic artery that circles downtown Moscow. It stood at the end of the Karsnokhlmsky bridge over the Moscow River about two miles southeast of the Kremlin.

Police investigating the bombing of Bradsher's automobile seemed perplexed, and veteran foreign correspondents could not recall an attack similar to it in Moscow.

Bradsher said he did not believe the bombing was directed against him or his family. He

Survives Drain Plunge

LEWISTON, N.Y. (AP) — A New York state trooper searching for a young girl believed drowned in a creek was swept through a big drain pipe today and then tumbled about 200 feet into the Niagara gorge.

Trooper Kenneth J. Troidl, 27, suffered only bruises.

Vital Military Posts in Laos 'Attacked by N. Viet Troops'

SAIGON (AP)—Laotian military sources said today North Vietnamese regulars had attacked two strategic military posts inside Laos and probably had overrun one of them.

The two posts were identified as Lam Bak, north of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, and Phalane, in southern Laos, close to the Ho Chi Minh Trail. Communications from the Laotian capital of Vietiane said both posts had been attacked by strong forces of North Vietnamese regulars.

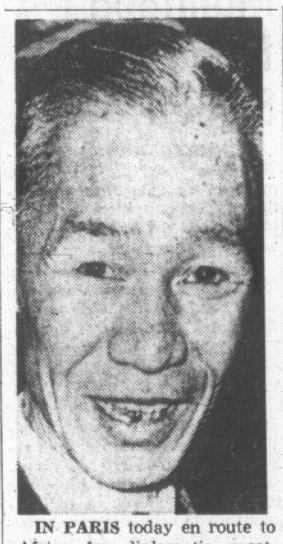

Presumably the attacks took place within the last 24 hours, but the messages from Vientiane did not say precisely.

Lam Bak was believed to have fallen to the North Vietnamese. Military sources said the post was lightly defended and that all communications from it had ceased.

Phalane was better defended and was thought to have repulsed the attacks.

Earlier, the government radio of Laos broadcast a defence ministry statement saying "the military situation is very critical and tense" following a series of attacks on government positions by North Vietnamese regular troops.

It was the second time in two weeks that the Laotian government had reported attacks against its troops by North Vietnamese forces.

IN PARIS today en route to Africa for diplomatic meetings, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do of South Vietnam denied he planned any talks with North Vietnamese representatives.

WILSON VISIT TO KOSYGIN?

Princes' Purses Picked

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Home Minister Yashwantrao Chavan told Indian maharajahs and princes today that the government intends to abolish their privy purses and privileges.

The privy purses were granted to the princely rulers when they agreed to merge their states with India at the time of independence in 1947. They were also given privileges such as flying their own flags, freedom from taxes and from prosecution except by special permission of the government.

The government pays out about 48,000,000 rupees ($6,900,000) a year for the privy purses to 279 princes varying from 2,600,000 rupees to the maharajah of Mysore down to 2,400 rupees to former rulers of minor states.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Indian Boy Can Stand Up to Say Thanks

By KATHRINE THOMAS

The Unitarian Service Committee is dedicated to helping the desperately needy on a person-to-person basis.

It is often difficult to imagine how our small contribution can help the thousands suffering in Asia.

But when we hear of individual cases, we begin to understand how far a little money can go to alleviate pain.

Take little Kuperndra, a six-year-old Indian boy who was born a cripple.

His parents were too busy struggling to earn enough rupees for food for their large family to have time to worry about Kuperndra.

For all his short life, he had been unable to walk. He used to crawl pitifully around their dark, tiny hut.

One day, a USC worker visited the home and discovered the little boy.

The worker took him to see an orthopedic surgeon and because of the generosity of Canadians, the little boy was able to have the operation he needed.

His legs are still a little deformed because he had been neglected for so long.

But he can walk, run and play with his little brothers and sisters for the first time in his life.

His mother cried with happiness to see that her child was cured.

She thanked the USC worker profusely and aksed that her deepest gratitude be conveyed to the Canadian angels of mercy who had made the operation possible.

No longer would she have to live with the terrible fear that her son must spend his days as a crippled beggar in the market place begging for his every meal.

Her child would now be able to make his way as a man in the world.

Donations to the Children of Asia Fund may be left at the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Yates and Douglas, the Times Business office, or mailed in care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Perhaps it was the very money contributed by Victorians which made such a miracle possible.

Official receipts will be sent out from the USC in January.

Dr. Lotia Hitschmanova serves Canada's wonder drink to the children of India.

Pygmy Owls Show In Time for Count

This could be the year for Steller's Jays and Pygmy Owls when about 50 local bird watchers launch their annual beak count Saturday.

Several of the tiny owls, hardly the size of a robin, have been seen recently, naturalist David Stirling said today, although they have never been recorded during the traditional once-a-year count before.

And Steller's Jays, which are by no menas rare, are in great abundance this year and frequently seen in the city. It could be a record count for them.

The Victoria Natural History Society tally is held in conjunction with bird counts throughout North America. About 10,000 bird watchers in at least 700 localities from the Rio Grande to Alaska will be at work during the 10 days preceding Jan. 2.

VICTORIA HIGHEST

For several years Victoria has had the highest count of bird species in Canada, said Mr. Stirling, naturalist with the parks branch of the department of conservation and recreation.

Last year 128 species were spotted and 55,000 birds counted. About the same numbers are anticipated for this year.

Rarer species seen last year included Snowy Owls and Bohemian Waxwings.

Occasional influxes stem from a number of factors, including limited food supply elsewhere and optimum nesting conditions, although such variations are not yet fully understood, said Mr. Stirling.

The local count has been held on Boxing Day in years past.

The National Audubon Society in New Yourk co-ordinates efforts in the continent-wide count.

Doctors Use Big Grant For Exams

OTTAWA (CP) — A $250,000 grant has been awarded to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada by the board of trustees of the R. Samuel McLaughlin Foundation, it was announced Tuesday.

The college said in a statement it will use the grant to modify examination procedures for specialists through use of multiple choice tests to complement the present system of essay-type examinations.

New and more objective techniques for the college examinations also will be studied.

The statement said multiple-choice questions and more sophisticated techniques for oral examinations are being used in the United States and Britain.

The information gained is expected to lead to the development of a data centre in Canada to serve the needs of medical examinations.

The centre would bear the name of R. S. McLaughlin, chairman of the board of General Motors of Canada Ltd., the college said.

Wings Call Three

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League called up three players from their Fort Worth farm club Sunday.

NAVY MAN

35-Year Career Ending

LIEUT.-CMDR. WILSON

Thirty-five years of service with the Royal Canadian Navy will end Jan. 3 for Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. "Tug" Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, of 5152 Santa Clara Avenue, started his naval service in Halifax in 1933.

The outbreak of the Second World War saw him in the destroyer HMCS Saguenay in which he took part in the first England-bound convoy out of the east coast naval port.

He served in the Mediterranean, the Caribbean, on the Russian convoy routes and on the North Atlantic. He specialized in gunnery and weapons control systems.

TWO CORONATIONS

He attended two coronations: for King George VI and for Queen Elizabeth.

He held a number of appointments with the Pacific Maritime Command, serving on the frigates Ste. Therese and New Glasgow and for a two-year period was commanding officer of the minesweeper HMCS Cowichan.

Then he went to HMCS Cornwallis, the navy's new entry training establishment near Digby, Nova Scotia, as the base's first lieutenant-commander.

He returned to Esquimalt in 1964 to serve in a similar capacity at the (then) HMCS Naden, naval barracks. For a short time he was temporary executive officer of the barracks, and then became staff officer in charge of naval centennial projects throughout British Columbia.

Heavy Snow Blamed In Crash of Plane

A light plane crash last year which killed four people near Alert Bay has been blamed on continued flight into unfavorable weather conditions.

The civil aviation branch of the federal department of transport announced the verdict from its investigation Saturday.

"Investigation at the scene established that the aircraft struck two trees near the water. At the time of impact, the aircraft was in a slightly nose-down attitude and in about a 45-degree bank to the right.

"It is considered probable that a heavy snow shower was encountered . . . which reduced visibility and the aircraft struck trees during a descending turn to the right."

There were no crash witnesses but people in the area reported snow showers during the day, said the report.

Mr. McLellan was survived by his wife Carole, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, who lived in Victoria.

DRIVER ALERT WHEN JUICED

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Don Dean proposes a shocking solution to keep motorists awake.

Dean, a 56-year-old automobile salesman, has wired his steering wheel so it gives the driver a mild charge of electricity at irregular intervals to prevent him from falling asleep. Dean tried it and said he had no trouble staying awake.

Flash Fire Toll at 83

FORMOSA, Argentina (UPI) —A flash fire fed by large stocks of fireworks swept through a crowded store and turned Christmas into a day of mourning in this northern Argentine city.

At last report, 21 persons had died and more than 30 others were burned, many critically. Nearly all the dead were women and girls.

Probe Urged On Causes Of Drinking

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The head of an international alcoholism prevention group charged here today that big business, politics and the church do not investigate the causes of alcoholism "for the sake of perpetuating alcohol as a social lubricant."

Ernest H. J. Steed, newly elected Australian executive director of the International Commission for the Prevention of Alcoholism, said:

"Studying the effects of alcoholism is one of the greatest hoaxes of our era.

"While millions of dollars are wasted on watching alcoholics, a study of the basic causes are ignored and denied a scientific voice.

"Social custom, habit, big business, politics and even the church unconsciously continue to foster this dishonest practice for the sake of perpetuating alcohol as a social lubricant."

He urged science to devote as much attention to alcohol as to cigarette smoking.

Man Jailed Year For Theft of TV

DUNCAN—A man who tried walking out of a hardware store here with a new portable color TV set was jailed for a year Saturday.

John Allen Cathey, 48, of Ladysmith, was caught by an employee seconds after he left Hudson's Hardware Friday. He appeared in court the next day charged with theft of goods worth over $50.

Michael Allen Kennedy of Chemainus was fined $300 for impaired driving and a further $50 for consuming liquor in a public place.

Pygmy Owls Show In Time for Count

This could be the year for Steller's Jays and Pygmy Owls when about 50 local bird watchers launch their annual beak count Saturday.

Several of the tiny owls, hardly the size of a robin, have been seen recently, naturalist David Stirling said today, although they have never been recorded during the traditional once-a-year count before.

And Steller's Jays, which are by no menas rare, are in great abundance this year and frequently seen in the city. It could be a record count for them.

The Victoria Natural History Society tally is held in conjunction with bird counts throughout North America. About 10,000 bird watchers in at least 700 localities from the Rio Grande to Alaska will be at work during the 10 days preceding Jan. 2.

VICTORIA HIGHEST

For several years Victoria has had the highest count of bird species in Canada, said Mr. Stirling, naturalist with the parks branch of the department of conservation and recreation.

Last year 128 species were spotted and 55,000 birds counted. About the same numbers are anticipated for this year.

Rarer species seen last year included Snowy Owls and Bohemian Waxwings.

Occasional influxes stem from a number of factors, including limited food supply elsewhere and optimum nesting conditions, although such variations are not yet fully understood, said Mr. Stirling.

The local count has been held on Boxing Day in years past.

The National Audubon Society in New Yourk co-ordinates efforts in the continent-wide count.

Doctors Use Big Grant For Exams

OTTAWA (CP) — A $250,000 grant has been awarded to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada by the board of trustees of the R. Samuel McLaughlin Foundation, it was announced Tuesday.

The college said in a statement it will use the grant to modify examination procedures for specialists through use of multiple choice tests, to complement the present system of essay-type examinations.

New and more objective techniques for the college examinations also will be studied.

The statement said multiple-choice questions and more sophisticated techniques for oral examinations are being used in the United States and Britain.

The information gained is expected to lead to the development of a data centre in Canada to serve the needs of medical examinations.

The centre would bear the name of R. S. McLaughlin, chairman of the board of General Motors of Canada Ltd., the college said.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League called up three players from their Fort Worth farm club Sunday.

LIEUT.-CMDR. WILSON

NAVY MAN

35-Year Career Ending

Thirty-five years of service with the Royal Canadian Navy will end Jan. 3 for Lt.-Cmdr. W. C. "Tug" Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, of 5152 Santa Clara Avenue, started his naval service in Halifax in 1933.

The outbreak of the Second World War saw him in the destroyer HMCS Saguenay in which he took part in the first England-bound convoy out of the east coast naval port.

He served in the Mediterranean, the Caribbean, on the Russian convoy routes and on the North Atlantic. He specialized in gunnery and weapons control systems.

TWO CORONATIONS

He attended two coronations: for King George VI and for Queen Elizabeth.

He held a number of appointments with the Pacific Maritime Command, serving on the frigates Ste. Therese and New Glasgow and for a two-year period was commanding officer of the minesweeper HMCS Cowichan.

Then he went to HMCS Cornwallis, the navy's new entry training establishment near Digby, Nova Scotia, as the base's first lieutenant-commander.

He returned to Esquimalt in 1964 to serve in a similar capacity at the (then) HMCS Naden, naval barracks. For a short time he was temporary executive officer of the barracks, and then became staff officer in charge of naval centennial projects throughout British Columbia.

Heavy Snow Blamed In Crash of Plane

A light plane crash last year which killed four people near Alert Bay has been blamed on continued flight into unfavorable weather conditions.

The civil aviation branch of the federal department of transport announced the verdict from its investigation Saturday.

Former Victoria pilot James McLellan, who had survived one crash previously, and three others died in the accident.

Their amphibious plane left Port Hardy April 11 of last year and was found submerged in the bay.

Bamford Lagoon 30 miles northeast the next dy.

The team probing the accident for the DOT reported:

"Investigation at the scene established that the aircraft struck two trees near the water. At the time of impact, the aircraft was in a slightly nose-down attitude and in about a 45-degree bank to the right.

"It is considered probable that a heavy snow shower was encountered . . . which reduced visibility and the aircraft struck trees during a descending turn to the right."

There were no crash witnesses but people in the area reported snow showers during the day, said the report.

Mr. McLellan was survived by his wife Carole, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. McLellan, who lived in Victoria.

DRIVER ALERT WHEN JUICED

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Don Dean proposes a shocking solution to keep motorists awake.

Dean, a 56-year-old automobile salesman, has wired his steering wheel so it gives the driver a mild charge of electricity at irregular intervals to prevent him from falling asleep. Dean tried it and said he had no trouble staying awake.

Flash Fire Toll at 83

FORMOSA, Argentina (UPI) —A flash fire fed by large stocks of fireworks swept through a crowded store and turned Christmas into a day of mourning in this northern Argentine city.

At last report, 21 persons had died and more than 30 others were burned, many critically. Nearly all the dead were women and girls.

Probe Urged On Causes Of Drinking

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The head of an international alcoholism prevention group charged here today that big business, politics and the church do not investigate the causes of alcoholism "for the sake of perpetuating alcohol as a social lubricant."

Ernest H. J. Steed, newly elected Australian executive director of the International Commission for the Prevention of Alcoholism, said:

"Studying the effects of alcoholism is one of the greatest hoaxes of our era.

"While millions of dollars are wasted on watching alcoholics, a study of the basic causes are ignored and denied a scientific voice.

"Social custom, habit, big business, politics and even the church unconsciously continue to foster this dishonest practice for the sake of perpetuating alcohol as a social lubricant."

He urged science to devote as much attention to alcohol as to cigarette smoking.
